PIONEER MEMENTOS.

Relics of Early Days That Will be Shown at Saltair on Monday.

HEBER C. KIMBALL'S OLD WAGON.

Arms, Banners and Flags Brought Through by Early Companies—Early Newspapers.

Interest is aroused throughout the Territory in the Veterans' excursion to Saltair on Monday, August 20. Many hundreds who desire to be there will not be able to come because of the distance they reside from Salt Lake, but they will be present in spirit and feeling. This is indicated by the letters which are coming in to the committee from all parts of the Territory. Among these are a number from members of the Mormon Battalion. And in connection with the gallant company who made the ever memorable march overland to the coast when this section of the country was Mexican soil, it may be mentioned that among the memorabilia to be shown at Saltair are the local newspapers which contained an account of the first reunion of the Battalion, at Ogden, on January 1, 1881. Those who speakers told of the weary marches, the hunger, the thirst, and the sufferings of the gallant band, and pointed out the manifestations of Almighty power which bore them safely through in the establishing of the kingdom of God on the Pacific which was promised with prophetic voice by President Young when the Battalion started out.

Among other interesting mementoes of bygone days will be a pioneer wagon—the one in which President Heber C. Kimball crossed the plains. It was presented by the owner to Philip Pugsley, of this city, with a request that he would not dispose of it; a wish that has been scrupulously observed. Mr. Pugsley kindly consented to have the wagon exhibited at Saltair.

Other relics will consist of flags, banners, etc., used by the Mormon Battalion and Nauvoo Legion; cannon and small arms that were brought across the Plains in early days, and many other articles of like historic interest, all of which will combine to recall vividly the scenes of former times to those who participated therein, and to convey a great lesson to the newer generation regarding the opening up of the Great West.

Territorial Paragraphs.

Millard County Item: George T. Henry came in from Oscarlo on Friday and on Saturday left for his home in Marysvale. Mr. Henry is a well known professor of chemistry and mineralogy, and has, until recently, been in charge of the cyanide process at the Centennial mill, Corinne. Asked relative to the correctness of the reported rich gold discovery on Willard creek, eight miles south of Oscarlo, Mr. Henry says it has not been exaggerated. The ledge or group of ledges is very wide, more than a hundred feet, and the lowest assay is $7 per ton and the highest is $640, and that an average of six feet is over $20 per ton. The formation is a granite and mica schist contact. The ledge for thirty to forty feet dips at an angle of thirty degrees, then becomes steeper and is now going down at about eighty degrees.

Murray Journal: John Hardcastle and Charles Steele met with an accident Tuesday night while coming from the city. When about a mile north of Murray the horse got uncontrollable and the result was a bumble, a broken shaft, and horses, several scratches and sore limbs. Mr. Hardcastle managed to gather himself up and proceeded to Murray, and his son-in-law, Dave Jones, who resides there, transported him to Sandy. Some of the relatives then started out to find Mr. Steele, who, after returning to consciousness, they found had also started homeward, and was glad to meet them. He was wrapped in a quilt which was bespattered with mud and blood. Mr. Steele is able to be around, although feeling sore and lame, but Mr. Hardcastle has been confined to his bed since.

Payson News: A painful accident happened to Harvey, young son of Charles Smith of Benjamin, Tuesday. In company with a number of young companions the little fellow was engaged in throwing rags on a hay stack and when descending slipped and fell, the time-ok a fork which was leaning against the stack entering his hips and penetrating to the bone. An elder brother released him from his perilous and painful position and he was conveyed to the home, where his wounds were attended to.

To the soldiers of the city and vicinity:

The funeral services of a soldier of the late war will occur at the Assembly Hall at 12 o'clock tomorrow. No soldier in the Territory sustained a more gallant or honorable part, as his record abundantly shows. It is now fitting that, in order to show our respect for his memory, we attend the funeral services in a body.

A. SOLDIER.

SALT LAKE, Aug. 17, 1894.

Foul Play Still Suspected.

OGDEN, Aug. 17.—The inquest held over the body of the unknown man found at the Rio Grande Western track has developed doubts as to its having been a case of suicide. The fact that his hair was so slightly singed that the bullet of a thirty-two caliber did not pass through his head, the position the body was found in and the pistol lying on the left hand side of the body, and the testimony of Dr. Conroy that death must have been instantaneous, has created a considerable foul play. The inquest was adjourned till such time as the men now that discovered the body will return to give evidence.

DESTITUTION.

Sad Case of a Woman Fugitive From Her Husband.

A sad case of suffering and destitution came to light yesterday in this city. A Mrs. Cass was found in the old Shaw house with several small children, all nearly dead from sickness, filth and starvation. The story is as follows: Mrs. Cass is a lady of about 35 years. Six or eight weeks ago she fled from a drunken and brutal husband at Sandy, leaving four children, the oldest 12 years of age. She was in a delicate condition at the time. After wandering about for some days she returned to Sandy where she gave birth to a child. After gaining sufficient strength she started again, going south, intending to come to Provo and work for a living. Arriving here her money was filled with remorse at leaving her children, and again she returned to Sandy and found her husband was in jail for drunkenness. She was assisted in placing her sick offspring on board the cars and with her children was sent to Provo. For several days she lay on a sick bed, worn out with sickness and privation, with scarcely a morsel of food to eat. In this weak condition she ate a piece of poorly baked bread, prepared by one of the children. In the weak condition of her stomach, she was thrown into convulsions. Some neighbors learned of the condition of affairs from one of the children, and the house was visited. She was found almost at death's door. The children were dirty, unkempt and hungry. Kind hands rendered the needed assistance, and the city physician was called and rendered medical aid. The woman seems to be in constant fear lest her husband should find her, and continually appeals to those about her not to let him come to her.

AROUND THE COURTS.

Judge Bartch's Decision Given in the Rogers vs Donnellan Case.

EDWARD EWING FINED $5.

Note of the Proceedings Before—Today's Probate Court—"Billie" Ferguson's Answer Filed.

Judge Bartch gave his decision this morning in the case of Alex. Rogers vs John W. Donnellan, argued and submitted yesterday. The finding was in favor of the plaintiff. An exception was taken and thirty days' stay granted in which to prepare and serve statement on motion for a new trial. Suit was brought to enjoin the defendant from making sale of plaintiff's undivided interest in certain premises in block 55, plat A, Salt Lake City survey, together with the perpetual right of way. It was claimed that a trust deed executed September 14, 1892, by Edward A. Keeler and Rose D. Hoge and their wives to defendant, of all such property, was not a valid incumbrance thereon for the payment of a debt of $2,000 said deed was given to secure, the same being payable to the order of D. D. Mulvey with interest. Rogers asked that it be declared null and void, and his own title to the undivided one-third quieted.

CONTINUED.

The hearing of the case of A. R. Dick & Co. vs C. H. Parsons was continued till Aug 27, the plaintiff's witnesses being absent.

HE WAS FINED $5.

Edward Ewing, the young man who was alleged going by Commissioner McNulty, on Wednesday, of obtaining the peace, was late morning fined $5 and costs for the offense. The complaint in the case was Lewis M. Cannon. Ewing, it seems, owned three dogs which Mr. Cannon had a long way from home. One of them bit a little boy in Mr. Cannon's employ, whereupon the complainant went to Ewing's house for the purpose of having a reckoning with him over it. The dogs, however, escaped him likewise, he fired upon them, but missed his mark. Then it was that the defendant produced his gun, which he threatened and threatening words Mr. Cannon, at the same time brandishing to engage wholly unfit for safe guide.

THE PARSONS INQUIRY.

The further examination of witnesses in reference to the Parsons matter is taking place in Commissioner McNulty's court this afternoon. The circumstances have been already reported in these columns.

TODAY'S PROBATE COURT.

The estate of Frank Crocker, deceased. Order made showing administrator to pay sundry claims.

Estate of Jonathan M. Williams, deceased. Hearing on petition for order to borrow money continued till Friday, August 24th.

THE HUSBAND'S ANSWER.

Mike Fitzgerald, through his attorney, Fred L. McGurrin, today filed an answer to his wife's suit for a divorce. He denies all the material allegations set forth in the wife's petition and says, in regard to the charge of failure to provide, that if she and her children were without the necessaries of life it was through her own extravagant habits and her reckless squandering of the money with which he furnished her at divers times. He denies that he ever treated her cruelly or drove her out of the house. He says it is not true, as stated, that psalmist twice previously withdrew actions for divorce because of his promise to mend his ways, but that she dismissed them of her own free will. Defendant concludes that he is a hard-working, industrious man, but asserts that for a long time plaintiff has neglected her duties as a wife and mother by reason of the fact that she has a strong desire to enter the theatrical profession and go upon the stage as an opera singer. In this direction she has squandered and wasted large sums of money, he says.

Wild Ride on a Wheel.

(Los Angeles Times.)

One day last week Officer Fifield of the police force had an experience which came near turning his hair white in about a minute. He procured the loan of a bicycle and took it out in a back lot, where he really managed to acquire the trick of balancing in the admiration of all who saw the performance.

Fired with ambition Officer Fifield progressed in a few hours so far over the unexpected bucks at breakfast that he wheeled over to Boyle Heights and nearly threw his friends into a duck fit by the ease with which he kept the thing going.

Finally he started back to town, and reached the top of the long hill. He was so long that he did not notice he was on the down grade until it was too late to stop. But Officer Fifield was made of stern stuff. Lifting his feet up as high as he could get them, he gritted his teeth and sailed away on the machine. There was no brake, and so he just let her go! Down the hill he went, miraculously avoiding stones and ruts, until he found three streak of lightning out for a walk. After the dust ceased to rack as he landed at, his 200 pounds seemingly sent up by the Winter of Mercury. On and on he went, his speed (with paralysed with delights of impending disaster) he made the quickest time on record for a quarter of a mile, and the impression was so great that he fairly flew across the level streets at the end of the grade and went half way up the stairs.

When anyone says bicycle now to the big Officer he smiles a faraway smile and says that he knows when he has got enough.
