AFTER TWENTY-FIVE YEARS.

Twenty-five years ago this month the war commenced that resulted in the unification of the German empire, enlarged with two French provinces, and the establishment of the third French republic on the ruins of the third empire. In July war was declared and the first engagement occurred in the first week of August at Weissenberg. Three weeks later, September 2, Sedan fell and Napoleon was carried captive to Germany. On February 28, 1871, the victorious armies marched through the streets of Paris. It is doubtful whether any other conflict ever assumed so gigantic proportions and resulted in so great achievements so little in so brief a time. It was but one tremendous blow, and all was over.

In Germany the great events of the war will be celebrated with much enthusiasm. And no wonder. For it was the means of once more restoring to that country the power and honor so long withheld from her by the despotic French Czars. And Emperor William, with Napoleonic ideas of his own, has special cause for celebration, since without these victories won by his grandfather, General Von Moltke and Prince Bismarck, he would at this time be at most a rather insignificant king, instead of the ruler of one of the most powerful empires of Europe.

It is not to be presumed that the French will be invited to join in the festivities this time as they were in the ceremonies at Kiel. And yet, they too, have come to look backward without regret, for the war proved ultimately a blessing to France, since that country now from its humiliation to liberty and progress. The price paid may have been great, but it was not greater than other nations have given for freedom from despotism. The two provinces were originally German and were but returned, and the five milliards was gold chiefly hoarded up during the second empire and could be well spared for the emergency. Looking at the great war of 1870-71 from a purely impartial standpoint, it appears, then, that France has as much cause to celebrate as Germany, if not more, because the former emerged from it a republic, while the latter has ever thus been struggling with imperialism, more or less to the retirement of her development in the direction of democracy.

A "RESCUE CAR."

Novelties in the way of preaching are being sought for on every hand, and seem to receive the support of very many people. Several recent exploits in this direction have been noted in the News, and it is now in order to chronicle another of which Salt Lake City and Ogden probably will have an experience. The scheme is by Charles N. Crittenton, a rich New Yorker, who is the chief support of the Florence mission for the rescue of fallen women. He now proposes an eighteen months' missionary tour over the railroads to all parts of the United States.

For the purpose of carrying out his project, Mr. Crittenton has purchased a passenger car, which he calls "Good News," and with it the start from New York will be made on August 19th. It has sleeping accommodations for fourteen, a dining room and a kitchen. At every point on the journey where the train switches off for a wait of fifteen minutes a service of song and exhortation will be conducted from the car platform. Notice will be sent to the prominent Christian women of Lower Utah of the time at which the train makes any extended stop that the rescue can be conducted. A portable organ is in the car, and when the train comes to a standstill it will be placed out upon the rear platform and some fine male or a sweet-voiced male singer. The party of evangelists will be composed entirely of men. The route as outlined takes in the principal towns between Chicago, via St. Louis, and Denver; the extreme Northwest as far as Portland, Oreg.; then California, the Southern Pacific and the Atlantic Coast states. The car will be at some place from three to ten days. Union meetings in cities or churches will be arranged in every city and town to which the car remains over night, and services for railroad men will also be held.

No doubt the carrying out of this project will attract a great deal of attention in some parts, and perhaps some persons will be benefited by it. But after all, a religion or professed reform movement which requires resulting in such sensational methods of promulgation cannot have within it much of those elements which make it permanent and valuable. Its appeal is not to the intelligence of the individual.

UTAH AT THE FAIR.

"Utah at the World's Columbian Exposition" is the title of a handsome work just published, the contents and purpose of which are evident from the title. The author, E. A. McDonald, neither explains that it is not a report of the Utah World's Fair commission, but rather a history of the commission and the work it accomplished in behalf of Utah at the Chicago Exposition. It is an authentic record of that important work and will stand as such for all great within. The volume contains numerous illustrations and is in every respect a perfect work of art, all the more gratifying because it is a home product. Among the illustrations are the following: Utah Building, Statue of Brigham Young, Utah World's Fair Commissioners, the Tabernacle Choir, and the Presidency of the Church.

CUBA'S PROSPECTS.

The resignation of Martinez Campos, governor general of Cuba, and his recommendation that the island be granted home rule, is the brightest indication yet seen for the success of the Cuban revolutionists. It is an open confession that not only is the insurrection not on the verge of being suppressed, but that the Spanish general has given up all hope of victory. So long as there was a chance that the arms of Spain could reduce the Cubans to subjection, Campos would not have relinquished his efforts to do so. Now he says that he is unable to carry out the designs of the parent government, and by advising the concessions named expresses the conviction that no other Spanish can succeed where he has met failure.

With this new development it is not improbable that the Cuban insurrectionists will receive recognition from some of the powers as belligerents. Already there had been a leaning in that direction in some quarters, and this event cannot but hasten such proper action. Then the Cubans will be able to more easily secure aid from the outside, enabling them to make better progress in the struggle for freedom. The action of Campos seems to indicate the dawn of Cuban independence.

ANTI-SEMITISM.

The sentiment against the Jews in Europe apparently is growing, instead of abating. One would suppose that hatred of a race would not find suitable soil for growth in this century, and particularly not among nations that boast of the highest civilization. In Germany, however, where the agitation has been kept up for years against the Hebrews, an anti-Semitic party has now been formed, under the leadership of Dr. Boeckel, Herr Ahlwardt and others.

According to the program of this party no one who is a Jew is eligible to employment in any department of the national service, and medical, legal and pedagogical professions are to be closed against them. There are other proposed measures of an equally radical nature.

With the term "Jew" this party of fanatics understands anyone whose family has, within three generations, contained a single member of Jewish blood, and every Gentile family, one of whose members has married a Jew. Jews who have for generations renounced the Hebrew faith and embraced Christianity are no better off. Once a Jew always a Jew is to be the motto of Ahlwardt and his followers.

As already remarked, it seems strange that this agitation is being kept up. The Hebrews as a people are certainly no worse than the Gentiles among whom they dwell. But there is evidently a providential purpose in all that has befallen that race. They may, in individual cases, attain the highest excellence in statesmanship, in commerce, in arts, in business, yet as a people they remain strangers nearly all over the world. Everything tends to prove that they are not to be amalgamated, but remain a nation among nations until the time comes for them to return to the land of their fathers and inherit the cities of Judah. "The nation of the Messiah is destined to become the monarch of the nations," as an eloquent rabbi recently said to a gentile in this city, but in order to fit it for this mission they must assume a position superior to that they held in the world originally. And it is not unreasonable to suppose that as anti-Semitism grows in the world, the nation will awaken in their hearts to find a country of their own and that independence without which their glorious mission can never be accomplished.

SPEED OF BICYCLES.

Riders of the wheel frequently get discussions into trouble for shooting the contests which involve the idea of a bicycle's speed in certain distances, and when the wheelmen are interested in records almost to a fine point, it is not to be wondered at that no one is judging at the high rate of speed which pedestrians claim to be a marvelous thing. There is a letter in the issue of the Bicycling World and Bicycle Review, wherein it is mentioned that the rider who takes an easy pace on his safety really goes at about double the speed he fancies he is making, unless he has had experience in timing himself.

Upon the matter of restricting bicycles to a six-mile speed, as is done in many cities in parks and on sidewalks, the Wheelmen says that "six miles an hour is a crawl on a bicycle," and then gives an illustration of two persons assuming on a tandem for three hours, when one requested the other to make an estimate of the distance they had traveled. A mental calculation resulted in the suggestion that possibly eighteen miles had been covered. The actual result is told in the language of the person who made the inquiry:

"Now, see here, with the improvement in the mechanics of the wheel and tire, and the high gear used, the average pace of bicycle riders has increased wonderfully, and for comparison I'll say we have been measuring, and we know, too, how is your position. The tandem rate we have been measuring just three hours, and the engineer engineers the distance traveled at a little over twenty-two miles. The speedometer tells us, because the high gear of the wheel go over a great deal of ground without any quick pedaling, and you have forgotten the many roads taken which the pace was a mile in two and three minutes. So the average pace has been over one mile an hour, and with less exertion than you could have made a pace of seven miles three years ago.

Thus the bicycler goes over the ground much quicker than he usually supposes, because of the vast improvements made in the wheels the past few years. In effecting this progress the manufacturers have accomplished great results and removed many obstacles that formerly were almost insurmountable to wheelmen. However, as fast passengers remain at the same old gait, it will not be advisable to raise the limit of speed for bicycles on frequented walks; rather the advance will emphasize the idea that the machines should take the roadway with other vehicles as far as practicable.

A FRENCH statistician, says an exchange, computes that in France about two million dollars is annually wasted in the expense of printing useless letters and pronouncing, and that in the British-speaking countries not less than seven and a half million dollars is thrown away annually on useless printer's ink. This makes no account of the writing paper and the journalistic time thus wasted on letters not pronounced, not to speak of other useless special newspaper men. But the saddest loss is that in the education of children.

Marvelous Results.

From a letter writing by Rev. J. Gunderman, of Gilmendale, Minn., We are permitted to make the extract: "I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery, as the results were almost marvelous in the case of my wife. While I was pastor of the Baptist Church at Rives Junction she was brought down with Pneumonia accentuating La Grippe. Terrible paroxysms of coughing would last hours, with little interruption and it seemed as if she could not survive them. A friend recommended Dr. King's New Discovery; it was quick in its work and highly satisfactory in results." Trial bottles free at Z. C. M. I. drug department. Regular size 50c. and $1.00.

AN OPINION GIVEN.

Recently Mr. J. D. Thomas, of North Dakota, visited the Shenandoah Valley, Virginia, and after carefully examining the country located in Winchester, he writes to Mr. V. Richards, Land and Immigration Agent, Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, Baltimore, Maryland, as follows: "I have been in twenty-seven states and territory of the United States, and am back in my opinion that this valley surpasses all other sections in the Union. The farms are low in price, and produce profitable crops. I thank you for inducing me here, and solicit those seeking pleasant and profitable homes to come to this country."
