WATER FOR IRRIGATION.

Rules Issued by Watermaster Harvey of Interest to the Public.

J. M. Harvey, watermaster, has published the following orders for guidance of the men employed in his department:

Deputies will see that there is plenty of water in the irrigation ditches on Monday, as great many people irrigate on that day.

Deputies will keep a good supply of water running at all times, in all ditches used for that purpose, so that people can get all the water they want when water is plentiful.

You will see that all ditches are kept free from all obstructions so that there will be free run for water. Any person guilty of placing any obstruction in any ditch, canal or flume, should be arrested and punished according to law, and when such persons are known to you, you will arrest such parties and take them before the Police Justice at once for trial.

You will see that all persons take water through a flume or pipe placed so that the water will not be allowed to run to waste, and that they return all waste water to the main ditch by the same method. You will see that all persons use hydrants in taking water, one to be placed in main ditch, the other to be placed in their side ditch; water takes to furnish all such flumes and hydrants at their own expense. Any person who shall continue to take water through open ditch across a sidewalk after being notified, should be arrested and taken before the police justice for trial.

Any person guilty of sweeping dirt, papers or rubbish of any kind, or emptying slops or spittoons into any ditch, canal or flume, should be arrested at once and taken before the police justice for trial without delay.

Adjourned to Monday, May 14th.

The offering votes in the Canada Indians was the introduction into the Dominion parliament of a resolution declaring that, "subject to the approval of her majesty's imperial advisers," representatives of the Canadian government should be attached to the British legation at Washington to look after the interests of their country.

Now is the time when the graduating girl's brain is racked with intensity of thought, not so much about her commencement essay as about her commencement gown.

A TWO THOUSAND DOLLAR COTTAGE.

It Has Seven Rooms and Is Cozy, Convenient and Pretty.

(Copyright, 1892, by American Press Association.)

In this cottage the four rooms in the first story are grouped about a central chimney. The hall is of good size and may be used as a sitting room. It communicates with the parlor by means of a sliding door.

PERSPECTIVE VIEW.

which in the same manner is joined to the dining room, affording an opportunity of throwing all the rooms into one when desired. The kitchen is equipped with a portable range and sink, and is supplied with hot and cold water in the usual way. A cellar extends under the entire building and has walled stone laid up in cement mortar. The chimney is of hard brick. The fireplaces have tile hearths and facings, with new brass fenders, and grates for burning coal. The building is balloon framed, sheathed and papered, clapboard on its first story and shingled in the second story and in the roofs. A veranda extends across the front and a portion of one side, giving a picturesque appearance to the exterior.

In the second story are three good size bedrooms, a bathroom and ample closet space. Two rooms may be secured in the attic if desired, if they are not required to use for sleeping apartments. The stairway above the end is of selected hard brick laid in red mortar.

The walls and ceilings in the first story are hard finished on one coat of hardmortar. The floors of the first and second stories are of yellow pine, the attic floor is comfortable white pine. The woodwork throughout the first and second stories is ebonized and stained to resemble oak in the hall, mahogany in the parlor and dining room and left natural color in the kitchen.

In the second story the woodwork is stained to resemble old oak and black walnut. The stair rails, newels and balusters are of oak. The top of sink, laundry and woodwork of water closet is of waxwood stained to match the adjoining work. The stairwork and woodwork in bathroom is painted with one coat of wood filler and varnished three coats with best coach varnish and rubbed smooth. All other inside woodwork except the floors is finished with one coat of wood filler and two coats of varnish rubbed smooth. The outside doors and all windows, gutters, caps, etc., are of white pine, which shows bear face. The grates for fireplaces and lockers are of I. C. charcoal tin.

Much of the beauty of the exterior of this house depends upon the colors of the paint. A good combination would be to paint the roof a Venetian red, with a light drab or olive shade for the shingles and lighter color of the second story, with darker shades for trimmings. The lower story and trimmings would look well if dark green or bottle green, with moldings picked out in red to harmonize with the color of the roof.

The main rooms are heated by a furnace in the cellar. The front door is grained to resemble oil oak, all others to suit the woods of the rooms in which they are placed.

This building is suitable for town or country, and would make a charming home for any man of moderate means with a small family. It can be erected for $2,000, complete, and in some localities for less.

Somebodies in College.

The Medical News says the records of Yale college during the past eight years show that the somebodies are 20 per cent taller than the smokers, 22 per cent heavier and 1 and 66 per cent. more lungs capacity. In the last graduating class at Amherst college the somebodies have gained in weight 24 per cent. over the smokers; in height, 32 per cent.; in chest girth, 42 per cent., and in lung capacity, 0.38 cubic inches.
