"WAY DOWN IN ALABAMA."

How Mormons are Received in the Great Southern States.

Churches Very Shrewd—Welcomed in Hospitable Homes—Visiting Scenes Remote.

GARDEN, Alabama,
April 5, 1885.

To the Editor:

For the last four months, in company with Elder David Burnard, of Lehi, Elder Rodney B. Ashby has been laboring in Tippah county, situated in the north part of Mississippi. In this county we found very hospitable as well as intelligent and sincere people. Many of them are at present inquiringly investigating the principles of the doctrine of Christ, and by the help of the Lord we have been able to present our views to the majority of the people of this county which, it is evident, resolve many people of the house of Israel. We were admitted into many of the best church houses of the different denominations, and every Sabbath we spoke in their pulpits, except one, when we were requested to leave, but who into their houses to labor individually with the branches as well as the congregations of life.

Of the line of friends we have in that part of the Lord's vineyard, we are pleased to mention the name of a young gentleman, highly esteemed for sincere good works in the person of Jonathan B. F. Wentworth, who held the office of county judge for many years. In worldly time he, by his honest endeavors and justness, gained for himself a name worth well over to inherit. Not in his episodic who labors in character and disposition that cause acquaintance to living with it the new and eternal which are one the pure in heart.

At the close of four months preaching in this county Elder Ashby was called to get with his brethren companions and friends in Tippah county with Elders G. T. Wright of Payson, who, for the same length of time, has been in Tippah county, Ala., with Elder W. S. Chipman, a native of this place. They also met with success, making many firm, unflinching converts of the truth.

We bring good tidings of sincerity, faith and saving souls from those between Franklin and Kowaka counties, as stated in each in our new country. Accordingly, on the 23rd of March, with light hearts and bright hopes for our future success, we started on a missionary trip, determined to make those we came in contact with our friends if possible. Needless to say we were treated nicely.

On the 31st of March, after walking all day through rain, we called at the hospitable residence of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Carlyle, situated two miles west of Guntersville. They received us kindly and treated us as only refined, hospitable, well-to-do people are able to do. Our conversation, in the spacious parlor, after the family were seated around the glowing fire of wood that in the grate, was of a religious nature; therefore a good opportunity presented itself for us to lay before them some of our views, which were listened to with interest, yet some little cur, rise at the Mormons having no sure a foundation. When on the point of leaving, the very sensible lady of the house gave us the cordial invitation of visiting them whenever convenient. Major Carlyle is a wealthy and distinguished gentleman who honorably won his title in the late war between the North and the South. He owns large tracts of land and much railroad stock.

Arriving at Atlanta, five miles west of Guntersville, we found the two cities connected by a stone bridge in the rolling stock of which is extensively in motion, conveying the people to and from a large cotton factory and car works located between the two cities. Guntersville is the county seat. It has city of about six thousand inhabitants. About three miles north of this city, on Black creek, are the Noccalula falls. Traversing through a beautiful grove of Alabama pines one comes suddenly upon the verge of a mill that overlooks a gorge 700 feet deep. Over this mill leaps an enormous volume of water, foaming, dashing and whirling, dealing myriads of drops, dashing in mottled green and at last settling down into a grave of its own moment, creating the spray to shed mildewed and under the mill wheel which the water falls. Under this a path may with safety pass, by descending an artificial stair from the south side of the gorge, and go directly under the roaring cataract, out of reach of the spray. Into succeeding a natural staircase in the rock, on the north side of the gorge, one can come to the level of the stream above, and then for the first time since entering the gorge dare to feel that all world is at peace for admirers as the glorious display of nature's work as seen daily shows. While standing on the mill shore, I saw in the stream, not much to wonder why so many plants seekers go to inquire closer to study their authority. When such motive choice of lands actually exists and warranting, it is only more disappointed. While standing on the mill shore I saw a new religionist in man, [illegible] to need to prove all and which is to be the [illegible] to be a revelation of God.

Your faithful [illegible] to all Utah to read with great love home.

LOGAN.

LOGAN, UTAH, - - APRIL 13, 1885.

The Carden Assignment.

Much surprise was felt on Monday when the announcement "W. W. Maughan, assignee," was seen in the window of Mr. F. B. Carden's jewelry and furniture store, and a great sorrow was felt. Mr. Carden, who has been in business for more than twenty years, has been forced to the wall. His indebtedness amount to $25,000. Of this amount $15,750.30 was secured by deed of trust and mortgage. Paying interest on this large amount was not finally brought him down. The assets, if properly handled, should be enough to pay all his debts and leave a balance to the credit. They consist of the business three story brick store and a large building adjoining, in the most central business section in Logan; a store and residence on Third South, three pieces of residence property, no one of which is a two story brick cottage; twenty-one acres of bearing land; and interest in a tract of say land; a large stock of jewelry and furniture; a large sum in notes and book accounts, and considerable personal property, all of which, with the exception of the statutory exemptions, is assigned for the benefit of his creditors. The public generally hope to see him safely extricate, with a balance large enough to enable him to resume business.

Notes.

The police were telephoned from Brigham City this morning to be on the lookout for a burglar or burglars who had robbed a Brigham City store last night, stealing among other things a pair of stolen, blue [illegible] pocket [illegible] and a dozen pairs of gloves. The thing most likely to lead to the arrest is each of at least one of the [illegible], in the fact that he had stolen articles in the store and must, therefore, have worn the same suit when he left.

A survey of the work of the school in Sister Mellie H. Dyer, Mr. J. F. Jackson, is noticing his [illegible], Mr. J. H. Edwards.

Murray & Mack with their comedy company presented Pinafore's Ball to a crowded house at the opera house last evening.

The store and public offices are all closed today, and nearly every family is busy planting a new tree.

1884's Harvest.

In 1884 Provo called a meeting of the Bishops and Presidents to consider his additional tithing bill. Some of points in the circular which called them out under all circumstances and argued that they should not be "forced to some of actual necessity." "Then," said Pres. "it would be too late." Presently they came to similar chaos, when the same objection moved in the middle not being [illegible] in and out of the Bishop-ric. "Hence, I suppose," said Pres. with cruel sarcasm, "in case of actual loss."

Siberia.

A people that in the immense size of Siberia can be glossed from the following enumeration: All of the single kingdoms, principalities, empires, etc., of Europe, Europe Russia, and all the United States, including Alaska, could be placed side by side in Siberia, and yet but little more than cover that immense country.

MORMON AND NON-MORMON

Change of Sentiment of the Latter Toward the Former.

Report of Conditions in the South Carolina Conference—Addresses of the Elders There.

VAUCHEW, Aiken Co.,
S. C., April 11, 1885.

To the Editor:

The cause of truth is progressing here, and each day we come add more to our already numerous list of friends. Earnest investigators are our attendants of our sermons in each place. Of course there are still indications of bitterness; but these people, we are happy to say, are in the minority. Threats are occasionally heard, but they only serve to make the line of demarkation between friends and enemies more clear. They are but circulating extracts of the fire of persecution which years ago burned so fiercely. The people are beginning to see that we really have their interest at heart, and that our efforts are aimed at the amelioration of the condition of mankind. We are making friends of the Elders in this locality, and extend to us generally the most hearty and cordial hospitality.

We have at present thirty Elders in the conference, all of them earnest, consecrated and zealous workers. Their labors are confined above the [illegible] of Bluffton, Jacksonville, Ashley Ferry and Vaughn's Ferry. We feel that the blessings of the Lord are with us daily, and we live in a land of [illegible] and determination. Many honest members of the Holy Spirit's presence might be relied, and thus will not perish.

As an evidence of the changes taking place in the Lutheran church, we cite the following: In a district where our Elders were notified three years ago we had no trouble in convincing the town and easily secured a place in which to preach.

Tomorrow I leave to the adjoining field for labor, and will write to those who are interested in our progress, provided presenting the Gospel in mighty power to the people.

The Elders would be pleased if any time to hear from their friends at home. The following are the names and addresses of each part of Israel:

Samuel H. Hodges and John Hodges, Wagener, Aiken county, S. C.

James A. Smith and Robert Cleveland, Salem, Oconee county, S. C.

J. M. Ross and Alfred Wilson, Union, Union county, S. C.

H. A. Wilcox and Nelson Cottam, Newberry, Newberry county, S. C.

John E. Green and A. W. Wright, Bishopville, Lancaster county, S. C.

T. J. Tyler and Lorin T. Anderson, Cordesville, S. C.

George A. Turner and Alfred Bunny, Lake City, Williamsburg Co., S. C.

Joseph W. Parker and John Martin, Dancing, Berkeley county, S. C.

Morris Wilson and A. W. Barkwater, Summerville, Berkeley county, S. C.

Levi A. Phillips and J. J. Stephenson, Ridgeway, Fairfield county, S. C.

C. H. Patterson and C. V. Call, Hickamanan, Williamsburg county, S. C.

F. H. Hoskot and Herbert K. Smith, Hampton, Hampton county, S. C.

J. A. Fotts and Richard Chamberlain, Wagener, Aiken county, S. C.

Peter N. Gorman and J. H. Glenn, Kinsts Mill, Orangeburg county, S. C.

O. H. Simmons and John A. Gordon, Lake Hill, York county, S. C.

The News is a frequent and welcome visitor, and we find it help to organizing principles and making the Gospel attractive. It gives a glimpse of home, and we heartily rejoice in receiving with personal acquaintance.
