SWIFT WHEELS OF STEEL.

Yesterday's Great Bicycle Racing at Beck's Hot Springs.

A Couple of Records Smashed Completely—Young Thatcher Proved Himself a Regular Comet.

Yesterday was a red letter day in the annals of Salt Lake cycling. Some 2,500 people witnessed the races at popular prices, the universal verdict being that they were far and away the best ever held in Salt Lake.

"Sandy" Thatcher was the hero of the hour, for he clipped an even second from the world's record, and incidentally made things interesting for spectators and participants alike in every race he appeared in.

Hassard also made a new record for Utah mile unpaced flying start, lowering it from 2:30 4-5 to 2:25 flat.

Hyde in class A, mile, secured a Pacific coast record, 2:10, which last time caused the pace-making tandem to wish they hadn't undertaken the job.

The meet opened with the novice race, one mile, 8 entries. A. T. Hill was given the pole, the others strung right across the track to give them plenty of room to perform those circus tricks that are so inseparable from a novice event when the scorching commences. However, it was needless—nobody seemed to want to set the pace; the first lap was accompanied by Held's band in "We went come home till morning," and sarcastic remarks from the bleachers. Everybody woke up in the last lap when Charley Smith shot to the front and crossed the tape thirty yards ahead of Cortez, with Joe Beck a close third; time 3:30.

The second event, one-third mile scratch, class B, was the gem of the meet. It was a race from the pistol shot. Evans got his favorite place on the outside and the seven leading lights of the local cycling world fairly burnt their tires. On the home stretch Evans put on one of his phenomenal spurts, but Thatcher also had one in reserve, the Logan athlete coming in first, Evans second, with F. E. Schefski a close third, Thatcher beating the world's record by one second (time 41 3-5). Thus besides winning the $35 ring he secured the $100 diamond offered by the Track association for the man who makes a world's record on the home track.

The quarter mile scratch class A was won by Callinson, H. O. Jensen second, and Fowler, the Ogden man, third, in 33 1-5 with a close finish. Fowler was protested as being a class B man.

The one mile class B was evidently a record-breaking scheme, as the 1, 2 and 3 places in each lap were accorded 3, 2 and 1 points respectively. Schefski took two second places and one first, which was tied by Weller in 2:19 1-5. The public were disappointed in not having the race run over again, but Weller and Schefski preferred to toss for the prize, which was secured by the former.

The business men's race, with eight entries, caused quite an outburst of partisanship. R. H. McKay, the heavy weight, clad in skin-tight blue, received 150 yards handicap; J. L. Barrow, the diminutive, 100 yds; Lorin U. King, the dashing druggist, 70 yds; Johnson, Nial and Spencer, 50 yds, with Adonis McConahey and Hewett scratch. Avoirdupois got a good start and with a smile both childlike and bland worked his pedal extremities like a two-year-old. The crowd yelled themselves hoarse as McKay kept the lead and finally landed over the line a good first. McConahey showed fine speed, but failed to develop in the last 100 yards, Hewett overhauling him in a style that is familiar to the violators of the bicycle ordinance. The rest of Salt Lake's athletic business men were, to say the least of it, a little scattered.

The mile scratch, class A, with Crall and Bissell tandem pacemakers, was another gem. Hyde and Callinson struggled for supremacy throughout and on the home stretch raced the tandem; Hyde first, Callinson second; time, 2:10—which was a record for the United States west of the Missouri.

The seventh event, class B, one mile handicap, was the closest of the whole afternoon; Hassard 75 yards and Thatcher 60, with Cunlbear, Evans and Schefski scratch. The scratch men soon closed up, Hassard and Thatcher leading until the last turn, when Evans got the bank and raced Thatcher down towards the goal. It was a splendid race and nobody could place the winner until two of the judges decided for Evans, the other for Thatcher.

SPOKES.

Beck's cycle track has established a reputation as a fast one.

Hyde will be emphatically heard from later. So will Schefski.

Home grown talent was very much in evidence yesterday afternoon.

Wm. McConahey surprised his friends with his class B scorching.

What's the matter with Thatcher as a home production? He's all right.

Crimson and white got its share of the plums. Still it was distinctly Hassard's day.

If Decoration Day races were worth 50 cents, yesterday afternoon's sport was the best 25 cents worth on record.

At the Theater Tonight.

At the Theater tonight Miss Babcock's benefit entertainment for the Utah Kindergarten association will be repeated, and, being as it is, a most creditable production given for a worthy purpose it should be greeted by a large audience. The Eleusinia is a new and novel sort of performance in this part of the country and the success with which it is presented should make it as popular as it was in the days of pleasure-loving Greece.

Excursion to the Lake.

The Republican committee of Salt Lake county, is arranging for a gala day at the Lake, which it states will be the ratification of the State Constitution. Appropriate committees have in hand the program, consisting of oratorical and musical exercises, games and various athletic sports, etc. The date and program will be announced soon; and the committee says the event will be made one of good will and rejoicing at the prospects of Utah's Statehood.

Going to Garfield.

A big excursion to Garfield will be given on Monday next under the auspices of the Scandinavian choir in celebration of Midsummer's day.

DRIVEN OFF A SHIP.

TERRIBLE EXPERIENCES ON AN ITALIAN BARK.

The crew of the Italian bark America, Captain Ferari, which arrived last night, April 2nd, from Buenos Ayres, after a passage of seventy days, had an experience that would have driven most men mad, having been pestered for a nearly sixty days by millions of peculiar bugs which came on board among the bones, and when the temperature of the hold where they were stowed became too hot they found their way into the cabins and forecastle, making life almost unendurable for all hands of the crew.

When Boarding Officer Rauch went on board the America from the cutter Washington off Gloucester last night, he found the cabins alive with insects of every size and description and made an early retreat back to his own boat, where he went through the form of examining the papers and certifying to their correctness.

Old Captain Ferari, who is 72 years old, laughed heartily at the manner in which the customs officials ran away from his vessel on Boston, and said that she was alive with vermin. He said all seemed not in the least disturbed, although Pilot Chambers, who conducted the bark to port, said that when he turned in Monday night he enveloped himself in his clothing, covering securely his head and hands.

The greatest annoyance experienced by the crew of the America was upon the vessel reaching the vicinity of the equator, where the weather set in intensely hot. The wind died out and for 8 tiesa days the bark lay becalmed, not making a mile. After the second day of the calm the bugs came up out of the hold, and not only swarmed the cabins, but literally covered the decks. They got into the rigging and the superstitious sailors were thoroughly alarmed. That night the condition of things became so horrible that sailors and officers were compelled to forsake their quarters and for a period of two weeks they lived on the poop deck. No effort could be made to rid the ship of the plague and for a time the vermin had complete control of the craft. The provisions and pastry were alive with these pestiferous insects and the top of the cabin, which is neatly painted, was black with them.

In speaking of the experience last night Captain Ferari said that it was no unusual thing for vessels to become filled with these insects as the bones are alive with them when shipped on board in South America. Their bite is not poisonous. Had it been so none of the men would have been spared to reach port. As it is, many of them show signs of having been almost devoured.

A most peculiar history is attached to the old bark America, which was built in Naples in 1877. At that time she was taken in charge by Captain E. Ferari, who shipped a crew of fourteen men, none of whom have ever deserted and she arrived here yesterday with the same crew that she set out on her maiden voyage eighteen years ago. None have died, nor have any suffered illness in all that time. Shipping men say this is unprecedented in the history of merchant ships, as it is a well known fact that the ordinary merchant sailor never makes more than one trip in any vessel. On board the old-fashioned craft all seem like one family. No cross words are spoken nor is any difference of opinion exist. The old skipper is extremely religious and in the after cabin is erected an altar, before which the crew pray every morning.—Philadelphia Press.

To Sue the Receivers.

Thomas Graver, by his attorneys, appeared before Judge Merritt this afternoon and asked leave to sue the receivers of the Union Pacific and Oregon Short Line railway, which was granted.

Live Stock Points.

There is danger that the reduction in the number of horses may be carried too far. Cheap horses all over the country have been killed and fed to hogs, or taken to fertilizer vats, their hides and hoofs bringing what they would. The rapid change from horsepower to electricity for hauling street cars has thrown out many thousands. Possibly 100,000 would not be too great. But this realization has been nearly accomplished. The past few years have shown also for the first time in the history of the country numbers of American horses, driving horses mostly, shipped to Europe. The thinning out is now at the stage where it must presently cease. Recollect five years are required to produce a horse and fit it for getting the top price in the market. It is well, therefore, for those who are disposing of their horses in disgust and despair to look ahead five years. There will not be too many horses five years from now, or even three years from now. There may be a dearth. Then up will jump the price of horseflesh, especially heavy drafts and drivers. Begin now, therefore, to prepare for the rise. Breed no more old or broachy or toothless mares. Breed only the very best. Produce first class horses, and you will reap your reward. It is sure.

It becomes more difficult to dispose of dairy cows for slaughtering. Still there is much worse beef sold every day than that of an old cow that has been fattened rapidly. Her beef is often thoroughly sweet and tender. We have found it so on the farm, where an old cow is killed for family use occasionally. There is everything in the way she is fattened, however. A man who buys cows both for dairying and fattening says when he takes a cow thin in flesh, also giving milk, he first begins to feed her all she will bear. If the added feed increases her milk flow so that she will be profitable for the dairy for a time, he puts her into the dairy. If, on the other hand, she gains in flesh without increasing in milk, then he dries her off and fattens her as rapidly as possible. This seems to be a good plan for those who do not know what to do with old cows. Fattened quickly, and on choice food, they are often worth more as beeves for home use than as sold to the butcher.

A "glassy, tremulous eye" indicates that a horse is stupid.

Horses and mules will work along well when fed on dry alfalfa hay alone.

Prime beef is made on the ranches of California by giving steers 32 to 34 pounds of dry alfalfa hay daily, with all the water they want and salt within reach.

News and Notes.

Let every potato grower give the corrosive sublimate treatment and Bordeaux mixture a fair trial this summer.

The advantages of wide tires for both the team and the road are thoroughly demonstrated.

Rural New Yorker has always advised against the use of fresh, unleached wood ashes for potatoes. Scab has almost invariably resulted from such use.

American Agriculturist calls attention to the fact that, now that many of the telephone patents have expired and the instruments in use are free to all, farmers who have barbed wire fences may convert them into telephone lines.

A Wisconsin contributor to Farm and Fireside reports that a patch of crimson clover which he sowed last fall endured the winter and now looks well. It is a more favorable report than was expected from that latitude.
