Editor Deseret News:

Replying to your request for an opinion on the merits of the Encyclopædia Britannica, I will say that while I advise any reader or student following any particular line of knowledge not to content himself with what he might learn from articles in an encyclopædia, yet as a work of reference, the encyclopædia is a like indispensable to the general reader and student. For, apart from any line of knowledge one may be making a specialty of, the sport of our age requires, even of specialists, that they have at least general information upon the leading subjects that now interest mankind. In the acquirement of that information a first class encyclopædia is indispensable. Too much upon encyclopædias and their usefulness in general.

Of the Encyclopædia Britannica what can I say that has not already been better said by some of the world's best scholars? It is almost universally accepted as an authority, as its articles on the subjects treated—and those subjects embrace the whole field of human knowledge—are written by specialists whose scholarship and abilities are well known and while the articles are condensed, one may rest assured that they contain substantially all the leading facts of the subject, together with the deductions from those facts of the world's great thinkers. This makes the Britannica not only a library of universal knowledge, but a library of the opinions of the world's best minds.

I have also examined the proposition of the Home University League you submitted to me, and while it is a new movement, the plan commends itself to my judgment, as affording young and middle-aged men who are or who have been denied the advantage of attending academies or universities, but who, nevertheless, are ambitious of obtaining a standing for scholarship, an opportunity to gratify that laudable ambition.

Very truly yours,

B. H. ROBERTS.

DEATH IN TEXAS.

Elder Hall, an a Mission, Suddenly Expires.

BODY WILL BE BROUGHT HOME.

Sad News Received Today from the Headquarters of the Southern States Mission.

A telegram was received today giving the sad intelligence of the death of Elder Charles Scott Hall, who has been laboring as a missionary in Texas. The sorrowful event occurred this morning, death being sudden. No particulars are given in the dispatch, save that the statement is made that the cause of Brother Hall's demise is unknown. The body will be accompanied to this city by Elder Elias S. Kimball, president of the Southern States mission.

Elder Hall is from West Portage, Box Elder county. He left on his mission less than three months ago—on the 11th of May last. He was in the fifteen year of his age, having been born at Addington, Buckinghamshire, England. He was a member of the Forty-second quorum of Seventies.

EXPERT ANDERSON'S REPORT.

Public Accounts That Do Not Tally But No Blame Specific as to Who is Responsible.

The News stated yesterday that Expert Accountant Anderson had finished auditing the accounts of the county for the years 1893 and 1894. The following is the beginning of his report. The many pages of amounts and recapitulation are too lengthy to be given here but will be published in pamphlet form:

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH, Aug. 2, 1895.

To J. Clifford McNally, Probate Judge, and Archibald S. Godbe, Chas. H. Roberts and Martin Christensen, Commissioners of Salt Lake County:

Gentlemen:—In response to your request to audit the accounts of Salt Lake county for the years 1893 and 1894, a general examination of the books was first made as they had been kept, including the bridge book of the county, the allowance book, and the register of warrants, and although these books cover the entire accounts of the county for the period stated during which time a total of $715,-[illegible] had been handled, from these books it was impossible to trace the exact disposition of the funds, and it therefore became necessary to commence with the first claim, number so called, and make an entirely new set of accounts, this has been done in the following manner:

First—An account has been opened with each party to which warrants had been issued during 1893 and 1894. These ledger accounts are very much in detail, giving the names and addresses, the date of each warrant, the number of the warrant, the amount thereof, what the claim was for, as far as possible, and the different headings under which necessarily every account has been segregated. In a large majority of cases these accounts were double, one being for paid and the other for unpaid warrants. These accounts aggregate, approximately, 1,000, and embrace 10,000 warrants.

Second—A segregation of all the claims under their proper headings was then made (eighty in all), giving opposite each party's name the amounts paid and unpaid, and the sum of the two. This segregation appears on the accompanying sheets, continued from 1 to 10, on the last three sheets of which appears a recapitulation, giving the names of the headings of the accounts, the amounts of unpaid and paid warrants, and the totals, the footing of which is $715,285.76. From this segregation the facts is presented to the determinant of every dollar of the county's money can be quickly and readily traced, and the name of the party to whom, and for what purpose paid, easily determined.

The performance of this work has been hampered by want of data, or bungling to give full details in all cases, for instance, 322 claims or vouchers, aggregating $21,[illegible] twenty-one thousand, one hundred and eighty-six 36-100 dollars, are missing, and vouchers aggregating $1,[illegible] have also been found, on which no details are given.

Of the 10,000 claims, aggregating $715,285.76, $2,[illegible] appear to be properly O.K'd, or certified to by any county officer.

In the roads department it has been the custom to pay to the supervisors of districts monthly the amount which they claimed as being due to the laborers in their respective districts, for which amount the supervisors have receipted, but if they, the supervisors, have had no control in the money proper payments or else books containing the signatures of the persons to whom they said he money, there is therefore no check in the county accounts upon those sums thus paid out, which have aggregated in the past five years, $[illegible]. This system has been in vogue for years, but should be remedied, in order to provide a check against errors, collusions, etc.

Claims aggregating $[illegible] were also found, but for which $[illegible] had been paid, and in tracing those back the amounts actually paid out were the only amounts considered, and so entered up.

This work has been more fully and carefully performed than other-wise would have been done, for the reason that I have realized that the greatest value to the county would be the use to which the report can be put, as a reference manual in making adjustments, and in settling the vast indebtedness with, existing against the county, a complete adjustment and settlement of which indebtedness will doubtless occasion a considerable amount of litigation.

The work performed does not include the checking up, or the examination in any manner of the books of the county treasurer, for have I checked up the various items of money paid out as checked by him on the warrants redeemed, which aggregate several thousand dollars.

Respectfully,

E. G. ANDERSON,
