OGDEN.

Identified the Body—Damage by Snowslide.

Special Correspondence.

Ogden City, March 4.—The body of one man found at Fort-West last Wednesday has probably been identified as that of a man who was recently arrested in Ogden for begging and acting very queerly, about ten days ago. At the station he gave the name of Peter And Cobrobers.

SNOWSLIDE IN OGDEN CANYON.

A snow slide in Ogden canyon Thursday afternoon tore up a section of the conduit of the pipe line belonging to the Ogden Power company, but did not damage the pipe itself. Men are at work replacing the protection.

LEHI.

Beet Sugar Industry Booming—To Be Large Enough for Old Factory.

Special Correspondence.

Lehi, March 3.—Mr. M. M. Ingalls, chief engineer of the Utah Sugar Co., returned from the East last evening, where he and Mr. Valles have been for the past month in the interest of the Utah Sugar factory. He reports all manufacturing industries back there in a flourishing condition, especially the metal industries, as they are unable to fill orders as the orders received.

The beet sugar industry, he said, is booming. Applications coming in by thousands. Capital is plenty, the holders of the Utah Sugar factory, from different sections of the East asking them to bid on the remaining factories, and have already signed contracts to erect two factories this coming season, one at Rupert, Idaho, and the other at Grand Junction, Colorado. Bay City has already one factory in operation, and the foundation is being laid for another just across the road from the first one. Messrs. E. H. Dyer & Co. are also contemplating two factories to be built this summer, but on account of the fluctuation in the beet markets, they are not in a position to get the necessary material to build any more.

The factory here, he said, has made a splendid run for the first year, partly on account of having so many track machines in that locality, which were capable of furnishing them with the necessary amount and quality of beets, more so than those in Southern Utah, the farmers down there have to be educated in raising this crop, and also other problems in the beet sugar industry, which Utah farmers have long since learned. Strawberries being sold last season at 10 cents per bushel, they certainly put their hand into beets, realized that it would be a great deal more than any other crop.

Superintendent Valles will return on Sunday next, he having stopped over at Rock Springs for a couple of days. He stated that the Union Pacific would send all the necessary machinery, that could not be had in Utah, to repair and release some men, who had been drafted into the Philippines.

While in the East visiting factories, etc., Mr. Ingalls said that he and Mr. Valles had learned many points that will prove profitable to the Utah Sugar Factory.

Last evening the returned missionaries of this ward held their second reunion in the Stake building. At 6 o'clock about 125 people sat down to a fine supper that had been prepared by said returned missionaries, after a partaking of the meal the evening was spent in dancing, relating missionary experiences, and in singing. The evening was spent very enjoyably and the party broke up about 11 o'clock.

FARMINGTON.

Important Suit to Determine Ownership of Irrigating Waters—News Miscellany.

Special Correspondence.

Farmington, March 3.—Judge Bishop has been occupied during the preliminary form of court business with the case of Bountiful Mill Creek Irrigation Co. vs. Thos. Eggett, Mary Senior Walker, executrix, John Lewis et al.

Plaintiffs bring suit as owners jointly for water rights to the extent of over 1,700 acres of land for irrigation, domestic and culinary purposes of the whole of Bountiful City, from the stream of water east of Bountiful City, for more than fifty-five years, in regular succession, without interruption or otherwise interfering with any of the waters of Mill Creek, or any of its tributaries.

It seems that defendant Eggett in 1881 entered upon the same of government land adjoining on either side Mill Creek and has since 1887, appropriated water from the stream and by means of ditches and pipes conveyed it to his premises, and having been in uninterrupted and peaceful possession since that time, now claims ownership to such water by right of prescription, and that plaintiffs' remedy is barred by the statute of limitations, particularly of section 2688 of the Revised Statutes.

The case against Mr. Lewis is practically the same, he having located a homestead extending up and down Mill Creek, and at the mouth of what is commonly known as Bear Hollow, and he also claims a prescriptive ownership of the water diverted and used by him, having enjoyed the peaceable and uninterrupted use of the same since the spring of the year 1886. The defendant also claims all the waters which he has taken from Kinsey creek below a ditch and dam built by the defendant Walker through having opened up springs from which all that water flows.

The Walker people claim to have developed springs in Kinsey Creek canyon and thus increased the flow of water in that canyon, which surplus or increase they have allowed to flow into Mill Creek and then proceed to divert down the stream to the land owned by them, and claim that plaintiffs have acquiesced in and consented to such process and use of the waters, for a sufficient number of years to establish a prescriptive right of ownership in the defendants, and ask for a decree to that effect.

A great many witnesses were examined, principally for the plaintiffs.

The following orders were made for Judge Bishop while presiding this term of court:

The Grande Railway company vs. Kaysville City and J. B. Jarman, city treasurer; motion to retax costs sustained.

L. T. Shressler vs. R. W. Dunyy; motion for judgment.

Forum-pipe Gold Mining company vs. Harvey Hunt and Jesse Cooper; Mining company, bill of exceptions settled and approved.

John Smith vs. North Canyon Water company; motion to retax costs denied.

The Grande Western Railroad company vs. Kaysville City et al; Stipulation of facts and dismissal; bill of exceptions settled and approved.

Gray vs. Brown; demurrer overruled. Twenty days allowed to answer.

Estate of Orlando Leonard; order of sale of real estate.

Estate of Hiram D. Robinson, who has been absent from Farmington for two years on a foreign mission, returned today.

The Sacramento son of Mrs. Ruth Secrist, of Centerville, was buried today. Deceased, a little boy, was kicked in the head last winter by a horse. He had always fully recovered from that, and was playing ball when carried in the wounded part of the head, and he died a few days thereafter.

The sympathy of the community goes out to the sorrowing mother, who only a short time since buried her husband.

VERNAL.

Pneumonia is Prevalent—Freight Blockade Causes Annoyance.

Vernal, March 2.—Hon. William G. Hill was summoned by telegraph from Salt Lake City on account of the critical condition of his daughter, arrived here last night late by special conveyance from Price. Mr. O'Neil remained during the day by the bedside of his daughter, who is so far recovered now that she is considered out of danger.

Mr. O'Neil, who is naturally anxious to be in attendance at the Legislature, left this morning on the return trip.

Pneumonia has claimed another victim, this time Mr. Jesse Bates, recently of Kansas, who died at an early hour yesterday morning. Mr. Bates had been here but a few days, and was at present employed on the Dodge ranch with the disease, and he—like a few others before him—would die, but Mr. Bates is now in a fair way to recovery. Great sympathy is felt for him in his bereavement.

A young son of President E. S. Dunkin has been very sick with the same disease, also Albert Harris, but both are somewhat better at present.

This warm weather, scarce as it is to the farmer, is causing us and all outside people who know men, who will have to hustle themselves and get their sleep in water as the snow is nearly all gone.

J. T. McConnell started today for the Asbestos mines on Indian Creek. The mines, it is said, contain the owners of the deposit intend to expend considerable money in development and development work on the mine.

The Vernal and Fort Duchesne Telephone company are contemplating a line to the ranch of the sons of S. D. Cutlon & Co., and have made a great improvement in the service by putting in a good long distance phone. The public will appreciate the improvement.

Some of the merchants here feel indignant at the way in which they are discriminated against in the matter of freight rates. Although Price is but three hours by a month and while freight in one car costs Vernal through Price to Salt Lake and leaves behind for two or three weeks, the Vernal freight still hangs in the cars.

Some are indulging in crazy strong talk of extending the Union Pacific, and of building a road from Vernal to the lands of the Rio Grande Western.

NEPHI.

The Old Folks are Dampened Three in the Final Manner.

Special Correspondence.

Nephi, March 1.—The first day of March, President Wilford Woodruff's natal day, was selected by the committee of the old folks as a fitting time to hold its festival. The gathering was held in the Nephi ward meeting house. At noon over two hundred persons sat down and enjoyed a bountiful repast; tables were set in the table was fest class and kind writers do all they could to serve well the old folks. There were not over 40 years, who received a white badge; forty were decorated with a blue badge, signifying that they were over 70, and thirty-three received the red badge, being over 85 years.

The afternoon and evening were so happy and social a company as we came together in Nephi. There were fifteen present who had seen the Prophet Joseph Smith.

When all were seated at the table a prayer was read by Bishop Sarah A. Canner, noted for the occasion. Apostle George Teasdale offered prayer; thanksgiving and blessing upon the bounties were poured down and the company seated, the following program was much enjoyed: President A. W. Pratt, chairman of the committee, addressed an address of welcome. Song, Altogether Happy Again, by Mrs. Ruth A. Canner. Judge Higgins delivered an excellent address. Music by the band. Recitation by Rosie Pendleton, entitled The Lady Bildergard. Piano solo, The Old Oaken Bucket, by Prof. Ridges. T. H. Taylor then entertained the company with a selection on his phonograph graphophone. Other Joe was nicely rendered by Sarah Dorius. Song, Tell Me of the Old Folks, by Mary Morgan. Isaac Sopely recited "Latter-day Wit." An original poem was read by Langley H. Bailey, entitled The Old Folks. Joe Blackett recited The Old and the Gay. Apostle George Teasdale gave an encouraging address.

MORGAN.

Banqueting the Old Folks.

Special Correspondence.

Morgan, March 1.—Wednesday, March 1, was a gala day for the old folks of the First ward in Morgan City. In spite of the rough weather, nearly all of the honored guests (those over 70) responded to the call and were taken in the hack from town. Music was rendered by the Eddington orchestra, singing by the Old Folks' choir, and speeches by Bishop Lang and others were made by many of the veterans. Step dancing was a feature of the program. The hall was crowded, and it seemed to every one as if the nobility might be proud to sit down to, and the way the waters which he has taken from Kinsey creek below a ditch and dam built by the defendant Walker through having opened up springs from which all that water flows.

The Walker people claim to have developed springs in Kinsey Creek canyon and thus increased the flow of water in that canyon, which surplus or increase they have allowed to flow into Mill Creek and then proceed to divert down the stream to the land owned by them, and claim that plaintiffs have acquiesced in and consented to such process and use of the waters, for a sufficient number of years to establish a prescriptive right of ownership in the defendants, and ask for a decree to that effect.

SCIENTIFIC MISCELLANY.

Hot-Air Spraying in Therapeutics—Stop Hiccoughs—Dry Bandages Free—Who Sold Alcohol in The Pharmacopeia—Lighting by Carbonic Rays—Colored Light and the Weather—The Electric Fluid—Cure for Hiccoughs—Substitute for Alcohol.

A simple method of applying hot air for the relief of some pain has been described by Dr. Wm. Taylor, an English physician. The air is heated artificially, and driven by a fan over a spiral of fine tubes, which is placed in the painful part. The application is continued until the skin becomes blanched and blistering follows. Sciatica has been effectually treated in this way at Bath, and in one case, the spraying of a badly decayed tooth was stopped in five minutes and did not return for eight months, while other dental remedies have been cured by the current of hot air.

Hiccoughs from blast-furnace slag. Herr F. W. Lawrence, chemist to the Krupp at German works, as use as 11,38 per ton. The Pfeil slag, being an absolutely amorphous product, is quite porous, which granulates it, and the bricks are compressed without burning, hardening in 6 to 8 days when the proper time is added. The granulation increases the permeability to air to five times that of the original slag, and the resulting bricks are secure inch, and resist high temperatures.

The newly-discovered planet 1894—remarkable for its orbit, which approaches the earth more than that of any other planet—has been named Eros. A search of Harvard college library photographs has shown this interesting body on plates of 1894 and 1896, with a motion of 1° 20' 20" in a movement for more than four months. At its nearest approach in 1894, the planet reached the seventh magnitude.

The solidified alcohol, which is finding from medicine, is made into a tin container, intended to serve as a pocket lamp and stove, is reported to contain approximately 40 per cent of alcohol, 4 of wax, and 28 of water. A similar product is readily made by dissolving scrapped tallow soap in warm alcohol.

The first pharmacopoeia issued by governments, appeared in 1542, and has been that of Nuremberg in 1546. National pharmacopeias, translations the pharmacopeia of Nuremberg, have been issued for the Argentine Republic, Austria, Belgium, Chili, Denmark, France, Germany, Great Britain, Greece, Holland, Hungary, India, Japan, Mexico, Norway, Portugal, Russia, Spain, Sweden and the United States. In all of these countries, the United States being a notable exception, the works are issued by the authority of the government and have the force of law in their instructions. The United States pharmacopeia is issued by a convention representing the medical and pharmaceutical societies, and is revised decennially, the time for a new edition being now near at hand. Universal pharmacopeias have been attempted, thus far without official recognition. The lack of uniformity of nomenclature and standards is a serious difficulty, the greatest attaching to the tinctures and extracts, which are so variously prepared in different countries that the pharmacist is forced to dilute any one of several different preparations of roots, bark, or leaves. The latest commission to revise the international pharmacopeia was just been appointed by the Brussels Royal Academy of Medicine. The task of the international work is now seriously for, and it is hoped to make it practicable by drafting some of the more common and enviable medicines to which the custom of each country has given special force.

Some years ago Prof. Wiedemann showed that Rubinstein's hydrogen and a solution of fluorescine radiate so light less than a fifteth of the energy of the sun's light, and Prof. Ives has found that not more than a fourth-hundredth of the energy of carbonic rays can be utilized for light. Taking the efficiency of these rays, in other words, being only 1 to 7 per cent. As the tubes are everything in the light of carbonic and carbonic rays, it is evident that this source of light will not prove economical.

The influence of colored light in the treatment of neuralgia diseases has been studied by Dr. Ralfogsen. From experiments on twenty patients, he has concluded that a lower's stage of violet light has a marked quieting effect, red light, on the other hand, producing decided irritation.

The remarkable fertility of Limagne, in France, is attributed by Mr. Meunit to volcanic ash, which is brought to the surface by the plowing, and then spread over the soil to the estimated extent of half a ton yearly per acre.
