

LOCAL AND OTHER MATTERS.

Personal.—We were pleased to receive a call this morning from Prof. S. S. Hamill, the educationist, whose readings at the Theatre last week delighted so many. The gentleman was chaperoned by Elder John Morgan.

General Seventies' Meeting.—The Seventies are hereby informed that their regular semi-monthly meeting will be held at the Council House on Wednesday next the 17th inst., at 7 p.m.

A full attendance is solicited. ROBERT CAMPBELL, Clerk. In behalf of First Council of Seventies.

Captured.—Robert Smith, one of the escaped prisoners from the Coalville jail, a description of whom with his two fellows, appeared in the News some days ago, was captured at Payson on the 7th inst., and awaited in jail at that place the arrival of Sheriff Allison of Summit County. Last evening, this officer with his "bird" reached this city from Payson where he had been to regain possession of his charge.

A Petty Misdemeanor.—Brother Thomas J. Donkin, of the 11th Ward, complains of a number of boys in his vicinity who seem to be addicted to the bad habit of killing their neighbors' chickens. On Saturday afternoon one of them shot a fine Plymouth Rock fowl belonging to Brother Donkin, with a small pistol, and after ringing the chicken's neck, in company with two companions, took it upon the hill, roasted it over a fire and ate it. Our informant has witnesses to prove this, and also knows the names of the youngsters who committed the reprehensible act, and unless the matter is made right intends prosecuting them before the proper authorities.

Nice Work.—The finest piece of work in the book-binding line ever done in this city has just been turned out at the bindery of this establishment. It is a handsome family record, made for the children of Apostle Orson Pratt, and presented by them to their father on his last birthday. The book is a tome of 392 folios, containing six different forms of blanks, gilt-edged and encased in heavy and elegantly embossed leather lids, with gilt, antique and raised panels. On the back of the volume, near the top, in gilt letters is the following: "Family Record," and below in similar characters: "Orson Pratt, Sen." The same lines, reversed, are on the outside of the front lid. The book cost about $50, and is the workmanship of Bro. George Buckle, of the 10th Ward, foreman of the Deseret News Book Bindery.

The Hamill Readings.—Another good house greeted the second of the Hamill readings in the Theatre Saturday evening, and the entertainment if anything, was still better than on the preceding night. Professor Hamill recited a scene from Macbeth, or rather parts of two scenes in that tragedy, the first of which was the vision of the "air-drawn dagger," the second the banquet scene and the interview with Banquo's ghost. Both were strongly portrayed. The action of the reciter as Macbeth, on first seeing the apparition of the murdered Banquo, was such as to startle the entire audience. He also recited "The Raven," "The Bells," "The Rime of the Ancient Mariner," "The Vagabonds," and other pieces in superb style. Miss Hamill gave "Charlie Machree," and by special request repeated "Whistling in Heaven," which created such a furore on Friday evening. She was still laboring under the effects of the severe cold which so oppressed her the evening before, but again succeeded in captivating her listeners by her charming manner and artistic reading. A great many who attended the first entertainment, also patronized the second, and we are certain that Professor Hamill and his daughter could draw good houses again and again, if they chose to give more readings during their stay in this city. The first meeting of his classes in elocution, will take place to-morrow evening.

"Writ Himself Down," &c.—The following is from Friday's Junction: "At the last moment we learn that the City Council, in this afternoon's session, has unanimously adopted Mr. Ruttrauf's proposition to light the city for $3,000 per annum. There are 60 days of trial of the light."

The paper in which the above item appeared, reached this city Friday night. On Saturday evening the following was published in the News:

"Ogden has decided to adopt the electric light. We learn from the Junction that the city council at that place has unanimously adopted the proposition of Mr. Ruttrauf, agent of the Brush Company, to light the city for $3,000 per annum, with 60 days' trial of the light before the contract is formally entered into."

Sunday morning's Herald, after quoting what appeared in this paper says:

"The above is a remarkable exhibition of enterprise. It is alleged to have been taken from the Junction, when the Junction at that time had not reached this city, and probably had not appeared. Our friends have made a mistake, and inserted the word Junction instead of Herald. Modesty forbids that we should say the item was taken from the only newspaper in Salt Lake City."

Before indulging in his brilliant mistakes, the young man who furnishes Attie salt for the local columns of the Herald, should have referred to Friday evening's Junction, which had appeared and had reached this city in plenty of time for any reader of ordinary "enterprise" to glean its contents within the next 20 hours. If he failed to do this, it is nobody's fault but his own, and Nature's, and his boasting blunder is entirely inexcusable. Now, do, please, quit. We haven't time to silence all your pop-guns.

TABERNACLE SERVICES.

The usual Sunday services of the Latter-day Saints were held yesterday afternoon in the Assembly Hall.

The first speaker was Elder Edward E. Pratt, lately returned from a mission, who narrated incidents of his experience while absent from home, and expressed the emotions of his heart on returning to mingle once more with his friends. He bore his testimony to the truth of the gospel, as he had found it by experience, and touched upon the various principles of the faith he advocated, and contrasted them with the views held by many of the religious denominations of the present day. He closed by invoking the blessing of God upon the labors of the Saints to establish truth in the earth.

The next speaker was Elder John Nicholson. He spoke of the utter inadequacy of words to portray his feelings on the occasion, but felt willing to endeavor to say something to the Saints, whom he was again pleased to meet. He was called on a mission to Europe July 7th, 1878, left on the 20th of August of the same year, and returned on the 11th inst. to his home in this city. While absent, he labored in the editorial and publishing department of the office of the European Mission, and never had enjoyed himself better than while performing his duties there. He did not consider it his place to give an official report of the mission in Europe, but he could say that the work there, under the efficient presidency of Elder Wm. B. Smith, had been characterized by great vigor and enterprise. Large editions of most of the standard works of the church had been issued, and a large number of pamphlets, vouching upon various appropriate subjects, had been distributed amongst the people. Of the latter 150,000 had been struck off previous to his departure from Liverpool, and other editions, of 10,000 each, were about to be printed. These had been circulated by means of the tract societies among the Saints, the people at large, and he believed much good had been accomplished thereby. Another feature of Pratt's administration was the vast amount of outdoor preaching that had been done by the devoted, brave and diligent elders called to labor under him. Especially was commendation due to the young elders, natives of the United States, who by their voices in every possible place, and disseminated the principles of the gospel, and gave an official report of the work abroad had been progressing steadily, 1,143 baptisms took place within the half year ending June, and since then the proportion of converts has been increasing. 1,720 souls had emigrated from Liverpool this season. The spirit of emigration was increasing, and spreading in Europe. The speaker was pleased to state that thousands of dollars had been sent by the Saints in Utah to the Liverpool office to be used in the emigration of the Saints from Babylon. He believed this spirit would grow and increase, and that the work of God had reached that point in its history that it could not make a retrograde movement. The speaker alluded to the union of feeling between the Saints all over the world, how they in Europe united with those in Utah in sustaining the measures adopted in the congregation of the Lord in Zion, and contrasted the feelings created while traveling abroad, among the elders, and when among the Saints in their mountain home. Spoke of the love and friendship existing among the people of God, and did not exist to the same extent anywhere in the world. The speaker felt that this people was his people and their God his God. He desired to serve the God of Jacob, the God of Joseph, if he would give him strength to do so, and would serve no other God. He invoked the blessing of the Lord upon the assembly, and closed with an earnest prayer for the welfare of the Saints and the progress of God's kingdom universally.

President George Q. Cannon arose and expressed his pleasure at what he had heard from the preceding speakers. The labors of the elders of this Church were extraordinary. The preaching of religious doctrines was a very common thing in the world, but it was a very uncommon thing for men to go forth preaching such doctrines as the elders of Israel, and doing it in the same way, going forth without purse or scrip, trusting in God for assistance, and devoting time, talents and energies to the cause of enlightening their fellow men with the truth. The speaker knew of no better proof of sincerity than was given by the missionaries of the Latter-day Saints, who were sent to various nations of the earth. They received no salaries for preaching the Gospel, but were commanded to go forth among strangers, without purse or scrip, and trust in the Lord for sustenance and protection. Nor was their faith in vain, for no elder who had done this had ever been disappointed, for God had always been near to protect and raise up friends to assist him. The speaker said he had seen the experience of the elders of Israel written and preserved, that they might be read hereafter even as the Acts of the Apostles are read to-day; and that the modern record would contain many things equally as remarkable, would make a much larger volume than that which recounted the experience of the apostles, and would be equally interesting. He drew the contrast between the religious views of the Latter-day Saints and the doctrines of sectarian Christendom, respecting the actions of the Almighty toward his children upon the earth, referred to the faith of the Saints in new revelation and showed how it was sustained by the holy scriptures. He did not believe there was a child who read the Bible without interference from any other teacher, that would not be filled with faith in the doctrine of immediate revelation from God; for nowhere in that sacred book, was such an idea suggested in the least. And yet how different were the opinions and doctrines of men. The speaker dwelt upon the teachings of Joseph Smith, the prophet, concerning the necessity for new revelation, and the revelations of the Great Creator, and the willingness of God to give to all men, modern as well as ancient, the revelations of his mind and will; also to give unto all the plan of salvation, showing no partiality in the distribution of his blessings. These doctrines, preached by the Saints, had awakened a wide-spread feeling of opposition against them. They were doctrines that laid the axe at the root of the tree of priestcraft, and this Church to-day was standing in protest against every false religion, whose ministers preached for hire and divided for money. Hence it was that the professors of such religions were our bitterest enemies, and sought our destruction and overthrow. But this work was not to be destroyed, it was impossible to eradicate "Mormonism," unless his volutes were exterminated, and truth, virtue, integrity, freedom and purity swept from off the face of the earth. All these were ideas of "Mormonism," and would grow and increase until they filled the whole world. When they were destroyed, then this religion would cease to have an existence. The speaker reviewed the persecutions of the ancient Saints, the overthrow of the church organization, the apostasy from the primitive faith, the ages of darkness, the struggle between then and the discovery of this land, where God has again reared up his Church in these latter days and sent his servants to the four quarters of the earth to gather his Israel to the land of Zion. He further alluded upon the history of the Gospel, its nature, effects, future prospects, and closed by describing the great advantages enjoyed by the Saints over all other peoples of the world. The choir sang, "Comfort ye my people."
