Home From Virginia.

Elder Thomas Butler, of Richfield, Sevier county, called at our office yesterday, having just returned from a mission to Virginia, whither he went on the 4th of November, 1890. Elder Butler labored almost continuously in Virginia and met with very good success. He made many warmhearted friends and speaks highly of the hospitality of the people among whom he traveled. He reports that the mission in that part of the United States is in an exceedingly prosperous condition.

Probate Court.

The following business was transacted before Judge Harlch today:

Estate of Julius G. Brooks, deceased; continued to April 7.

Estate of Alfred H. Caine, deceased, continued to April 7.

Estate of Wm. G. Collett, deceased; petition for order setting aside homestead and property exempt from execution. Proof of posting notices approved; Ada Collett and Arthur Stayner, Jr., sworn and examined. Prayer of petition granted.

Estate and guardianship of D. H. Jensen et al., minors; continued to April 12.

Estate of J. H. Pickwell, deceased; continued to April 12.

Estate of C. D. St. George, deceased; hearing on petition for probate of will came on without notice. John Banker sworn and examined. Held over.

Estate and guardianship of Alma Miner, minor; order made fixing April 29, to hear petition for appointment of guardian.

Estate of W. H. Player, deceased; hearing on return of sale of real estate came on regularly. Objections made to price, and to the drawing of the order for sale made by J. H. Booth, attorney for contestants. John Burns, administrator, and Barlow Ferguson, sworn and examined. Motion made by attorney for estate that the portion of objections referring to the power of the court to grant an order for sale be stricken out. Motion sustained, exception taken. Motion to strike out objection that notice called for cash payment while return shows that one-half was paid down and remainder to be paid in one year was overruled. Confirmation of sale denied, because notice of sale does not conform to order for sale. The case was in progress this afternoon.

THE TONIC SOL-FA SYSTEM.

The tonic sol-fa system is a "Natural method" of learning to sing, which has revolutionized the study of music in England, and is now rapidly coming into use in this country. By it the principles of music are wonderfully simplified, and can easily be comprehended by all. Many have learned to sing by tonic sol-fa who have tried by the old methods and failed. It removes three-fourths of the difficulties of music from the path of the learner, and is so simple that all can master it. It makes music-readers in less than half the time required by the old method, and leads to a far higher degree of musical intelligence in those who study it. It is not only a method of making music easy, but for making it more truly and profoundly understood. It is not only a delightful, easy, natural method for beginners, but is even more valuable to the advanced student. This system is revolutionizing the methods of elementary music teaching, and is taking a prominent place amongst the educational reforms of the day.

The only seeming objection that can be offered against tonic sol-fa is that it involves a new system of notation, but there is not the slightest need for any fear of "doing away with the old notation of music." The new notation does not propose to alter or supersede the staff notation, except as a means of teaching, neither does it merely supplement it. It is the best way of learning the old notation, and gives the pupil a more intelligent comprehension and a more skilful command of the staff than is usually attained by other methods. Fifty years' experience in England proves that tonic sol-fa is making more and better staff readers than all other systems combined. Those who sing somewhat by note, but only partially understand the staff, will find in this system a key to all its difficulties. Those who cannot read music at all can easily learn by the tonic sol-fa method.

This system has grown up as an inevitable result of the difficulties of the staff notation.

To state the advantages of tonic sol-fa in a single word, it [illegible] of those who study it. [illegible] simple and beautiful notation is perfectly calculated to train the musical faculties and develope the natural powers of the student. It is impossible to realize all the advantages of the system at once. The more it is studied, the more its beauties and benefits are revealed. It is a most significant fact that all the unfavorable criticism of the tonic sol-fa system comes from those who are not acquainted with it. No word of opposition has ever been heard from any person who fully understood it.—Ex.

THE OPENING

—OF THE—

SPRING SEASON

Is always a welcome time in a large Clothing Establishment, such as ours to every individual connected with it, from the head of the house to the youngest salesman employed in it, from the man who buys the goods to the man who tells you about them in the papers. After long months of handling thick, heavy goods in dark sombre colors, to turn to the handsome shades and colors of spring, is liking turning from a dead swamp in a pasture to a fragrant bed of Pansies in full bloom. This spring it's a little "more so" than usual; such a radical change in styles has not been known in years before. Particularly is this true in

MEN'S, YOUTHS' AND BOYS' SUITS

The shades and colors have never opened up as handsomely as this spring's productions. New shades of brown and blue and gray, toney tans, handsome makes, and nobby mixtures in countless blends. New styles in pin-head checks and "eighth inch effects," new plaids and stripes. No man can tell and no man can imagine when he is told how handsome the new things are without a look. Our entire line of

SPRING SUITS and OVERCOATS

are ready for inspection any day this week. Homespuns, Cheviots, Corkscrews, Diagonals, Worsted, Cassimers, Milton Serges in Cutaway or Sacks, bound or plain. Drop in—bring your pocket book—not much money—you will have a new Suit or Overcoat to wear next Sunday.

In our HAT DEPARTMENT

You will find all the very latest blocks for this season—and prices the lowest.
