RULES FOR VOTERS.

With the registration disposed of, the balloting comes next, and we again present these general rules for the guidance of voters:

1—If you wish to cast a straight party ballot, put a cross in ink in the blank square to the right of your party emblem, and make no other mark.

2—If you wish to make any change whatever from a straight party ticket, do not make any mark opposite either party emblem.

3—When you do not vote a straight ticket but pick your candidates, put a cross in the space at the right of each candidate you wish to vote for, and make no other mark on the ballot.

4—You do not vote directly for President and Vice-President, although the names of candidates are on the ticket; you vote for electors on the State ticket, choosing those of the party whose presidential candidates you wish to support.

By following these rules you will have no difficulty whatever in having your ballot just as you want it to be.

DUTY OF CITIZENS.

Another fortnight will have brought the citizens of this State face to face with the performance of a high duty. In the discharge of that duty rests the expression of the people as to their will in the conduct of national and local affairs. It is the first time in the history of this State that the full responsibility of such an occasion has rested upon its citizens; and they owe it to themselves to perform their part in a careful, conscientious, patriotic manner, that the results which follow their action shall not be a cause of regret.

Political prophets predict this or that effect as following party success; the political parties themselves promise much that is good and throw all that is bad to intimation. But political prophets often prove to be blind or unreliable guides, and party promises often are broken as freely as they have been made, and with injurious results. The old maxim, put not your trust in princes, might well be paraphrased to read, put not your trust in politicians. In this situation the citizen who implicitly relies on the guidance of the politician rather than upon his own higher patriotic judgment often commits an error. So far as Utah is concerned, however, we feel confident that patriotism, not partisanship, will guide them to the proper discharge of the responsible duty of election day.

In the past three months there has been much said in political circles that might have been left unsaid, and with profit; perhaps there have been left unsaid these things which, if they had received expression, would have been of value to the people; and doubtless men assumed positions in politics two or three months ago which they would not enter upon with the added knowledge which they have today. But this is the late of human experience under human judgment. Fortunately the evolution of a political campaign and the opportunities of the close thereof are so related to each other that commonly the voter has the privilege of using the right thing in the final and vital act of casting his or her vote, even though it might not be according to earlier conceptions of what should have been done.

The people want good officers to rule over them; for "when the wicked rule the people mourn." But the quality of officers must be judged both by their personal integrity and ability and by the principles they represent. A judgment upon either item alone would be unsafe, and might be disastrous, because of its narrowness and imperfection. A disreputable officer, though he represent good principles, is more likely than otherwise to convert those principles to his own selfish purposes. On the other hand, a person of good repute and ability, morally pure in a personal view, but unsoundly and unsoundly sustains principles in government that would cause great hardships and irreparable injury, such a government would be as thoroughly "wicked" in its rule as to result in wrecking among those subjected thereto.

It is the right of the voters in individual the policy that shall be pursued on behalf of the State at any public interest. They should determine what they want, and select the officers best qualified to carry out the desired policy. Sometimes the choice of material things which is work is not as great as might be desired, but it is better to have a comparatively dull representative of a sound policy than a brilliant representative who would embarrass in every emergency. That citizen who reaches in his vote must a decision as to what is the better policy for municipality, county or State, in maintaining and advancing the general welfare of the people, and who selects officers representative to carry out that policy in all personal, in the sense that he distinguishes the duties of citizenship that rest upon him in relation to government, local or national.

H. M. STANLEY'S COOK.

According to a story in the New York World, a German journalist believes that the famous African explorer, Henry M. Stanley, gradually is growing insane. Originally Mr. Stanley was very light-complexned, but at present he has the appearance of a mulatto, and quite dark at that, a probability that can be accounted for on no other supposition than the one ventured by the German scientist.

In explanation of this phenomenon it is stated that, as is well known, the climate of certain portions of Africa is extremely dangerous to foreigners. The high land is surrounded by swamps and the atmosphere is filled with mineral germs. Almost invariably Europeans are attacked with severe forms of the fever. Stanley, as the story runs, conceived the idea of cure-ring some blood from the negroes and had it transfused into his own veins. He believed that this would be an effective means of preventing the disease, as the natives are not attacked with it, and as he said to have submitted to the operation five times. The consequence was that he remained well when his companions were stricken down.

The apparatus used for the purpose consists of a velvet tube with a bulb in the center. Before using it the air is forced out by filling the bulb and tube with a warm solution of salt. The principal persons of the performance are placed side by side and the tubes inserted into the veins. Then it is pumped from the one to the other, until the desired quantity has been obtained.

Now it is claimed that by this process, Mr. Stanley not only became an immortal the dreadful fever, but that the African blood he obtained gradually is working a metamorphosis in his complexion, by the development of the peculiar pigment to which the ebony color of the African skin is said to be due. The fact—if such it is—must be of peculiar interest to anthropologists.

LIBELOUS PUBLICATIONS.

In the heat of a political campaign, when party speakers are on the stump they frequently make exaggerated and unfair statements, and some people find excuse therefor in the fact that a speaker often gets a little "heated" when before a noisy audience and says what he really would not do in his other senses. The excuse is a rather flimsy one, yet this so it is, a newspaper that deliberately makes unfair statements about the candidates of an opposing ticket does not have even that mean covering, and therefore is without excuse in violently misleading readers and participating in attacks upon candidates of any political party.

By the laws of Utah it is made a crime for any person, directly or indirectly, to pay or offer any consideration to any voter, or to offer or promise any office, place or employment, or endeavor to procure any office, place or employment, in order to induce any elector to vote for any person or persons at any election in this State. The penalty for this crime is a fine of not more than one thousand dollars or imprisonment in the State prison for not more than five years, or both fine and imprisonment.

For a newspaper to assume any association of having committed this crime, without having good reason for making the charge, is illegal and the offense is not the more aggravated when the intention is made merely to "injure" the candidate and in the absence of any ability to confirm such a charge in succeeding against him. Unfortunately, in the present campaign it is notorious that just such libelous publications are being indulged in, and what is more, specific records are directed against men considered of the opposition as are of good repute and who cannot be justifiably assailed for any of any delinquency in integrity or ability to the duties they have been named for. The specific charge is made of violating the provisions of law referred to, which fact the association is known to be untrue.

The News is interested in having good men or women installed in office in this county, as in the whole state, whatever be their political affiliations. It has articular some of the best of its readers on both sides of the party, in seeing that bad men do not hold wish and strong place, thus being a pain in this regard. And having criticized the objectionable features of these debate generally, the News also feels under an obligation to duty in closest it to and protest against unwarranted attack upon those better candidates who are provided for the franchises of the people. These results to which objection is raised are not such as arise from mere conditional differences, but such as usually charge unoffending persons with crimes which, if a man were guilty thereof, ought to send him to the State prison for a term of years. It is time that reputable citizens resent in this matter the protection to which they are entitled under the law from unscrupulous or gullible newspaper reporters. And a commencement in the line would be better now than at a subsequent date, that the business may be settled for all time in this State.

The News is fully aware that sometimes the vast and most careful newspapers are imposed upon in the source of their information, and occasionally publish a prominent and eminent but unfounded report. In such an event the chief management does not hesitate to make honorable amends; for no reputable newspaper can afford to do a deliberate injustice to any citizen. The last Legislature comprehended this situation and passed a law providing for retractions and the effect thereof in cases where conditions for public office have been unjustly assailed, the retraction to be made at or by a given time before the election. Some libelous publications have been made in this city, it is now in order for retractions to come in the next few days, or as to comply with the spirit of the law, whether or not civil or criminal proceedings are contemplated on behalf of the injured parties.

WEYLER AND LEE.

The incident reported from Havana, and which came near precipitating a war between the United States and Spain, has more of an air of probability about it than many stories that come from the Cuban capital. It is illustrative of the character of Governor General Weyler and of the American consulate, who has had a reputation of not being over-accommodating to Spanish officials when they have made arrogant demands upon him. And General Lee is just the man to take the stand attributed to him in such an emergency. It is a good thing that calmer judgment overcame the impulse of the passionate Weyler, and that the guns of Morro castle were silent as the Vigilancia cleared out with the Stars and Stripes at her masthead. Otherwise a conflict between Spain and the United States would have cost more lives and money than it will do to settle the Cuban war by the operations now going on.

The first number of the Utah Industrialist, an eight-page semi-monthly paper published at Springville, Utah county, by W. Z. Olsen, came to hand today. It is devoted to the industrial interests of the State, and refrains from dabbling in partisan politics. The first number contains much valuable information, and its articles are written in an interesting vein. Continuing in the path it has outlined, the Industrialist ought to take its place as a welcome exponent of the journalistic pages of the State.
