ATTACK ON BAYARD.

Lord Sackville Issues a Pamphlet for Private Circulation

AMONG LEADING DIPLOMATS

His Locality Described at the "Political Degradation" Existing in This Country.

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—A special cable to the World from London says: An extraordinary, and to many people mysterious, publication by a foreign diplomat has been discussed during the past few days among the foreign representatives in the court of St. James.

It is a handsomely printed pamphlet of about 100 pages, entitled, "Sir Bladon to the United States, 1888-92," and has just been issued by Lord Sackville-West, K. C. M. G., who the English minister to Washington for the period named.

It will be remembered that President Cleveland, early in the work of the session of 1888, sent Lord Sackville a letter written by a leader of the anti-English Irishmen in California, commenting on the approaching election.

This pamphlet is Lord Sackville's defense and explanation, after several years, of that incident. But the unprecedented part of it, and the part which has caused very excited comment, is that, for the freedom of his action upon the American people and American public men, and second, his own expressed indignation that the British minister should have accepted such a letter. Mr. Bayard as ambassador to this country, was in secretary of state of the United States, Mr. Bayard had wantonly insulted in publishing the accusations against Lord Sackville.

The pamphlet consists of fifty-two pages, fifty years, and is in very small type, so much than 100 copies. Two sets have only under seal only to leading foreign diplomats and the upper English officials and a few personal friends.

Count A. Arthur was President and James G. Blaine secretary of state, when Lord Sackville came to New York in November 1887.

Despite cabinet which his duties very good attitude, "I was well aware of the difficulties. I should have trouble with in conducting the relations of the French republican, and yield over the government, and this was so powerful in both houses of the legislature."

Lord Sackville quotes a private letter written to Lord Granville, then foreign minister, in April, 1882, to regret, apparently, to a request, or decided note to Secretary Freilinghuysen of the impossible relations of our

which was necessary for the success of the Democratic candidate.

He saw a copy of a telegram from the state department to Minister Phelps, containing him of "political vituperation." He took this offensive telegram to Mr. Bayard, saying in consistent to a personal friend. Mr. Bayard was "very harassed and uneasy, and at the end he knew nothing of any such telegram having been sent."

He was furnished with a copy of the following telegram, received by a member of the cabinet from the political committee in New York:

"Does the President know that the Irish vote is slipping out of our hands because of the diplomatic sally recently made? Are Lamont (the President's secretary and close confidant) at sea, or is something ought to be done today."

Accordingly he received his passports that afternoon.

Lord Sackville quotes a statement he made to Lord Salisbury, according Secretary Bayard of Zachary Chandler's method of tactics and duplicity.

He refers to President Cleveland in bitter terms and says: "There is no case action which an American politician will not resort to in order to gain an election."

He quotes another dispatch from Mr. Herbert to Lord Salisbury, in which the author of the Murchison letter, one Osgoodby, was recommended to President Harrison by a letter from the California Republicans, one bearing the historic name of Harrison Gray Otis, and the other Judge W. F. Fitzgerald, telling the story of Osgoodby's record, and claiming for him the credit and recognition which were fairly due him for his remarkable achievement.

Lord Sackville gives credit for the publication "in one, Gray, a scalter and chief of Republican politics," to whom his (Lord Sackville's) letter was sent by the Cleveland politicians.

Lord Sackville adds: "Mr. Bayard remained in ignorance for four years until the resignation of Mr. Cleveland when he was appointed ambassador to London as a recognition, it may be presumed, of his remarkable achievement.

"The perpetrator of these degrading acts of political treachery emerges from the political mire a social success and seems shove upon whom he is merciously trampled with a smiling countenance."

Lord Sackville says that two justices of the supreme court, state cases, spoke to terms of the strongest condemnation of President Cleveland's action towards him.

He quotes a letter to him from a manager of a show museum in New York, offering him $2,000 per week and expenses for himself and wife if he would hold two lecture daily at two hours in "my palatial museum."

"It is unnecessary," says Lord Sackville, "for me to comment further upon the political degradation which severely exists in the United States, and upon the difficulties which a British minister has to encounter with in maintaining amicable relations with a government influenced solely by the political necessity of the moment, and whose action is controlled by a foreign hostile to his own country."

Cup Goes to Cleveland.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 8.—The Temple cup goes to Cleveland, the winner of today's game and the series. The champions were outplayed at every point. Up to the seventh inning, however, it looked as if either side might win, although Hoffer suffered rather more than Young and the visitors got the good of it. After this there was trouble, and the home team had all a Condition of the Treasury.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 8.—To day's statement of the condition of the treasury shows: Available cash balance, $182,017,123; gold reserve, $103,017,000.

Oil in West Bound Rates.

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—All the western railroads agreed upon an advance in rates into effect today. The cut applies to all Colorado common points. The rates to those points now are:

First class and classes A, B, C and D, 50 cents; class E, 40 cents.

Class A tariff rates were: First class, 60 cents; class A, 45 cents; class B, 40 cents; class C, 37 cents; class D, 32 cents; class E, 27 cents.

"The apparent reduction," said a prominent traffic manager, "will not affect our revenue to the slightest extent, for for very reason that these reductions were made months ago. All that has been done is to announce them openly, while before they were made secretly. The cut goes out will probably be to close and commodity rates to the Missouri river. One is to be expected any day."

Cut Fight in Arkansas.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 8.—"You can say for me that I will not submit to legislation in special session. I stop it, if they were to fight to the state-house yard."

Governor Clark used this language in conversation with an Associated Press representative today in reference to his probable action in the event that the Corbett-Fitzsimmons contest should be scheduled to take place in Hot Springs. He meant what he deliberate and emphatic that there could be no possible doubt of the earnestness of the governor.

Gov. Clark was in a most excitable frame of mind and talked freely concerning the latter phase of the situation.

"I do not really know anything about it," he began, "but I have heard a great many rumors which seemed to hold the contest in Arkansas. It seems, though, as if they mean to bring it off at Hot Springs, sure enough. The fact that Mayor Waters and City Attorney Martin, of Hot Springs, are in Dallas, negotiating with the managers of the affair indicates that the people of Hot Springs wants it and they will very likely get it."

"Will you interfere should they attempt to bring it off there?"

"My position is that regard is well known. You may say that I will do everything in my power to prevent the fight; that I will go as far as the law, as it now stands gives me authority to go, and no farther."

IMPORTANT WITNESSES.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 8.—After wandering through a maze of unimportant witnesses, the defense in the Durrant case this afternoon summoned to the stand two of the most important witnesses that have been called since the prosecution closed its case. One of the witnesses materially aided the defense, from the fact that upon cross-examination he failed to give important and damaging testimony of an opposite character. The examination of the other witness had only just begun when the court took a recess until tomorrow morning, so in the short time that the witness was on the stand he failed to give important facts which was originally supposed he would be called on each and hopes to establish.

The most important witness of the day was Charles F. Lenahan, the young man who the defense contended was the witness for Durrant by pawnbroker Oppenheimer. Lenahan, who does not bear a striking resemblance to the prisoner, said that on April 3 he attempted to pawn a small diamond ring, similar to the one worn by Blanche Lamont, at Oppenheimer's shop. The witness said that he asked Oppenheimer the same questions and received the same answers that Oppenheimer quoted in telling the conversation he had with the young man who on Oppenheimer testified was Durrant.

Then came the surprise to the defense, which consisted nearly all the strength adduced from the witnesses' testimony. Lenahan said that he tried to pawn the ring in the afternoon, while Oppenheimer testified that Durrant entered the shop in the morning and attempted to pawn the conversation he had with the young man whom Oppenheimer testified was Durrant.

Then came the surprise to the defense, which consisted nearly all the strength adduced from the witnesses' testimony. Lenahan said that he tried to pawn the ring in the afternoon, while Oppenheimer testified that Durrant entered the shop in the morning and attempted to pawn the conversation he had with the young man whom Oppenheimer testified was Durrant.

Attorney Deuprey was consequently disconcerted by the statement of the witness, and endeavored to impeach Lenahan's testimony by reading a letter written by Lenahan to the attorneys for the defense, in which he divulged the fact that he had tried to pawn a small diamond ring at Oppenheimer's on the same day that Durrant was said to have entered the place.

The court interrupted Deuprey, however, and refused to let him read only such parts of the letter as referred to the witness. Deuprey then asked that the letter be admitted in evidence, and at the close of the struggle over the curve the court adjourned for the day. The court refused to admit the whole letter in evidence, so some parts were devoted to the expression of the witness's opinion as to the character of Oppenheimer's business. The remainder of the letter was expected to give strong evidence for the prosecution, gave disappointing testimony. Dukes said that Durrant asked him if he could not remember that he attended Dr. Cheney's lecture on the subject of April 3rd, and to that end he called a number of witnesses said to have taken a seat at the lecture. Although Dukes's seat in the lecture room was next to Durrant's, Dukes could not remember whether Durrant was there or not, and told him so. Dukes said it was better, as had been reported, that Durrant asked him as a favor to testify that he did attend the lecture. On the contrary, Dukes said that Durrant told him he wished him to testify only to the facts as he remembered them.

The Cassowitch Growing Worse.

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—A Herald special from Berlin says: Professor Leyden has received a dispatch to the effect that the cassowitch is growing rapidly worse. His condition is reported as alarming.

A WOMAN.

A woman has many pleasures and ought to be thankful for her lot, and she does not seem to realize it.

A woman may make the place of man, but where her affections are concerned she is a man in force, and often wears hands of iron.

A woman will often, without knowing it, submit even cruelty for her children. She will work, fight and endure anything for their sake. The strongest ties are her sympathies.

A woman should not allow her mind to rule, nor choose to become calm, her strength is to lost. She is designed for active service and happiness.

A woman need not show any of these things to happen if she will only study the laws of health and use the first means of health and comfort properly.

A woman needs a friend upon whom she can rely, and there is no friend so true and faithful as a good woman in need of aid or the great remedy, Warner's Safe Cure.

A woman who has never learned this great truth, and who has fallen in need, should at it, can learn it, then spare suffering and at death look back to long and at last can today than she deserves to be and happier.

A woman who follows the best hints that come to her, and who takes advantage of the most desperate of women is not helping one to attain to the highest ideal of a woman's life, which is love and happiness, but one who helps her organization.

Oppenheimer's business. The remainder of the letter was similar.

After Lenahan surprised the defense by stating that he tried to pawn the ring in the afternoon, Attorney Deuprey became very suspicious of the witness, and cared him severe questions intended to induce that the transaction was impossible from the defense to the prosecution. Among other things, Attorney Deuprey asked Lenahan if he had been influenced by persons known to be in sympathy with the prosecution. Deuprey also asked him when he moved all the memoranda he were when he entered Oppenheimer's shop. Lenahan said he had never worn a memorandum in his life. Deuprey intimated that he would impeach the testimony of the witness on this point by a statement contained in the letter written by Lenahan to the attorneys for the defense.

W. A. Dukes, a student at Cooper Medical college, who was expected to give strong evidence for the prosecution, gave disappointing testimony. Dukes said that Durrant asked him if he could not remember that he attended Dr. Cheney's lecture on the afternoon of April 3rd, and to that end he called a number of students said to have taken a seat at the lecture. Although Dukes's seat in the lecture room was next to Durrant's, Dukes could not remember whether Durrant was there or not, and told him so. Dukes said it was better, as had been reported, that Durrant asked him as a favor to testify that he did attend the lecture. On the contrary, Dukes said that Durrant told him he wished him to testify only to the facts as he remembered them.
