FARM BUILDINGS.

How These Mingled and a Covered Barn Yard Resulted.

Eight years ago, writes a Pennsylvania farmer in Hoards' Dairyman, the only buildings on my farm were the barn, the accompanying cattle marked "A," 30 by 40 with 20 feet posts, and "B," 15 by 30, with 10 feet posts. The former had a farm floor through the center 14 by 30 feet, and was elevated on a stone wall six feet 8 in. high, enough for stables underneath. The latter was separated from the former by the entrance gate to
