COMMONS AND LORDS

The Queen's Speech Discussed and Criticised in Parliament.

TANNER SUSPENDED FOR A WEEK.

Rosbery's Address in the House of Lords—England's Policy in China and Turkey.

LONDON, Aug. 15—After adjournment the House of Commons met again at 9 o'clock, and the formal business in connection with the queen's speech was disposed of.

Then Sir Richard Webster, Conservative M. P. for the Isle of Wight, director of Campbell's, and formerly attorney general, moved that a committee of the trial and conviction of Michael Daly, the dynamiter who was recently elected to Parliament, representing Limerick, although he was imprisoned in 1884 at Millbank, be engaged in a separate investigation, be instructed by the house, and that the governor of Portland prison present a certificate to the effect that Daly is still a prisoner in his custody.

Mr. John Redmond, member for Waterford City, Parnellite, said that he recognized the motive the Irish party had for bringing alleging wrongdoing in the association election of the electors of Limerick, and he polled against it.

At the conclusion of Mr. Redmond's remarks, Dr. Charles Tanner, Anti-Parnellite, and one of the Whips of the Irish nationalist party, declared that it was astonishing behavior upon the part of the gentleman sitting near his (sir), A. J. Balfour, that lots of the insanity and conservative leaders in the House of Commons to be "conjured up" at Mr. Redmond's remarks.

Sir Richard Webster's motion was then carried by a vote of 259 to 77.

Dr. Tanner created quite a scene. He was hilarously cautioned and fined for a decision to the Day motion was carried, he would find the attention of the House to the undesirable behavior of the gentleman who was the leader of the house, and the gentleman who sits beside him. Cheers followed. Dr. Tanner remarked that when men were old and on their feet for a year and were in prison, then he thought they was gentlemen that ought to be the treasury bench should respect and cheer in a way unbecoming of a gentleman or of members of the house."

Dr. Tanner's remarks were interrupted by loud cries of "Order."

The Daly motion was made the order of the day for Monday.

Mr. Thomas Woodhouse Leigh, member for the south west division of Lancashire, conservative, moved in reply to the queen's speech, that the Irish was not able to entitled to it.

Mr. T. Halliet Roberts, member for Hallifax, conservative, seconded the motion.

Sir William Vernon Harcourt, the leader of the opposition, congratulated Sir Leigh Sir Lonsing upon Arcadia, and said he thanked the queen would be allowed to weep, and that the government would be firm in insisting upon the rule on which it recommended being carried out.

The opposition leader then said he wished to know whether the government intended to permanently occupy Chitral, and challenged the government to say whether it was prepared to adhere the consideration of the empire without referring the Parliament.

In regard to Ireland, Sir William Harcourt remarked that the late government unfortunately was unable to secure the great measure in connection with that country. Ireland, he added, was ever more powerful than now, and was the government wise in withholding for an unstable MOST expressing its intentions in the matter?

Mr. Balfour, the conservative leader, agreed with the opposition leader's remarks in regard to the queen's speech, the government was doing its best to carry out the policy of the Earl of Rosbery, the secretary of state for foreign affairs.

As to Chitral, Mr. Balfour remarked that the right honorable gentleman's criticism for the course of the government in this connection were not well founded. The government has not extended the boundaries of the empire. Chitral being within its boundaries, England is not just perhaps by judgment of a foreign power in that quarter. The problem of Chitral, which to England shows as the great eastern power.

In regard to Ireland, Mr. Balfour said those did not appear to be any pressing reasons to bring forward land legislation before next session. It might be dealt with then.

Mr. Redmond moved an amendment to the address, inviting the queen to declare that there would be no duty in the Irish policy.

Minister Plunket, for the south division of Dublin University, in concerning, said he believed that the time had come, then owing to the changed view of the Irish, a tory government could initiate for Ireland in a spirit of sympathy.

John Dillon said he feared that the unknown shadow of the government would make the life-sentence of Daly, who caught the Irish people to believe that some more rule could be won on the floor of that house.

Mr. Unsell Balfour, chief secretary for Ireland, recognized Mr. Redmond's moderate tone, but reminded him of the great difference between the state of things now and in 1886. He was not going to discuss the result of the election. The land question could only be dealt with by an entirely non-contentious bill, and it would suffice if the bill were introduced next spring. It was unfair to ask the government to secure it in favor of compulsory purchase.

Timothy Harrington promised to give the government a fair trial. In the course of some remarks he declared that the Irish party had "Order" from home rule, whereupon Dr. Tanner shouted out: "A lie."

Loud and indignant cries of "Order" were heard from both sides of the house. Dr. Tanner declining to withdraw the expression. The Speaker, in French Chairman, ordered the gentleman to the minutes, thereupon the house was suspended.

A division was called for, but Dr. Tanner failed to find a teller, and the speaker declared the motion carried.

Upon the speaker declaring the motion carried, Dr. Tanner shouted that he would not stay if he were directed to do so from the chair. Upon retiring he made a courteous bow, and he shouted: "It has great pleasure in so doing than I ever had in entering the dirty house." He is polishing in the treasury bench so shouldst "Yahoo."

This was repeated four times. Arrived at the door, he tried to turn back but was prevented. He last said to be heard "Now to your seats on me." The House then adjourned.

Dr. Tanner's suspension lasts for one week.

IN THE HOUSE OF LORDS.

In the House of Lords, Lord Rosebery, the Marquis of Lansdowne, the Marquis of Ripon, Earl Spencer and Earl Tweedmouth were present when the Duke of Marlborough moved the address in reply to the Queen's speech, supporting it in a speech. The duke said that he was happy Earl Cowper was installed in Dublin as lord lieutenant of Ireland, and expressed the hope that he would continue the policy which the government was carried out by the Right Hon. A. J. Balfour when the latter was chief secretary of Ireland.

Earl Spencer reminded the mover, and said he was confident that if Irish compensations arose there would be a speech at the bar, and he was sure the government would sympathize in Ireland in regard to the land act.

Lord Rosebery congratulated the Duke of Marlborough and Earl Antrim on the also manner in which they had to fill of their task. Referring to the queen's speech, he said the policy adopted in regard to the Bechuanaland was that of the late government, but, he added, was not intended regarding China, and wanted details as to how the conference had resulted. The ex-premier also expressed himself as being certain that Sir Margaret of Salisbury thought it as necessary, as did the late government, to obtain guarantees from the sultan of Turkey against a recurrence of the horrible massacres in Armenia, which the sultan had shown difficulty were terrible, and could not be tolerated. He hoped the government would endeavor to endeavor to secure Central was not effort, as the last government, after careful consideration, had decided to act as a directly opposite conclusion.

Referring the clerical last field, Lord Rosebery said upon the subject of the Irish land question, he hoped the present government was supported by a large majority. The economic, he said, and concluded the speech of the queen's speech, he put into the mouth of a monarch.

The ex-premier who said that though the policy of the liberal party in regard to Ireland, the principles were unchanged. He was not prepared to adapt to it was that the sincerely called for Irish questions. The recent exciting debate on Irish affairs was regrettable, but that words not prevent that the question of self-government for Ireland would have to be granted.

The queen speech, Lord Rosebery concluded, would be found in time to acknowledge that the best means of remaining Irish business to through the Irish.

"I am convinced," he continued, "that you will see home rule excessive, but only to Ireland, but probably to Scotland, and I do not even limit it there."

The Marquis of Salisbury, the prime minister, then rose to reply. He said: "You have heard the speech of the Lord Rosebery and the speech of the Lord Rosebery. Where there is not much to do there is not commonly to spare many words describing what is to be undertaken at this session. The government holds that the abandonment of Chitral is unwise, as a question of morals as well as physical strength. It is useless to allow Lord Rosebery through the wide area of his misgivings. I will not describe our objections in regard to the constitution of the house, or to recent to the abolition of house rule. When we introduce bills touching these matters will be time enough to discuss them."

Regarding the massacres of the Armenians at Ka Cheng, Lord Salisbury said: "I have every reason to believe that the Chinese government is sincerely desirous of punishing the perpetrators of the outrages and those who countenanced them. Should any observance become discretion, it will then become our duty to supply its action.

"With respect to Armenia, we have accepted the policy which our predecessors initiated, and our efforts will be directed to obtaining an adequate guarantee for the carrying out of reforms. We have received assurances from both France and Russia. The permanence of the sultan's rule is involved in the course he pursues. If law cries of the Armenians, the sultan must remain that Europe will become weary of the opposition, and the Ottoman strength which the powers have given the sultan will fail. The sultan will make a calamitous mistake if he refuses to accept the advice of the European powers."

The House of Lords adopted the address in reply to the royal speech.

Lord Salisbury admonished the sultan to remember that he independents is of a very special kind. It is the creature of an agreement, and Europe, which constitutes an Turkey a Bulgaria steadily, has long been uneasy as to the moral orders which the Jhol sultan tolerated. It fears it may be upholding a government which does not work for human happiness and progress, but rather impedes the development of civil and race which have so long been the curse of the Turkish provinces.

"How long the present state of things can continue," the minister continued, "I cannot say, but it appears to me doubtful that it will twenty years ago."

The advice he was tendering, he said, was the advice of a party most friendly to Turkey, the neglect of which will expose the sultan to outrages which no treaties and no alliances will prevent being fatal to the long rule in the empire he rules.

ONE IN A FIRE WITHIN SENSE.

Senator Washburn's Apology to John Sherman's Address.

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 15—A curious incident occurred at Senator Washburn's in which conversation in New York, intended to become a matter of national interest. The senator from Minnesota, and it was alleged that it was during his visit to the election of senator Republican senator to succeed Senator Sherman in Washington, and he made use of a remark in reference to the Republicans of New York last Saturday, to the effect that a man like Aldrich should be elected. When the senator reading here he was interviewed and was asked an explanation. In response to this question Washburn today received the following telegram:

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Aug. 15, 1895.

Senator W. D. Washburn:

Kindly give me the grounds upon which you base your remark that I should be elite.

(Signed) J. SHERMAN ADDICK.

To this the following reply was sent:

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., August 15, 1895.

J. Sherman Addick, Philadelphia:

Telegram just received. Believing you responsible for the defeat of a Republican senator, I expressed myself emphatically as I did to New York, in a very strong, intimating a moral, political rather than physical punishment.

(Signed) W. D. WASHBURN.

The Horror of Sons.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15—The state department has received a dispatch from Minister Terrell in Turkey stating that Sir Clive Bloomfield has been urging the Turkish authorities to permit an investigation of the death of Lorne, the deposed Kalif by the Kurds. Mr. Terrell says he expects to secure a guard of Turkish troops who will accompany Bloomfield into the country of the Kurds for the purpose of recovering the remains of Lorne.

Irishmen Ready to Fight.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Aug. 15—Five thousand Irishmen, representing the United Irish societies of western Pennsylvania, tonight passed resolutions advocating physical force in Irish affairs. Major McKinnon of Pittsburg presided. The convention called for September 25th in Chicago was endorsed, on the ground that it was only intended to advance the political interests of its originators. The resolutions close with the statement that so there are prospects of a European war, all Irishmen should organize and arm themselves so that in an emergency they will be able to strike a blow against their hereditary enemies.

Haunted by His Crime.

TWEED, Ont., Aug. 15—On the 16th of August last Annie Calander, a young English girl, living near Peterboro, disappeared, leaving no trace. Today a strange discovery was made. Edward Dowdell, section foreman at Hartfield station, found under the timbers of a bridge, a few miles east of Tweed, a piece of planked floor about thirteen inches square, on which was written the following statement:

HARTFIELD, April 25—To All Whom it Concerns: This is to certify that I did, on the night of the 16th of August, last, murder Annie Calander, a young English girl, in the little wheelbarrow at Peterboro, and throw piece of floor and railroad iron, I took her dead body to the lake. I did it to hide crime. I feel that God will never forgive me for it. I cannot rest day or night. I would have her body taken up and buried.

"WOMAN'S LIFE CIRCLE."

A Puzzle That Looks Simple, but Who Can Do It?

NOT ONE IN A MILLION.

Here is a PUZZLE. It looks simple. It seems simple. It is simple. Yet not one person in a million can solve it. Perhaps they have been taught how to do it, but the fact remains that they CAN'T DO IT.

While at first blush this may seem of little or no consequence to either man or woman, the reader will presently see that this puzzle illustrates a principle that touches directly upon the life and happiness of every woman, and forms a controlling factor in every professional

CAN YOU DO IT?

The puzzle must be solved with a piece of paper, a pencil, the accompanying hand, and nothing else. It is simply to move up one operation and without lifting the pencil from the paper, [illegible] the woman's peculiar physical "weakness"; and Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery (the great liver, blood and lung remedy) is the first interesting theme now. Different remedies in the old book, and in many pages thereafter, they were and would restore guaranteed or giving entire satisfaction in every case to women they are recommended. We will only mention all the days prior to calling the wonderful medicines that weaknesses for which they are recommended, that claims for the relief of money paid for them were exceedingly rare.

But since their manufacture can now refer to thousands of actual cures effected by them in every part of the land, and in many foreign countries, they believe their patronage sufficient guarantee of their good value in curative agents; therefore, they now rest the claims of the remedies for confidence of the million always against that record. It is proven that an overnight statement is considered one is not prepared to proceed by those statement recently, as Dr. Pierce himself, and his trained staff of professional assistants, will always be treated by letter, and all who wish to know from their curative practice, where has more than experts, can want advising link to supply.

circles like that shown in Figure 1. You may be able to make one such circle by sections, but if you think you can make twenty in a day, in a week, or in a month, just try it and get your thanks in by. Ten circles must not be like Figure 2, but like Figure 1. You will soon find that it is not merely a matter of "know how," for everybody knows how. It is a case of "know how" mentioned with "never tell." Not one of the hundred young men who were college graduates can do it. Not even the one who carried off the highest honors. The one who can do it is

ONE AMONG MILLIONS.

He began just the same as everybody else did, by learning how to draw. But he's an inventor of his economy; he makes a specialty of drawing circles; he has been drawing them all his life, and practice makes perfect. Give any woman a lesson and show, give a man a lesson review, and she or he may sometimes be the target and possibly the mark, but the point, the point! Have you seen the mark? This frequent claim, not only to target practice, but to everything else, is due to the fact that not one person in a million makes it the specialty of one thing—the thing he can do best—and keep right on making a specialty of it until he becomes perfect.

A PAGE DRESSMAKER.

There is a woman dressmaker in Paris who for thirty years has been called the world over. Not once in a thousand times does she fail to give a perfect fit, yet she never has made a silk night suit for her husband, and—made a failure. It was a case of not knowing how, but as she was, in a general way, a good dressmaker, and had learned how to draw, yet, let as she would, she couldn't even make a night shirt for her husband that would fit, any more than she could draw a circle that was perfect.

A GREAT LAWYER.

Daniel Webster, who was probably the greatest constitutional lawyer that ever lived, was once completely floored in a patent case by a lawyer who made a specialty of such cases. The "know how" is the proper point to start from, but it is the practice—the daily, hourly, constant practice—that makes perfect. The woman who has one night shirt to make in thirty years cannot be expected to sight shirts, any more than the lawyer who has one patent case in six months can be an expert in patent cases. The doctor who is called upon once a week, once a month, or, perhaps only in six months, to treat cold, that, or the other complicated disorder may succeed once in a great while, if nature comes to the rescue, but he will usually fail, notwithstanding the fact that he has studied medicine, just as the lawyer has studied law and the woman has studied dressmaking. The same and reason why it is that practice makes perfect.

EXPERIENCE NEEDED.

It is upon this theory, this principle, this practice, that the greatest and most successful health institution in America is founded. For nearly thirty years, eight hundred and skilled physicians, connected with this institution, have made a specialty of curing the ailments and diseases peculiar to women. Where the ordinary practitioner meets one such case, the skilled specialists of this institution treat two of thousands, and what is regarded by the medical world as a difficult case, one that puzzles his brain and baffles skill, is as simple of treatment and as sure of being cured in this institution as the drawing of the perfect circle is to that one man in a million. This is another instance where practice makes perfect. It is a case where one man can do what 10,000 other men cannot do, although they have learned how.

One reason why women suffers in silence, agonies which would make a coward of the strongest man, is because her husband merely causes her to shrink from the ordeal of submitting to medical examination and the view and "local treatment." When, finally, torture drives her to seek advice, she unfortunately, only too often falls into a trade that lack the care, skill or knowing that "perfect circle" upon which her peace of mind, her happiness, and her life depend. Instead of the treatment that means thousands of cures a certainty and failures a most unusual occurrence, she receives that which makes failure certainty and the case a more aggravated.

A VERY EXPERIENCE.

After having treated, year after year, many thousands of cases of women's ailments, Dr. R. V. Pierce, other consulting physician (called Vallie's Hotel and that Institute of Buffalo, N. Y.) learned not only the perfect medicine with which to cure their cases, the absolutely reliable one, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, but also the perfect method of treatment, which, when combined with the medicine, makes a cure certain. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery (the great liver, blood and lung remedy) is the first interesting theme now. Different remedies in the old book, and in many pages thereafter, they were and would restore guaranteed or giving entire satisfaction in every case to women they are recommended. We will only mention all the days prior to calling the wonderful medicines that weaknesses for which they are recommended, that claims for the relief of money paid for them were exceedingly rare.

But since their manufacture can now refer to thousands of actual cures effected by them in every part of the land, and in many foreign countries, they believe their patronage sufficient guarantee of their good value in curative agents; therefore, they now rest the claims of the remedies for confidence of the million always against that record. It is proven that an overnight statement is considered one is not prepared to proceed by those statement recently, as Dr. Pierce himself, and his trained staff of professional assistants, will always be treated by letter, and all who wish to know from their curative practice, where has more than experts, can want advising link to supply.

MARVELOUS LETTERS.

Mrs. Anna Hutchins, of Cranford, N. Jersey, writes: "Words fail to describe my sufferings before I took Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and Dr. Pierce's Pellets. I suffered so much from the time I was a little girl, and was confined to my bed. My complaints was peculiar, my eyes sunken, and my whole system was a complete wreck. I suffered greatly from headaches, and thought of food would sicken me. Now I can eat anything and at any time, every one thought I would not live through the month of August. Two of my neighbors are using your medicines, and say they feel like new beings."

PROGRESSIVE MOTHERS READ.

Mrs. Fanny Hunt, of Greenville, N. Y., says: "I read about Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription before I was a mother with relief, so I got two bottles last September, and December 15th I had a healthy, robust baby girl. When I was confined I took one bottle and in any dose. I did not suffer any pain, and when the child was born I felt as well as I ever felt in my life. It was very well and strong, and my room was very cold, but I did not take any cold, and never had any sickness or ache since. It was all done so easily and Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. This is the eighth being sold and the legion of those who have used everything that they could suffer with the other babies. I always had a doctor, and then my child not help me very much, but this time my mother and my husband were alone with me.

"My baby was only seven days old when I got up and dressed, and left my room, and stayed an all day."

DOCTORS FAILED.

Mrs. William Hooper, of Bellville, Hunterdon Co., Ohio, writes as follows: "I had been a great sufferer from female weakness. I tried three doctors, they did no good. I thought I was as bad off as ever. I read a book of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and his Favorite Prescription, and tried a few bottles, and he said I am just fine. I was in bed, I had passed last Christmas, and I lack eight months. I now feel entirely well. I walked down all my feet and a short time, and I can do my work. I am a family of five. My little girl has a very bad cough for a long time. She took Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and is quite well."

Any woman, anywhere, who is tired of suffering, tired of dreaming, or tired of life, who will write Dr. Pierce, or to the World's Dispensary Medical Association of Buffalo, N. Y., of which he is President, will receive, free of charge, good, sound, professional advice that will enable her to cure herself at home (if her case is curable) pleasantly, painlessly, permanently, and life, too, without having to undergo the lying ordeal of "local treatment" and the sickening and abhorrent treatment by "local specialists."

A GREAT BOOK FREE.

When Dr. Pierce published the first edition of his work, The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, he announced that after thirty-six years had been sold at the regular price, $1.50 per copy, the profit of which would repay him for the great amount of labor and money expended in producing it, he would distribute the next half million free. As the number of copies has already been sold, he is now distributing, absolutely free, 50,000 copies of the same complete, interesting and valuable common sense work, cloth covered, 1000 pages, illustrated and with 700 illustrations. It contains over 1000 pages and more than 700 illustrations. Several family illustrated chapters are devoted to the careful consideration in plain language, of diseases peculiar to women, and their successful treatment without the aid of a physician and without having to submit to dreaded "examinations" and the dreaded and "local application," so repulsive to the modest and to all sensitive women. The free edition is precisely the same as that sold at $1.50 except only that the books are bound in strong manila paper covers instead of cloth. Send now before all are gone. They are going off rapidly, therefore do not delay sending immediately if in want of one.
