PROVO, UTAH, SEPT. 22, 1894.

THE ERICKSON ADULTERY CASE.

Further Testimony—Verdict of Guilty Rendered.

Continuing the evidence in the case of City Marshal Erickson of Eureka, charged with adultery, F. M. Murray and James Christensen testified that previous to this charge the reputation of defendant was good.

Harriet Hansen testified that she called at the residence of Erickson on the night of the 14th, and went to the city hall to see him. When she left Mrs. Erickson's home she met Erickson, and had a short conversation with him. He told her to come and see him in the city hall. She did so, and found the council in session; she went down the basement to wait for him. She was at that time in a delicate condition. She had not lived happily with her husband for some time previous to this. She went to the city hall to speak to Mr. Erickson about her trouble with her husband; she had not had intercourse with Erickson; her husband was the father of her young babe. Her husband had come to her while she was in jail and had told her if she would plead guilty he would furnish her a good home. He had now brought suit for a divorce, charging adultery; she was contesting the divorce suit.

On cross examination she said she did not give any reason for not telling Erickson, on the street, the trouble with her husband, instead of going into the basement of the city hall. She refused to answer a number of questions.

The defendant took the stand. Mrs. Hansen had asked him on both occasions when they were together to treat her and consult with her in regard to a threat her husband had made to the effect that he would take the property and the children away from her out of court. The jail door was not locked when he and Mrs. Hansen were there. When he came the door fastened on the outside (he held to the door on the outside) "Wait, if you won't come in I will close out," and broke through the door. The Hansens grabbed him by the throat and hands. He had said it was not so bad for him as for his wife, and asked to be allowed to leave. He had reference to the fact that he was found alone with Mrs. Hansen, and not to any immoral act that had been committed. He declared that any immoral act had at any time taken place between himself and Mrs. Hansen. He characterized the testimony of witnesses, who had testified that he had confessed his guilt as "the blackest lies ever told by human beings."

On cross examination nothing new was brought out.

The case was argued by Mr. Thurman for the people, and Messrs. King & Warner for the defense, and after instructions from the Court the jury retired and were out about three hours and a half; they were then called in and instructed to bring a sealed verdict Friday morning, in case they agreed before that time. The jury came in the morning at 10 o'clock, and at 10:30 o'clock a telegram was received from Judge Smith directing the jury to be in attendance at 4 o'clock in the afternoon with their verdict. At 4 o'clock Judge Smith opened court, and Foreman Snow handed the sealed verdict to the clerk. The verdict was guilty with recommendation to mercy. Monday, October 1st, was set for sentence.

Our enterprising stationery firm Hadlock & Co. are publishing a United States commissioner's and justice's docket, especially adapted for the use of commissioners and justices in Utah and surrounding states and territories. The legal features of the book have been prepared by Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Thurman, George Sutherland and L. A. Wedgwood, and have been approved by judges and leading attorneys. The book will be welcomed by justices and commissioners, as it enables them to keep a record of their business in the most approved form. The mechanical part of the docket is first class, and the work is in every way a credit to the publishers.
