MINING, BUSINESS AND STOCKS.

CONDITION OF THE COLORADO

Jesse Knight Approached Today Regarding the Constant Decline in The Price of the Stock.

Jesse Knight was a Salt Lake visitor today, having come up from Provo, presumably on business, though what that business was Uncle Jesse did not care to disclose.

He was questioned especially about Colorado, which has suffered such an astonishing decline on the mining exchange, and with his customary frankness Mr. Knight intimated that the time is approaching when Colorado will have to find ore at greater depth, which it has not been successful in doing yet, or the payment of its regular monthly dividends of $80,000 may be affected. Said Mr. Knight: "If Colorado should be compelled to suspend dividends for a while, I would not lose faith in the property. I still hold my stock which takes in the control of the property, and I do not intend to sell any of it."

At the same time Mr. Knight intimated that the condition of the Colorado was not so roseate as it was a while back, though the company still has several hundred feet of unexplored ground in the direction of the Sioux. As to whether that contains high or low grade ore, or any ore at all, remains to be seen. The presumption is that the ground will be found quite productive.

In explanation of the action of the stock on the exchange Uncle Jesse said he thought that the experience at the Beck Tunnel influenced Colorado. In the Beck Tunnel the ore cut off short and dividends ceased. Some doubtless look for the Colorado to do the same after a while. It was this which led Mr. Knight to say that if Colorado should quit paying dividends for a while, he would still have faith in the property.

Allusion was also made by Mr. Knight to the fact that exploratory work is being done at the Iron Blossom, at greater depth, and this may have an important bearing both on Colorado and Beck Tunnel, both of which have not been explored to any great depth.

In Mr. Knight's statement will be seen some explanation for the action of the stock on the exchange, which has declined to 94 cents today in spite of the payment of 8 cents a share per month.

MARKET WEAK TODAY.

Colorado Still Shrinking—Bullock and Mineral Flat Very Active.

One of the features of the stock market this morning was the unusual activity of a few of the small stocks. Another feature was the further declines in several of the favorites. This was particularly noticeable in Colorado, which made a new low record today, selling down to 94. Iron Blossom also receded to 68, while Grand Central went begging at $2.22½.

Bullock transferred 10,000 shares at 2 cents and Mineral Flat let go a like amount at 1 cent. Swansea fell away to 2 cents, and Indian Queen was active at 3⅝.

News of the improved conditions at Red Warrior, combined with good backing, sent the stock to $3.07½ this morning, and Ely Calumet, the other newly listed stock, was traded in at 43.

Daly Judge was active at $5, at which price a small lot changed hands. Mason Valley participated at $1.82½. Prince Con. at $1.15. New York at 12, Seven Troughs at 14 and Sioux at 47½. Closing quotations were as folows:

NEVADA HILLS SHIPMENTS.

Rich Ore Is Marketed and Permanent Improvements Being Made.

The Nevada Hills is employing a number of men on the extraction of high grade ore, according to the Wonder News. A carload of ore has just been shipped which is expected by Manager Webber to net the company $10,000. At the same time the company is making permanent improvements at the mine.

A new and powerful hoist has been purchased, and preparations have been made for its installation as soon as it arrives. With this new hoist in operation it is the intention to resume sinking in the main shaft, and to continue indefinitely, cutting stations at intervals and crosscutting to develop the ledge at the same time.

The milling proposition has not at this time assumed definite shape, on account of the large amount of development work yet to be done, before the size and character of the mill can be determined. It is definitely settled, however, that a mill will be built, and that it will be of sufficient capacity to handle all the ore which the mine can produce.

The question of motive power for the mill and other machinery is under consideration. The plan of running a wire from the Bishop Creek Power company's line at Hawthorne, by way of Fairview and on to Wonder, to supply power for both camps, is looked upon with favor. This plan calls for the construction of the line at the expense of the Nevada Hills and Nevada Wonder companies, the cost to be returned to them in the form of rebates on the power bills, and the line when paid for to be the property of the power company. The distance from Hawthorne to Fairview is said to be about 60 miles.

The scheme of erecting a generating plant at the point where the water of the great irrigating canal falls into the bed of the Carson river, and where an almost unlimited amount of power can be generated, has been set aside on account of the fact that satisfactory terms can not be made with the government.

TINTIC STANDARD SHAFT.

Reports from the Tintic Standard over the phone at noon today were to the effect that the shaft is down 684 feet, in a solid body of mineralized quartz, consisting largely of iron pyrites. Manager Raddatz and all concerned are feeling very much encouraged over the improved conditions which are thought to be indicative of pay ore somewhere in that vicinity. The shaft will be continued down to the 700 level, where a station will be cut and drifting will be started to explore the vein of quartz which has been encountered in the shaft.

IGNORANT OF COMBINATION.

Prest. McNeil of Utah Copper and F. A. Heinze Talk of Copper Combine.

In spite of the reports from New York that a gigantic copper combine is being organized, some of those supposed to be on the inside profess ignorance of such an organization. A dispatch from Globe, Arizona, today says:

"The Utah Copper company has not been advised of the rumored copper corporation. 'I can say nothing of the reported organization.'"

This was the statement made here yesterday by C. M. McNeill of Colorado Springs, president of the Utah Copper company, one of the companies mentioned as in the organization.

F. Augustus Heinze, who arrived in the city yesterday afternoon from Butte also acknowledged that he knew little about the proposed copper combine outside of that which everyone knew who read the papers. He believes such a combination would be a good thing, especially if a standard price of 15 cents a pound were to be maintained, as it would give stability to the market, and do away with speculative influences to a great extent, but he knows nothing, he said, of the details of any combination of interests.

CONCENTRATES.

Federal Ely sold at 20 and 21 on the exchange today, more than 20,000 shares being sold.

The recent strike in the Red Warrior mine in Beaver county is said to present great possibilities.

Manager Tony Jacobsen of the Columbus Con. went to Alta today to look over developments at that property.

Conditions are reported to be improving in the Provo property in East Tintic, the iron and manganese formation being found in the east drift being taken as indication that ore is not far away.

The machinery for the Eagle and Blue Bell of Tintic is now being taken to the mine to be installed. As soon as this is done the shaft will be pushed to the 1,200. Some good ore is reported to have been exposed on the 1,000 and 1,100 levels of the property.

Immediate steps will be taken to open the Panaca gold mine, says the Pioche Record. The proposition has been financed, it is said, and a 50-ton cyanide plant will be installed, together with a hoist and the other equipment of an up-to-date mine.

CONDENSED COURTESY.

A German baron—he said—blew into New York and got acquainted with some clubmen. He was put up at a club by one of them for the customary two weeks, and paid his bills promptly.

There was great surprise when the man who put him up refused to make an application for a renewal of the courtesies of the club for the baron. Club members were indignant about it and one of them had a new card issued.

The baron appreciated the compliment, and entertained lavishly. He left without paying his bills, and the member who volunteered the second time had to settle.

"Did you lose anything?" he asked the man who had stood sponsor first time.

"No," he said, "I didn't wine and dine him, like you. I took him out one day and whaleboned him."—Saturday Evening Post.

MONKEY-EATING EAGLE.

Remarkable New Arrival at the "Zoo."

A monkey-eating eagle from the Philippines, the first specimen ever captured alive, took up residence at the Zoological Gardens yesterday.

As he sat on a stump in his large cage, blinking grey eyes at his new surroundings, and with the long crest of dirty brown feathers on the top of his head rumpled as though he had been running his fingers through his hair, he looked ridiculously like a rather worried human being. He has the largest beak in the eagle house—a black, savage-looking hook an inch deep. His body is dark brown, with breast feathers of a dirty cream color. On the floor of his cage lay part of a pigeon, which had formed his first meal in the gardens.

His full name is Pithecophaga jefferyi, or Jeffry's monkey-eating eagle. He was captured by means of snares set around the body of a young pig. He will have to abandon his penchant for monkeys in favor of a diet of chickens and ducks.

The price to be paid for him is not yet settled, but on account of his rarity it will be a high one. Several other zoological societies have done their best to secure so unique a specimen for themselves.—Daily Mail.

WOMEN'S TRADE UNIONS REVIEWED IN BULLETIN

An article on "The Women's Trade-Union Movement in Great Britain," by Katherine Graves Busbey, is published in bulletin No. 83 of the bureau of labor, department of commerce and labor. The writer gives a history of the movement and discusses its growth, the obstacles to organization of women, the attitude of male trade unionists, the results of organization, and the relation of women's trade unions to low wages and the sweating system. From the beginning of the movement in 1874, what is now known as the Women's Trade Union league has been the most important agency in the development of unionism among women in Great Britain. This organization at present has nearly 140,000 members.

As regards the comparative growth of male and female membership in trade unions in recent years it is shown that in 1896, which is the first year for which comparative figures of female trade union membership are available, 149 unions included women and girls as members out of a total of 1,302 trade unions, the female membership at that time being 117,-030, or 7.8 per cent of the membership of all unions. From 1896 to 1904 the male membership increased from 1,388,709 to 1,769,767, or 27.6 per cent, while the female membership rose from 117,030 to 126,-285, or 7.9 per cent. Since 1904 the percentage of gains among male and female members has been largely reversed. In 1907 the organized women numbered 201,-709, a gain of 59.7 per cent over 1904, while the increase in male membership, although amounting to 436,270 new members, represented a relative increase of only 24.7 per cent.

Among the chief obstacles to the organization of women workers in Great Britain have been the temporary nature of their occupations, low wages and low standard of living, class distinctions, and apathy. Male trade unionists in the printing trades have offered opposition on account of inferior workmanship and the generally lower rate of wages paid to women. It is stated, however, that "in Manchester the men trade-union leaders are enthusiastic over the work accomplished by the women's unions throughout Lancashire. It is difficult to determine just what the opinion of the male trade unionist of the present day is in regard to the advantages or necessity of unionism among industrial women."

As to the results accomplished the writer concludes that the women's trade union movement has in some instances been directly responsible for increase of wages, has added successful pressure to the initiation and furtherance of protective legislation, and through the women's Trade Union league has accomplished much toward the conservation of health and the promotion of safety among local workers where little or no local organization can yet be effected.

The women trade unionists of Great Britain seek to secure the betterment of labor conditions through protective legislation rather than by militant action. They regard the trade unions as a medium for suggestion and as an aid in enforcing the legal rights of workers. The greatest endeavor of the leaders at the present time is to secure the extension of the board of arbitration prerogative to an authoritative institution for legal decision in wage disputes and the establishment of wages boards empowered to fix a legal minimum wage in certain trades.

SPOILT THE CHANCE.

They were two struggling journalists living together, partly because they admired each other's various excellent qualities, but principally because they were about the same size, and one suit of decent clothes did for both.

One night, by one of those extraordinary accidents which do happen sometimes, a poor, misguided burglar mistook their rooms for an adjoining suite, occupied by a wealthy fish-monger, and, hearing him fumbling in the darkness, one of them awoke. He listened intently for a moment.

"George," he cried, "there's a burglar in the room!"

"Well, of all the blundering idiots," grumbled his bedmate, "you're the worst I ever struck. Why on earth couldn't you have kept quiet? He might have dropped something!"

TO ARGUE TOMORROW.

After examining 32 union plumbers, the defense closed its case in the suit brought by the master plumbers' association for an injunction to prevent the striking plumbers from interfering with the non-union men at work. The arguments will be heard before Judge Morris L. Ritchie tomorrow. It is probable that the case will be taken under advisement, allowing the temporary injunction to stand pending a decision in the matter.

MAY REACH JURY TODAY.

In the case of John Kothiaftis, charged with the murder of Peter Getis at Bingham canyon on Dec. 21, 1908, the state closed its rebuttal testimony and Attorney Carl Badger, who is associated with Assistant District Attorney E. O. Leatherwood, began his argument to the jury this morning. The arguments will probably be closed today and the case delivered into the hands of the jury tonight.

CHANGES SLIGHT, CLOSING EASY

New York, Nov. 16.—Eighths and quarters measured the extent of the opening changes today in prices of stocks except in a few cases. Trading was quite active in spite of the narrow fluctuations. Four thousand shares of Amalgamated Copper sold at last night's prices, followed by 5,000 shares at a decline of ⅛. Western Union advanced 1⅜ and American Smelting, Anaconda and Atchison large fractions. American Sugar fell a point and then rallied.

There was some heaviness in the railroad list which was counterbalanced by strength in certain industrials. The general movement was of little importance, the market apparently showing a waiting attitude for the time being. Realizing sales forced Amalgamated Copper a point below yesterday's closing but the other related stocks were fairly well held. American Sugar advanced 2 points, Pensylvania and Pittsburg Coal preferred 1⅛; Pittsburg, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis 1 and Atlantic Coast Line, American Mackay companies and preferred United States Steel and Utah Copper 1. North American and Granby Mining lost a point. Prices were rising briskly at 11 o'clock.

The advance caused renewed realizing after various specialties had made good gains. Norfolk & Western and Colorado Fuel rose 1, American Sugar 1½, the preferred 3⅛ and Pacific Telephone 2½.

American Cotton Oil fell 2⅜, the preferred 2⅜ and American Steel Foundries and Pullman 1.

Bonds were irregular.

Spirited buying of Missouri Pacific sent it up 2 points, but the movement failed to sustain the rest of the list, which started to ease off. U. S. Steel and Western Union weakened back to yesterday's closing, the latter reacting nearly 3 points. Reading also was offered freely and sold down a point below last nights closing. Wells Fargo Express jumped 4 points, Union Bag preferred 1⅜, Bethlehem Steel preferred 1½ and International Harvester and National Biscuit 1. Delaware & Hudson lost a point.

Amalgamated Copper reached 94 and some of the other specialties touched their highest prices of the day. Before 2 o'clock however, prices were declining again with United States Steel and some of the railroad stocks leading. Interborough-Metropolitan preferred rose 2, Colorado & Southern 1½ and Chicago Terminal 1. Northwestern, Louisville & Nashville and American Can preferred yielded 1 and United States Express 1.

The market closed easy. The reaction carried Union Pacific, St. Paul, Mercantile Marine, Kansas & Texas and Atlantic coast line a point below yesterday's last prices. Northwestern 2⅜, Erie and Allis-Chalmers preferred were then marked up 1 and Erie first preferred 1⅜, with sustaining effect elsewhere. The rally did not hold, Amalgamated Copper running off 1⅜.

PRODUCE.

CHICAGO.

Chicago Nov. 16.—The opening trades in the wheat pit here today showed a continuance of strength. Corn and oats were also strong, while provisions fell off.

Little December wheat was offered when the market opened and trading was more active in the May product. Because of the more distant deals, covering in December was difficult and an opening advance of ⅛ to 1 cent was registered in December at 1.08 to 1.08⅝. May showed an increase over yesterday's final figures of from ⅛ to ⅝ cent at 1.05⅝ to 1.06⅛.

Bearish symptoms in foreign cables showing a favorable weather condition in Europe and contradiction of reported locust devastation in Argentina were ignored here.

Wet weather throughout the corn belt strengthened the corn market. December opened ⅛ to 1 cent higher at 60⅛ to 61⅛.

In the oats pit conditions followed the other grains and trading was brisk. December opened ⅛ cent higher than yesterday's final figures at 39⅝.

January pork, which has led the provisions market of late, broke sharply at the opening, falling off 27½ cents to 72½ cents and the slump affected other products.

As the session advanced free profit taking sales weakened the market which dropped on the reaction to ⅛ cent below yesterday's close. December closed unchanged from yesterday at 1.07½. May closed ⅜ cent below yesterday.

Profit taking sales in the corn pit also weakened prices and the closing figures for December were a shade above yesterday at 60¼ to 60⅜.
