DESERET EVENING NEWS.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 2, 1895.

THE VISITING EDITORS.

Proposed Reception For Them by the Utah Press Association Members.

A. B. Tompson, corresponding secretary of the Utah Press association, today handed in for publication the following correspondence:

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Aug. 1, 1895.

Hon. Wilford Woodruff, President of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, City.

Respected Sir—The Utah Press association, composed of the editors of the Territorial newspapers, has invited the editors of the leading daily Western papers, between the Missouri river and the Pacific coast, to Utah for a summer outing. The visitors will be here Aug. 27th and 28th, on which date a financial convention will be held in this city, for the purpose of acquainting outsiders affecting our mutual interests, in the hope of creating a closer and more friendly acquaintance with our brethren of the press in the great transcontinental states.

While the visiting editors are in Utah, we are desirous of meeting them in a fraternal manner, and therefore will entertain them at dinner, and extend to them such other courtesies of our financial sentiments and hospitality as workers in the same profession are always pleased to receive from and exhibit to each other.

It is therefore the intention of the management of this affair to give a complimentary concert to the visitors in the grand Old Tabernacle, if the favor of its use can be obtained for that purpose. In case the Tabernacle can be obtained, the famous choir and a number of the leading musicians of this city will be asked to take part in the program. As we intend the concert to be a complimentary affair for the visiting editors, no charge will be made for admission.

Having made this explanation, I have the pleasure to ask you, President Woodruff, in behalf of the Utah Press Association, the great favor of the use of the Tabernacle on the evening of August 28th.

An answer at the earliest convenient opportunity will greatly oblige.

Yours most respectfully,
A. B. TOMPSON,
Cor. Secretary U. P. Assn.

Following is the answer of the First Presidency:

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Aug. 1, 1895.

A. B. Tompson, Esq., Utah Press Association, City.

DEAR SIR—I am directed by the First Presidency to say in answer to your favor to President Woodruff of today's date that they cheerfully grant you the use of the Tabernacle, for the purpose named, on the evening of Wednesday, 28th inst. Please communicate with Bishop W. B. Preston with regard to any questions of detail. He has been informed by the Presidency of their action.

Yours very respectfully,
GEO. REYNOLDS, Secretary.

The concert spoken of in the above correspondence is to be made a grand musicale, in compliment to the visiting writers. The outside of the program have not yet been settled on, but the Tabernacle choir and enough of Salt Lake's talented musical artists will perform to make the affair one of the musical events of the year. In a few days more details regarding the program will be made known.

Mr. Tomson also received today letters from railroad passenger agents, the tenor of which indicates a most friendly interest in and a willingness to do their share toward making the editorial gathering a success.

A. F. Daley, general passenger agent Colorado Midland, writes from Denver to Mr. Tomson as follows: "I am favored with yours 27th, relative to meeting of Western editors in Salt Lake City August 27th and 28th. We will be very glad indeed to join the other lines in such arrangements as will make your meeting a full and complete success. You certainly have our best wishes and the more newspaper men you can arrange to get to Salt Lake in August the better we will be pleased."

F. H. Foster, of the passenger department of the Burlington lines writes: "I have your letter of the 26th, we today expect to send out the Wisconsin Press association to Colorado and Utah when they are ready. You can rely on the Burlington doing its share toward making your enterprise a success."

K. H. Hooper, G. P. & F. A., Denver & Rio Grande, Writes from Denver: "I have your favor July 26th, and I can assure you that we will give such assistance as we can consistent with our business policy towards making the gathering of editors in Salt Lake City a success. I have already made an arrangement to carry the Wisconsin Press association over our road and in correspondence with them to day on the subject."

L. S. Scott, secretary of the Louisiana Press association writes: "I will promptly take the matter up with our members and within a week or so be able to state how many of them will be able to go."

THE LAST LECTURE.

Commissioner Lewis on the "Duty of the Teacher to the State of Utah."

A very attentive audience listened to an instructive address last evening, by Prof. T. B. Lewis, commissioner of schools for Utah. The subject was, "The duty of the teacher to the State of Utah." Synopsized, the address was as follows:

"What is the duty of the teacher? Negatively speaking, it is not to teach that knowledge found only in books; not to teach the student that desire for position and power stands as the great aim. But that through the school-life of the child the subjects taught should be adapted to his capabilities and activities; the aim of the teacher should be to develop all that is true and noble in manhood and womanhood, to the end that the State may have a generation of law-abiding, progressive and intelligent people. The teacher should be all that he expects his pupils to become—the highest type of the perfect man. Students should be taught that the safety and perpetuity of our new State must rest upon the virtue and progressiveness of an enlightened people. The ethics of society, the principles underlying a strong and stable government, the history and literature of a people, the great lives which have adorned and given tones to a nation—all these should be uppermost in the mind of the successful teacher as of material of necessity and inestimable value. I would, said the speaker, impress upon your minds the fact that moral instruction should accompany instruction which is mental or intellectual. The teacher who lets in the line, loses sight of the true end and aim of education.

While on a trip recently the speaker's attention was directed to a family of well-trained and cultured children, and the whole bearing and relations between the children and parents was that of refinement and humilitene. Examples of this kind should serve as models for the intellectual teacher. While we have a magnificent system of schools in our country, there are many in the ranks of the teaching profession whose place should be filled by those who have a love for the work. Too much should not be expected of the child, although he may be prodigious. Study thoroughly the material with which you have to deal, and under proper guidance you may be able to so direct the child's energies and inclinations as to prepare him for that vocation in life which he is best adapted to fill. Were this course pursued we should have fewer failures in life with their attendant ills.

In closing, a strong appeal was made to prosecute earnestly the work in which the teacher is giving the best years of his life, and by a general concerted movement all along the line the highest success may be achieved.

Reference was made by Prof. Lewis to the successful session of the summer school and also to the work being done in the southern part of the Territory as well as in other portions of Utah. An appreciative word was given for the university relative to the prestige it has gained in the work entrusted to its care.

The lecture was cordially received and rapturously applauded. The commissioner is making a trip through Utah attending the summer schools and delivering lectures.

Closed Today.

The summer school at the University closed a most successful session today, at two o'clock a reception was held and a pleasant hour was spent informally together. Brief speeches were made by the instructors relative to the spirit of industry that had prevailed, and by those in attendance expressing great appreciation of the instruction given. The occasion was an enjoyable one.
