OGDEN.

OGDEN, UTAH, - NOV. 23, 1894.

Funeral of William English.

It was a grief-stricken congregation that assembled in the First ward meeting house yesterday afternoon at the funeral services of Elder William English, who met with the fatal accident at the depot on last Wednesday. The services were conducted by Bishop Moroni F. Brown. The ward choir, assisted by a good representation of the tabernacle choir of which he was a member, rendered most beautiful and impressive music. Consoling remarks were made by Elders A. Jackson, W. Porter, W. Critchlow, H. E. Gibson, H. Manning and Bishop Brown. Very telling was his many virtues, his pure life and noble manhood. Elder English had proved himself a faithful Latter-day Saint. He was taken away in the prime of manhood, having been born June 22, 1853, at Kensington lane, Dutchess, England. He was baptized at Manchester January 20, 1869, by Elder Ben E. Rich. The year following, with his family, he emigrated to Utah, making his home in Ogden. He leaves a widow and six children with a host of loving friends to mourn his loss.

Old Comrades.

General Lew Wallace stopped over to pay his old friend and comrade, General Kimball, a visit. They served in the Mexican war and that of the Rebellion together. In a three hours' interview they together went over their many hard-fought battles again. General Kimball was much delighted with the visit of his old friend.

PARK CITY.

PARK CITY, UTAH, - NOV. 23, 1894.

AMONG THE HILLS.

Visitors to Park City—Heavy Ice Storage—General Items of Business.

During the week Park City has entertained a larger number of noted men, than have been in the city for many a day. Monday, General Manager McGregor of the Utah Central brought into town by special train Elmer Mallinkrodt of the New York Tribune, Editor Cornell of the Commercial Advertiser, J. J. Day, C. L. Hagaman, J. S. Clarkson and son, and several others. They were met at the train by H. C. Chase and David Keith, who escorted them up to the Ontario mine, where dinner at an elaborate preparation was laid out. The entire party was taken through the works of the Ontario, Daly, and Daly-West, and preparations were made to take them through the Anchor and Silver King, but the time of the visit was entirely too short. The visitors expressed their astonishment at the magnitude of the mines, and mills, to land out for more extensive operations. At present about 45 men are employed at that property.

The ore shipments from the various mines have been lively during the week and bullion shipment to San Francisco has been heavy. The heaviest shipper in the sampling mill during the week has been the Daly-West with first class ore, and the Anchor with concentrates.

The days have been very pleasant during the entire week; the nights have been exceedingly cold.

The ice ponds below the city are being put in first class shape preparatory to a large business during the winter in the storage of ice. It is expected that about three times the usual amount will be put in. Both edifices were loaded down with rich specimens of the various ores, and Editor Mallinkrodt declared that the logging amount of ore heavy a load would surely make him bow legged. The party returned to the city on the special leaving here at 3 p.m. All were delighted with the visit, and promised at some future time to come for a longer stay.

Another large party arrived in the camp on Wednesday, headed by W. McCulloch. The business bringing them to camp was the annual meeting of the directors of the Anchor company.

Col. Nicholas Trawerk, general manager of the Alliance, came out the morning with the intention of remaining a few days, or until the work at the Alliance put up this year, in anticipation of the great demand of Salt Lake consumers. The Summit Ice company is erecting at its place one of the largest ice houses in the country. It proposes also to store a large amount in Salt Lake.

Amusements of all kinds at the various halls and churches are of mighty resources, but the chief attraction is the free show given by the patent medicine man at one of the halls, where a large crowd usually gathers.

A considerable number of deer has been brought in the market during the week, and hunters report game to abundance in the mountains near here.

The report of the Smelter combine is received here with favor, as the miners look upon this as the first great step in unloading the prices of silver and lead, and also expresses the hopefulness the combine, if sure to stay be called, will soon regulate the price of silver instead of allowing that to be done in London.

Altogether everybody here feels better times coming and continue to hurry them along.

The work of erecting the electric light plant at the mouth of the Ontario tunnel is progressing rapidly, and a large force of men is employed in getting up the poles and wires. On side of furnishing the light for the mines and mills, knowing now say that it will be but a very short time until the entire lighting of the city will be done by the water power of the tunnel mouth.

The laying of the pipes of the new water system is still progressing and leaving behind in the streets in a very bad condition.

Thursday morning the Utah Central took out of Park City a special train carrying about 125 men to Salt Lake to attend the funeral of Mr. Ward, the Silver King man who was hurt at the mine a week ago. The management of King shut down the mine for a day to allow all who wished to do so to attend the funeral. The Park City band accompanied the delegation.

Several enterprising young men are busy at work preparing a skating pond near the center of the city.

A runaway which came near being a very serious one happened Thursday evening on Park avenue, in which J. C. Waite, the lumber owner, sustained a broken leg, and had several serious cuts on the head. The horse was frightened by a slight object in the road, and before Mr. Waite knew what was the matter, the horse gave a sudden turn, spilling the buggy, and throwing Waite violently on the pitch sidewalk. The doctor says that with a few weeks' careful nursing the injured will mend. And will not have any serious deformity in the leg.

There is some talk at present of establishing a Democratic paper, but it is doubtful whether the scheme will advance to more than talk at present.

The Union Pacific pay car was in town during the week paying off employees at this end of the road.

The people of Park City are in hopes that the agreement which has been in force nearly a year between the Rio Grande Western and Union Pacific railroads will not be renewed after Jan. 1st, 1895, as this agreement puts the people of Park City at the mercy of the Union Pacific, as no competition can be had on through freight and passenger.

Considerable building and repair work is going on at present, and the people are hopeful of a better winter than was experienced last year.
