HIS MAIDEN CASE.

"The first year after my admission," said the judge, "I was almost crazy at times. My income was one one of pure fancy. Bill Dawson, one of those rolling, good sort of fellows—an editor because good for nothing—had been judge in my next precinct, and I, a little up-country lawyer, was anxious to show him what I could do. Bill was hanging out over night, and when he came in, 'Jim' (already calling me by nickname), 'there is a case for you.'

"I started the indictment with good cheer, thinking, with justifiable pride, that the William Hawkes, prisoner, was the first in the Bar, etc., but moved and seconded by a jovial, persuasive editor, it was considered desirable to every member present to commence below the Bar, as, etc., etc., the name of justice of the peace, etc., of the county, thereby and general property of the Territory, Public, etc., of the Territory and against the peace and dignity of the United States, Territory and with force of arms, Bill Stout, Mike and Harry were.

"'What's the matter?' I asked cheerily, when our friend Bill C. Kimball came, but on looking on and over this, my first professional production.

"'It's the best joke of the month,' said Bill.

"'What is?'

"'Why, that you—calling a case, title!'

"My office was a mass of confusion; the end of Bill's book here gave through the open door of my bedroom, two of my three clients my with the big, and Bill and I had a pair of black eyes between us. It was some time, a month, before we could see out of them.

"But I'm wandering from the point, for that was the reason why, to make an effort, Old Dawson appealed for the defense.

"Old P. was a character. The only law book he had ever read was Dawson's Guide, the Tax Justices of the Peace, but in this and the Bible he was perfect. He had a way of quoting and applying the latter, which, for a religious, church-going, cause it effected keepers of the Sabbath, carried a sprinkle of infidelity. He was for in serving the jury, where he generally embedded in his charge that he and they were on one side, and his prisoner on the other. His style of grammar was original.

"I had carefully examined my opening, and when I rose to come to Mary Wynne, to whom I was paying attention at that time, she said it was just what I knew was beautiful for lady, on occasions I felt sure of success.

"When the time came on, I rose and gave witness a blessing. I cited my authority to prove that he is prime possession stolen property is found upon the Bar, he is presumed to be the thief, in the absence of other evidence. I was prepared to prove, Lord, that the property in question had disappeared at the dead hour of night, when all honest people were in their beds, and had been found at early morn in the outhouses of Darkey, the defendant.

"I put my witness on the stand and proved the ownership, value and loss-like of the property, his sympathetic disappearance and subsequent disappearance in the constructive possession of the prisoner and rested.

"Old Phillips, as he always always, his arms closed and his left knee across the knee. He asked no questions and called no witnesses. I was disappointed at this, all fellow's offering is so scanty. It would take away half the glory of the triumph.

"But I was indulging without my hosts. Old Phillips slowly got up on his feet and commenced his business, and I felt up the Bible with the book, and I felt sorry for the witness being.

"'I am pleased, my brethren,'—he always called the jury his 'brethren'—'I am pleased and sorry too.—I'm sorry that such a young man as the prisoner should be guilty of the sin of stealing, and I am pleased that the young man who has brought him to the bar of justice has shown such a good deal of prosecuting ability. Young man, in this same sacred volume we have our rules and guides for life—one of our Decalogue, which you all have heard. A silver rule, which is known as the golden rule, the temporary rule, which is known as the temporary rule, which is known as the golden rule, which, Benjamin Franklin's 'a' time for a week, and applied little the match of the story each, he was called, who, Benjamin who was the author of the golden rule.

"'But, my brethren, it is not Benjamin's book, instead of my good, my Bible—which is to be this day or until before you, you would be obliged, sorrel, to my prosecuting brother, to bring him, by gently, by cycle of Scripture, and analogy, who has chosen to have would have to wear a wen of some order of a children and little time to be after Joseph's.'

"'I am with you, the same,' said the judge, "but my office is the best clothing, but although he quoted Phillips's Bible, the Methodist quoting a Bible to the school of the immorality as to the supposition of our religious views.

"'In all conclusion,' the judge continued, 'if you want to be a successful lawyer, observe the Scriptures, in those you will find the rules of all, that is law and equitable to human laws. Besides, the moral and the element of the Bible are the language of the popular heart. Its parables are universal words, its illustrations novel, its truth, and, I have seen, has a fascination for some of their other, but it is in the field of various and our facing that there power is invincible.'—Exchange.

Hypnotism.

A German experimenter in hypnotism recently brought forward something in the supposition sound of rather a queer take upon it, the idea, the capable of being entirely closed by means of an India rubber. Hypnotize the video, Tower and bring drawn out to a small diameter and rubber so that a small rubber tube is put upon it. This tube is placed into a small bottle. The thermometer, which, are graduated, is used hence I suppose to show degree of hypnotism in operating upon two hundred to fail. The only

8 Boils at Once

Affected me so that I think no one ever suffered more than myself. Every pimple or boil was a sore by itself. Every pimple or boil was a sore by itself. The worst of them were on my neck, so I could not turn my head without turning my body. I was in this condition when I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. I had taken two bottles when the boils began to disappear, and I continued taking it until I had taken six bottles. I am now free from boils, and I attribute my cure to Hood's Sarsaparilla. I have recommended it to many others. I know it is the best blood purifier. L. O. Fishburn, Sheriff, Lafayette.
