passenger on the eastern express this morning bound for Washington. He came direct from Pine Ridge agency, and will report the condition of the Indians there to Secretary Noble. Trouble is brewing among the Indians at the agency, said he, and it is my firm belief that they will soon start another crusade against the whites. They have been among them some time, and when I left there a few days ago they were sullen and at times very ugly, making open threats against the whites. Were it not for the fact that they depend largely on the government for food, fuel and clothing for the winter they would rise in arms almost any moment. They are again talking of the "Messiah", and it will not be long until the ghost dance will again be resumed.

The Russian Jew Persecution Question.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—The House committee on foreign affairs has notified Congressman Morse to appear before them next Thursday, when the resolution upon the subject of Russian Jew persecution will be considered.

Reindeer for Alaska.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8. — Senator Teller intends to push during Congress, the bill to be introduced providing for the introduction of reindeer into the possessions of the United States in Alaska and adjacent islands.

Blaine Well Again.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8. — Secretary Blaine has recovered from his recent illness and spent two hours this afternoon at the White House in conference with the President and the Cabinet. He shows no symptoms of illness or weakness.

Cuts and Fees.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—The Herald's Valparaiso special says: Foreign Minister Pereira paid an official visit to Minister Egan today. Their meeting was most cordial, and the mutual hope was expressed that the difficulties between the two countries would be speedily settled.

Prices in the exchanges are receding, owing to the suspension of nitrate shipments from Iquique.

Minister of Finance Vergara has made a proposition that the President be authorized to borrow £5,000,000 from the banks for a year, to meet the current expenses and maintain the gold balance in the Bank of England to meet the Chilean bonds. He proposes to provide for the interest on this sum by the sale of the silver bars taken away by the British ship "Eslogel."

ODD SORT OF SLAVERY.

SECURING GOVERNMENT LABORERS IN MADAGASCAR.

A Terrible Form of Employment That Keeps Over the Head of Every Man, Government—What "Conscription" Means to a Barbarous People.

Not only is slavery universal throughout Madagascar, but also is there a still more gigantic evil, and one which is even more surely crushing the manhood and sapping the life of that curious and beautiful country.

"Conscription," or forced labor, has a prison ships. It may best be understood by describing it as patterning after some of the corvée. It is also applied to conscription, to all kinds of government service; it is part of the feudal system, and it even sometimes takes the shape of a "begging tax." It would be subject to the whole old man who resides over the destinies of the people of that country if it were not stated that he has more than once considered a plan by which it might be modified and reformed. But the system is too deeply woven into the inner life of the nation to be dealt with except by a master hand, and then only with the assistance of outside and friendly financial support. For instance, it is one of the main characteristics of Europeans that it supplies the place of the payment of officials throughout the island. In fact, in all Madagascar no secretary, clerk, artisan, soldier or civilian serving the government in whatever capacity (with the exception of a trifling pecuniary reward for some of the chief officers of districts) is paid or even fed by the state. "The queen honors them by employing them" is the official explanation given and they must feed and clothe themselves. But when loyalty takes the shape, as it constantly does, of carrying two weights of wood, iron or stone on raw and bleeding shoulders, along goat tracks (for roads there are none) through swamps and forests, up and down hills 5,000 feet high, then the additional stimulus of shackles and leg irons is needed to persuade the poor captured peasant that on the whole he had better accept the "honor," half starved though he must be.

SLAVES OF THE QUEEN.

If he runs away he brings punishment on his family, and becomes a fugitive and a bushranger; the numerous robber bands are mainly recruited from such runaways. Hundreds of instances could be cited, especially within the past twelve months, to show that this tyranny is becoming more and more unsupportable.

In the first place all the land in Madagascar, with the exceptions of few acres, belongs nominally to the queen, but actually to the government. At the present moment and for many years past the government is and has been completely controlled and thoroughly ruled by the prime minister, Rainilaiarivony, who besides his original wife has married two successive queens of Madagascar. Fortunately for himself and his family his rule has, on the whole, been wise as well as vigorous. In the Imerina expedition, out of tens of thousands of peasants who were commanded, assembled, and even partially drilled throughout the country, only about 2,000 could be actually held hold of, and a few months of fever and numerous fractions quickly reduced this number. Similarly in the alluvial gold fields, which are being worked by forced labor upon the enormous nominal royalty of 25 per cent, the profit, 75 per cent, is divided among the foreign shareholders, directors and superintendents, immense exertions have to be constantly made to keep up the supply of forced labor.

TALENT UNDER A BUSHEL.

Thus it comes about that this most important branch of the national wealth is not abandoned. Here, as elsewhere, serfdom spells poverty.

Again, in the case of craftsmen and artificers, Madagascar possesses and could produce plenty of men whose talent would compare favorably with that of almost any people in the world. But the moment they show proficiency in art they are "Fanompoa-ed," that is, they are honored by being employed by the government or by some powerful official, without wage and without food. A clever craftsman, from whom you buy a work of art, in whatever metal, has you had to say from whom you purchased it, solely for fear of the "honor" which would be in store for him. So if you want a good blacksmith, carpenter or jeweler you must not search for him among the tradesmen of his own craft, but the clever jeweler is found among the weaverman, and so on, in assuming "fanompoa" of industry. The queen honors "Rainibe" or "Bontoo" by taking him away from his rice fields just in the season when his labor and superviseon are most required for his crop, for the unfortunate "freeman," who is not allowed to send his slave as his substitute—much the grandeur of the distinction conferred upon him—is compelled, by hook, even to his penultimate dollar, if he desires to procure exemption from the honor.—Fortnightly Review.

A Problem in Mathematics.

A vessel divided into "forty-two thirty-seconds" was discovered at the custom house when the official papers of the schooner H. C. Moseley were being changed from a registered to a coasting craft. Forty-two owners were marked on the papers, each owning a thirty-second part of the craft. What to do about the matter puzzled the captain very much, but he finally decided that he had sole only for largest vessel under the American flag but the biggest in the world.—Philadelphia Record.

Fashion in Pill Boxes.

You saw the customer ahead of you. You heard him ask what sort of pills he was are using this season. There is a fashion in pill boxes the same as in hats and bonnets and parasols. Some years the round pill box of the olden times is the rage. Then we have the oblong box and the box which has a drawer in it. There is a variety of shapes in these boxes. Some women buy you in one color all season, and others change from one to another every time they buy pills, putting the pills into the box which is all the go. A woman said lately a lot of capsules because the box was blue, when the fashionable shade is pink. Those things do not cost much even as some are, but in the parlor drug stores in the small towns they have to observe these shades in the letter.—Pharmacist in Chicago Tribune.

How to Be Happy with Your Mother-in-law.

If a man be well supplied with money and his mother-in-law be a reasonable woman they will usually get along without any trouble. But sometimes even sensible persons meeting this relationship to one another will clash. When you find that this is likely to be a disagreeable, and if you wish to avoid it, don't make the mistake of entering into an argument of the subject. Talk, when a man and woman disagree, usually medal matters pro. The best way to do is to agree to disagree. You can have your own way just as much without a proclamation as with one. When your mother-in-law makes a plan for your family which does not please you don't adopt it, but don't talk about it. If one of her plans be good do not reject it because it is hers. Firmness without discussion will bring any mother-in-law to a proper condition of subjection. Why there should be a natural antagonism between mothers and sons-in-law it is impossible to say, but there is no doubt of it. Tact and consideration on the part of the son will nearly always overcome this. Tact and consideration, but there are some women with whom to get along smoothly requires that a man should have, to quote M. Bourse de Balzac, "the wit of a young page and the wisdom of an old devil."—Boston Globe.

Are Turkeys Pets?

In reply to a recently reported query Fanny Field replies thus in her recent book on poultry: "I started out to raise turkeys and to make them pay, and after I got the hang of the turkeys' disposition and constitution, and learned how to treat them, mental and physical needs, I did make them pay. And now, from my own experience, I can truthfully say that when the work is thoroughly done and the business wisely managed there is no more profitable fowl than that pays so well in proportion to the investment of time, labor and capital as raising turkeys for market. To win a good money thereby, but never yet met one who had ever tried it who would say it would not sell at good paying prices. And besides, Thanksgiving is not the only time when market turkeys are in demand. Fine early fall and late spring the city markets call for turkeys, and as the supply of fine clean turkeys has never yet been equal to the demand, I hardly think it will pay to lose any sleep through fear of not being able to sell our turkeys after we have grown them."

Early Chickens.

At one of the New Jersey farmers' institutes a practical woman poultry keeper declared that "it is now universally admitted that the best time to hatch chickens, if they are to be ready for market, is the last month of the hatching of early chickens. I have not been successful with chickens hatched in March. Avoid making the food too warm. I have not succeeded with incubators, but have had good success with brooders."

Some Convenient Forms of Racks.

The accompanying cuts have been reproduced from Popular Science News illustrate the various ways in which a rope may be quickly and firmly attached to objects of varying size and weight, and are self explanatory.

VARIOUS WAYS A ROPE MAY BE TIED.

The knot represented in Fig. 1 is firm enough for a light stick of timber or similar object, while Figs. 2, 3 or 4 can be used where a slackening is required. Figs. 5 and 6 show two methods of securing a barrel, either horizontally or vertically, while for a flag or such the efficient fastening shown in Fig. 7, or the simpler one shown in Fig. 8, will be found secure and convenient. All these knots are so easy to make from a single piece of rope, and their construction will be evident from an inspection of the engravings.

For Cost, of Butter.

Somebody with a head for figures has been to the trouble to count on how much butter to the hundred pounds of milk is produced on an average by the creameries in different parts of the world. The result is given in the following table. If the figures are correct, then Manitoba can get more butter out of 100 pounds of milk:

Manitoba	4.75
Quebec	4.50
United States	4.25
Ontario	4.00
All Canada	3.50

A Plan That Failed.

Fledgeley—I see that how knots in jewelry are very fashionable.

Greenhilm—Does knots have always been fashionable.

And she thought she heard the dull thud of the setting sun, as the young man showed no signs of intelligence.—Jewelers' Circular.

My Nerves Are All Right

And I have gained 10 pounds in 2 months, as the result of taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, says Mr. S. H. Ross of the firm of Ross & Kemp, Kingston, Ont. "I feel almost

Chronic Dyspepsia

My digestion being very bad, and I was troubled much more constant so that I could not sleep rather, but my stomach is now in perfect condition, and I can eat the above bread as quantity as does Hood's Sarsaparilla."

"Water-Brash

And irritation treated me for 10 years, and after trying various things I concluded to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. The effect is marvelous. Some days they run in one color all season, and I have known women who took upon their pills being put into the box which is all the go. A woman said lately a lot of capsules because the box was blue, when the fashionable shade is pink. Those things do not cost much even as some are, but in the parlor drug stores in the small towns they have to observe these shades in the letter.—Pharmacist in Chicago Tribune.

Indigestion
