The dome of the capitol at Salem, Or., has been furnished with not large, a few and lights, which are more in the light of the sun at night.

Summit county, Colo., has a silver lodge of 50 members and an effort is being made to secure the state league with lands.

Trinidad, Col., prospectors having succeeded in finding the gold-bearing ledges are now engaged in a combined religious crusade or revival.

Gale Mohr, a bright boy of Corvallis City, Ore., has made a steam engine entirely by his own hands. It is said that the little machine runs perfectly.

Austin, Nev., is now almost cut off from the rest of the world. The western Union Telegraph company has closed the office, and the town depends on the railroad for news.

Delta, Colo., fruit growers have appointed a canvassing committee to take the settlement of Delta county citizens relative to a county fair next fall.

Horses which formerly sold for $50 and $60 in Harney valley, Oregon, are now being sold for $25. Formerly a team was sold for $10 a head for a year without money, to be paid for in two years.

Sapinche announces the survey by the Kingsbury Canal and Lake company of canals and lateral ditches, and Sapinche for bringing under cultivation a large acreage of new land near Lyons.

The recent blockade of trains, caused by the severe storm in the mountains, was not without its pleasant side. While one of the trains was delayed at Reno, Nevada, a wedding took place in the Pullman drawing-room car of the train.

A Los Angeles man went into the county clerk's office to a other day and asked the record of a marriage license which had been issued to his wife to wed another man. She had left him some time before, but there had been no divorce.

One John N. Sherman, who died in Los Angeles county, Cal., some months ago, left a will containing some peculiar provisions. It requires that if there is any dissatisfaction among the heirs they must settle the matter by arbitration and without appeal to the courts.

In a recent drill by the Fort Canby (Wash.) lifesaving crew the time occupied in the rescue of an imaginary shipwrecked sailor from a mast 200 yards distant was only two and one-half minutes from the time the captain and his men arrived on the ground.

Wheatland, Wyo., the newly started railway station nine miles north of Cheyenne, has now 115 families located there. It is expected to form into importance as a grain and potato growing county during the present year. The town is clean, fertile and well irrigated.

J. D. Smith, for many years a resident of Vacaville, Cal., gave a few mortuary sighs and left the bedroom to fight the fire. A few minutes later his wife heard a loud report, and on listening to the spot found that her husband was dying, having shot himself with a revolver while standing before a mirror.

Delta county, Colo., is going into fruit planting by wholesale. Last week's Delta paper report several immense orchards, extending for miles across each and one of 160 acres. Delta is the coming fruit county of the state, says an exchange. The north fork of the Gunnison is a natural horticultural paradise.

Arrangements have been completed for the enlargement of the Chino (Cal.) sugar factory and the addition of new machinery. The capacity will be increased to about 1,000 tons of beets per day. Nearly 10,000 acres will be planted to beets this year. The output of sugar last season was 15,000 tons. This will be increased to over 10,000 in the coming season.

Denver has secured the great annual meet of the wheelmen of the country for 1894. It is expected that 25,000 wheelmen will be present. Denver has 5,000 of its own. Arrangements will be made for a relay race from Washington, D. C., to Denver during the meet, to bring a message from President Cleveland to the president of the L. A. W.

The Golden Hole Brass, a large establishment at San Francisco, is a mass of ruins. The fire which destroyed it on Tuesday night was the most disastrous that the city has experienced for many months. The loss, which is nearly total, is put at $75,000, estimated by the firm at about $25,000, covered by an insurance of $10,000 in nearly all the local agencies. The building was located for about $50,000 insurance. The cause of the fire is unknown.

Ed M. Hall on Tuesday had his preliminary examination at Fresno on the charge of assaulting Chris Evans, the notorious outlaw, in Kings county last December. He waived an examination and showed no disposition to set up a defense. To all questions as to where he would be ready for trial and whether he wanted an attorney his answer was that the "court might suit his own convenience, as anything would do. Whatever seems the most right to the people," said he, "is good for me, as I have nothing to conceal or to show what you to with me."

Chris Evans seemingly accepts the prison confinement as a sure but within the prison walls at Fresno very philosophically, says the San Francisco Chronicle. He is generally seen in fancy vest, shirt, and a silly sort of a hat. He is a member of the Red Men Lodge, the odd fellows, the odd fellows, and many other lodges. He is fond of the company of the prisoners, and many are the stories he tells to them of his experiences among them which they relate to each other after lock-up. The cause of Evans being placed in the cell with Hall is, not to be dangerous, the strongest one within the city can be made, being composed of solid granite blocks, and weighing tons. It is simply impossible for any one to escape. Evans has been detailed to act as doorkeeper in the passage leading from the jail proper to the dormitory, the cells, etc. His duties consist in opening and shutting the doors, sometimes passing a prison officer, to accord the chair leading to the cells, a courtesy not shown to the other prisoners.

Willis Officer Fielder was writing to-night the other night, when a very queer accident occurred, says the Carson (Nevada) Appeal. He was on the window of the office in front of Fitzpatrick's store, when, in glancing down the sidewalk, he noticed a man sitting with his arms around a lamp post as though in pain. Still entire to him and asked what the matter was. The man never moved, and Fielder, thinking perhaps he was drunk, walked to work him, with the idea of giving him a night's lodging in a place by accidental slow suicide. When he reached the spot the man had vanished. Officer says he wasn't sound asleep, but he felt mighty queer. He was sure he saw a man sitting there and didn't know what to make of the disappearance. After pinching himself to ascertain as to whether he was awake or not, he scuttled off. When he reached the street again he glanced back, and there was that man again. Turn to chase and looked very earnestly for a few minutes and discovered the man to be a shadow cast by the electric light.

A verdict para, descended to all the amusement of Western premier, present quite a sensation at the Commercial hotel the last before yesterday, says the Florence (Ariz.) Gazette. He was regaled as a guest awaiting the arrival of some friends who are expecting at Camp McD well, and have been residing Capsula Rough description of early life in Arizona. He is decidedly pretty, wears crossed pistols, flowing mane in a velvet hat, and a boat-oriented white felt hat. Although he is the personification of the petite cowboy, gentle in manner, strength in the presence of the fair sex, tall and bed amongst the bad. The neighbors in the adjoining rooms have been consequently agitated at the demeanor and sudden to Mississippi gentleman. He causes his boots to indent himself in all the accompaniments of hostile warfare, assume the still voice of a dove and do some before his bedroom mirror, holding dialogues with imaginary Indians, the "Kid" in particular. The adjoining cause a sudden premonition yesterday in the mid-central discharge of his pistols. Some of his guests, on rushing to the scene, found a badly wound indeed. His friends remained knock Stillwell, who he can practice his favorite to his heart's content without danger to his immediate neighbors.
