A MORNING'S LITIGATION.

Judge Zane Tacks Another Week at the Divorce Mill.

THE ALEXANDER SQUABBLE.

Motion for the Appointment of a Receiver in the Earls Furniture Case.—Miscellaneous.

Chief Justice Zane had to deal with two divorce motions this morning, but they were done with in a very short time.

HE JUMPED HIS BONDS.

The first on call was lost in which Rhoda Mallett, a lady of imposing appearance, about sixty years of age, sought to be divorced from her husband, Joseph E. Mallett, sr., on the grounds of desertion and failure to support. Her attorney was Frank Pierce. The defendant was not present, neither was he represented by counsel. According to the wife's statement on the witness stand the marriage took place in July, 1867, at St. Louis, Missouri. The parties came to Salt Lake about a year later, and plaintiff has lived here ever since. Some five years ago plaintiff's husband left her, giving as his only reason that he did not want to work and support her. There came child issue of the marriage—a girl about fifteen years of age.

George Lamphouse, a young man of thirty or thereabouts, a son of the plaintiff by a former husband, corroborated his mother's statement, and it also appeared that when the defendant went away he jumped a bond under which he was held for some criminal offense.

Judge Zane granted the decree as prayed.

THE CUTHELLS.

The Cuthell divorce case has by this time become familiar to readers of the News. It came on again this morning on an order to show cause why the defendant, Lorenzo Cuthell, should not comply with the former order of the court as to temporary alimony, and "pay up." Up to this date, it seems, he owes a total about $120—alimony, attorney's fees and incidental costs.

Attorney W. H. Dickson represented Mrs. Cuthell, Judge Bowman is the defendant's attorney.

The plaintiff stated she had received $5 only from her husband since September last. In order to start a boarding house, with the intention of supporting herself, she had obtained a loan from her brother, who resides in Colorado. She and her husband jointly owned two lots in land at Bountiful, worth $250, but there was a $150 mortgage on them. She herself has paid taxes on this property.

Judge Zane directed that the defendant pay the balance outstanding on the Court's previous order by to-morrow (Saturday) week. If he fails to do this his honor intends to take summary action with him. The aspiring contributor is prone for contempt of court.

THE ALEXANDER FAILURE.

Judge Minton filed his report as master in the D. Alexander & Co. settlement case, and the Court awarded him a fee of $100 for his work. The document was of no large interest, and contained nothing very new. The master had set back to find with Receiver Williams, who, according to the report, seems to be fulfilling his stewardship fairly but he did make the suggestion that the receiver would have some better to have employed a bookkeeper instead of trying to run it himself.

CHANGES.

In the case of W. H. Vighini et al. vs. Morgan Scott et al. permission was granted the defendant H. H. Schiffelin to withdraw his demurrer to the complaint and file a disclaimer.

MOTION FOR NEW TRIAL.

Cushing Vs. Dow. The hearing of the motion for a new trial in this action was set for Jan. 14.

FIVE DAYS TO ANSWER.

Shurtz, Lowe & Co. vs. Smythe, Pence & Co. On motion of F. H. Stephens paragraph 8 was struck from the complaint, and defendant was allowed five days to answer.

EXECUTION SERVICE.

M. H. Cutts vs. S. A. Caine et al. Order of service of publication was granted in this matter.

DEMURRER.

Morris & Co. vs. Nelson. Plaintiff's demurrer to defendant's answer was sustained, the defendant having four days in which amend out of court.

MECHANIC'S MONEY CONTENDED.

Louis Hyman et al. vs. Simon Bamberger et al. On motion of Attorney Critchlow, for the defendant, the part of the referee Judge Anderson was confirmed, and judgment ordered to be entered against the plaintiff in costs and against the defendant for the amount her lotted, viz., $255.

FOR PLAINTIFFS.

H. S. Lowy vs. W. H. Andrew et al. default judgment granted for plaintiff as prayed.

THE EARLS COMPANY MOTIONS.

Thomas et al. Karges et al. vs. the Earls Furniture Company was argued upon the court. The motion came up on amended complaint and the issues of Rawlins and Ballard therein. The motion for the appointment of a receiver was also argued by Attorney Day (with whom were C. S. Kinney and J. R. Sutherland) on behalf of the plaintiff, and by Judge Hewitt and Judge Hatchings on the other side.

The amended complaint was of considerable length, and a large portion of time was consumed in reading it. In it many of the statements made in the original were reiterated here, the charge of fraud on the part of the defendant being renewed. (These have already appeared substantially in the News.) It was claimed that, in order to carry out their plans, the capital stock was some in exchange increased from $150,000 to $3,000,000.

Attorney Day remarked that here was a stock of goods worth $60,000, and he asked if this money taken care of in any way. Let a receiver hold it, in order that the equities might be adjusted. He wanted to fight the two alleged fraudulent conferences of judgment which had been put in. If the court did not feel disposed to appoint a receiver, then let the money be placed in the care of the United States marshal or the clerk of this court until the whole matter has been adjudicated upon. That would seem the justest plan. At least, the plaintiffs ought to be allowed to see the patent matter in company, and the plaintiffs could be ready tomorrow morning to try the issues involved.

Judge Hewitt declared to listen to the proposition of the other side, and warmly denied that there were any grounds whatever in the complaint to sustain the charges of fraud, conspiracy and collusion which had been made, and alleged to have taken place last June. As to the reduction of the capital stock, there was nothing clandestine about it; it was made publicly. Counsel on the other side could, if they pleased, go to the books of the firm and see where every dollar had gone. These charges of fraud were "full of sound and fury, signifying nothing," they were made simply upon "information and belief," and the court, he insisted, was being trifled with. He (counsel) had nothing to conceal. Mr. Earls had not been a stockholder of the firm since December, 1891, when he was released from all obligations.

Attorney Stephens and Judge Sutherland then had a day and the motion was submitted to the court.

His Honor then appointed U. S. Marshal Benton as receiver, fixing his bond at $[illegible].

Both sides expressed satisfaction at the choice.

NOTES.

The Territorial supreme court will meet on Monday next. Associate Judge Bartch hopes to be somewhere round at the time—or soon after.

Tomorrow (Saturday) is motion day in the Third district court, and there are several motions of interest ready to be brought forward. But things have moved with unusualness of late, so it is difficult to tell what a day may bring forth.

Attorney Tulloch has made up his mind to "stick." He was certainly a hot favorite in the race for the judgeship, but just at the moment when his friends thought success assured, the cup of joy was dashed to the ground.

Clerk McMillan, of the Third district court, was not at his desk this morning—a thing so unusual that everybody wondered what could be the matter. As one lad near I anything from him, the conclusion arrived at was that he is under the weather. Deputy Clerk Lemons officiated in his stead this morning.

OGDEN OCCURRENCES.

Clever Capture by Sheriffs.—Ancient Order of United Workmen.—Off to the Gold Fields.

(Ogden Standard.)

The grand jurisdiction of Utah, Wyoming and Idaho, Ancient Order of United Workmen has been formed and officers have been elected. The convention assembled again yesterday for the purpose of completing the constitution for the new jurisdiction. The constitution as a whole was adopted by one new jurisdiction. The following is a list of the officers as elected and installed: John Sinclair of Salt Lake, R. G. M. W.; W. M. Mason of Cheyenne, G. M. W.; A. C. Bishop of Ogden, G. F.; G. R. Lemann of Helena, G. O.; Thos. Dow of Ogden, G. G.; J. P. Stone of Ogden, G. I. W.; C. Hand of Park City, G. O. W.; John A. Boyle of Ogden, Past Grand of Salt Lake City, Idaho, and H. J. Maynard of Cheyenne, grand trustees. The task of running a constitution for subordinate lodges was taken up and continued during the day.

A hearing was had in the Fourth Justice Court yesterday in the case of Sidney O. Stevens vs. S. C. Stephens and John Hill on an order to show cause why a permanent injunction should not issue. After argument the demurrer to the complaint was overruled, the temporary injunction dissolved and the petition for a permanent injunction denied. Ten days were given to amend the complaint. The case is one of the many resulting from the late disagreements between the corporators of the South Ogden Mercantile company and those who made an enterprise launched several months ago. The plaintiff is secretary of the first named company and sues to recover possession of the books and cash said to be unlawfully held by the defendants. The complaint alleges that Stephens and Hill have altered and are altering the accounts in order to defraud certain of the stockholders and officers.

Sheriff Belnap and Sheriff Fawler of Utah county made a clever capture yesterday and as a result Frank Brown, an escaped fugitive from justice, was last night placed in the county jail. Brown escaped from the jail last Thursday, by secreting himself in the corridor of the jail and then digging through the wall of the building. He was next heard from at North Ogden, and when the officers visited that place yesterday morning he had left for Ogden valley, where a family had taken him in for the winter. From a window across the sheriffs approaching and secreted himself under a bed there. He did not take special pains to do that him. The crime for which Brown was being held in the penitentiary was murdering.

The work of serving garnishments in the Wilcox-Oak case will continue and the officers are making big efforts to find the money necessary to satisfy the judgment. Besides the money under attachment will have to be paid into court this month.

W. H. Storey and John Young two well known miners and prospectors, started for Stony Mountain in the San Juan gold placers. The gentlemen had fitted up a substantial outfit and took a full load of provisions and horse feed.

C. E. Bannister yesterday received a dispatch from the Utah & Wyoming people, of the Northwestern, requesting him to report at Fort Cooper at once and take charge of the establishment of the extension west to Ogden.

FROM LETTER.

In Litigation's Snares. A Big Sheep Case. Miscellaneous Business.

(Special Correspondence of the News.)

PROVO, Jan. 5.—Anna Marks, the famous Turtle Island litigant has won another case. The case of Lewis Gloss vs. Anna Marks, before referred to in the News, was decided yesterday in favor of defendant, and Gloss only must look elsewhere for wages.

The case of Lorenzo Pace and brothers vs. George C. Whitmore et al is on in the first district court. The plaintiffs allege that they entered into and 3,121 head of sheep in Emery county, and that defendants, to number and name plaintiffs, and in order exactly on the sheep, drove a healthy stock through the flock, killing a large number of them; the sheep being then taken possession of by the Whitmores, and when they were replevined only a part of them were turned over; plaintiffs therefore pray for $5,000 damages and the balance of the sheep. Defendants deny the allegations of conspiracy, harassing and cruelty, claim that the sheep were trespassing on property of the defendants, and that when replevined, all the sheep were turned over. Numerous witnesses are to be examined in the case.

The proposition of Hanks & Brockman to set telephone on the several county seats of Utah county, has been accepted, and the gentlemen will proceed to set out the poles, stating on the two sides the distance to and from Provo, and on the other side the kind of patent medicines to use.

The new county court was installed in office without opposition. Two of the members, Evans of Lehi, and Jones of Spanish Fork, are their own successors; E. A. Dee of Springville, succeeds A. O. Holloway of Provo.

Bert Leavitt, Jesse Richmond, David Wright and John Bowers, the four boys who broke into Jos. Sawyer's cellar on New Year's eve and stole some wine, made settlement with Mr. Sawyer, and then pleaded guilty to the charge of petit larceny preferred against them. Sentence was suspended during good behavior.

Marriage licenses have been issued to David Berry, of Cedar Fort, and Sarah Simmons, of Lehi; Charles A. Poulson, of Spanish Fork, and Maria Hansen, of Provo.

The Daughters of Rebecca last night tendered the I. O. O. F. a fine banquet. It was an enjoyable occasion.

PROVO, Jan. 5.—In case of Lorenzo Pace et al. vs. George C. Whitmore was yesterday argued and submitted to the jury.

The next case on the docket was the Pagson Canning Creamery & Dairy company vs. Wallace F. Clark, a suit brought to secure the payment of one shares of stock of $10 per share. A jury was empanelled, and several witnesses testified.

The Provo Tacoma club will be in Salt Lake on January 11th, to present the Octoroon, a matinee performance for the pleasure of the aged, widows, orphans, etc. C. H. Savage is the prime mover in securing the services of the company for the occasion.

The new roller flour mills being erected by the P. L. & M. & B. Co. will be in running order within ten days. The capacity of the mill will be 300 bushels per day.

Thomas Pierpont, Jr., and Miss Vilate Sneed were married by Wm. H. King on Wednesday evening at the residence of the bride's parents. None but relatives were present.

Adelbert Walker and Cynthia E. Park of Pleasant Grove were married yesterday by Judge Jones.

The second semester of the Brigham Young Academy commences next Monday.

F. W. C. Hathenbruch claims to have made a discovery of coal two and a half miles northeast of this city.

Mrs. Kinsman of Canon city, Colorado, is in the city. She has a heavy damage suit against the Rio Grande Western for killing her husband.

A concert is to be given at the Opera house on Monday evening as a benefit for Elder T. H. Rudd, who has been appointed Y. M. M. I. A. missionary to Arizona. The choir, glee club, Reliance and Pyle quartette and others will take part.

HE DIDN'T COME BACK.

Like William Scribe, Another Defaulting Executors, Glenn, Failed to Return.

It was quite emphatically stated by some of the few remaining friends of C. H. Glenn, the absconding Tuscarora Pelle Court clerk, that he would return last night from the East and straighten out the many irregularities connected with his notorious and shortlived career in this city. There were others who knew considerably more of Glenn than has been made public who said that it was a mistaken conclusion to think that he would return.

It appears to be the general opinion now that he will never show his face in Salt Lake again and that the late justice grave—Newton—who joined hastily with him at the Democratic convention in Chicago in making a big fight for admission into the woman, he has gone to more congenial and verdant fields.

POWER AT THE PIT'S MOUTH.

Mr. Silver Gives Further Information on a Unique and Important Question.

Editor Deseret News:

The following was said from an English paper may be interesting:

"An important project was brought before the British public in a paper read before the Manchester Association of Engineers, in November, by Mr. Thwaite.

The scheme is, in short, nothing less than to generate power by burning coal at the pit's mouth, and to transmit the power electrically to manufacturing centers. The coal will first have its valuable "residual products" removed. As these form the most valuable portion of the coal, the fuel actually used may be itself fairly regarded as the residual product of the distillation. The engines are to be employed instead of steam engines and boilers, and the power is to be transmitted by high pressure alternating currents. Mr. Thwaite's scheme resembles that at the Niagara Power company, but it has the essential difference. At Niagara it seems to be taken for granted that, to a large extent, the consumers will come to the power, whereas Mr. Thwaite brings the power to the consumers. The Niagara plan has the advantage of using water which costs nothing, but in the Anglo's scheme the cost costs very little, being only two per cent of the cost of the power delivered in London from the Midlands. For such a scheme England has an enormous advantage, because of its small size, over America. To supply heat and power from Niagara to the various American manufacturing towns would be ruinous on account of the distances. In England the cost of conveyance is a comparatively small portion of the total cost.

Mr. Thwaite and James Swinburne have drawn up a report upon the project for transmitting power from the South Yorkshire coalfield to the metropolis. The same trunk lines and way-leaves can be utilized for serving the large towns, including Derby, Nottingham, Leicester, Northampton and Bedford. It is suggested that an auxiliary generating station be located in South Staffordshire, the trunk line from which would serve Wolverhampton, Birmingham, and the industrial area in the Isle of Ely. Its main area to the point where it joins the main trunk line serving the metropolis. Two alternate specifications have been outlined, one from the Mechanical Fabrik Oerlikon, and the other from Messrs. Brown, Boveri & Co., Baden, Switzerland."

Since writing you I have been examining into the Clearville power project and have already found that there is no other scheme that has any show whatever to compete with it. The projectors of the enterprise would have one of the best paying properties in the country, and property in this city would be considerably increased in value.
