ICE HOUSES BURNED.

Fire Destroys the Property of the Park City Ice Company—Mr. Hardman's Loss.

A fire in the ice houses of the Park City ice company caused considerable excitement in the southwestern part of the city between 10 and 11 o'clock Saturday night. The houses are located a little east of Second West on Eighth South street and were totally destroyed before the fire department arrived, while the residence of John Hardman, next door, also suffered although not to the extent that for a time seemed inevitable. As it was Mr. Hardman lost his barn, but his home was saved through the prompt and effective use of a small garden hose.

The fire is supposed to have been of incendiary origin and the loss to the Salt Lake Ice company is to be estimated at $1,200, while the Park City company's loss in buildings is figured at $1,500 with an insurance of $600. Mr. Hardman's loss is $300 with no insurance. Chief Devine explains the morning delay in getting to the fire by stating that no alarm was turned in.

The stone used will be the famous Oolite quarried alone from Parry's quarry, and it will remain about twenty car loads to fill the contract. A large force of men are now at work getting out the stone.

Lloyd Re-elected Chairman.

A meeting of the incoming and outgoing Democratic county committees was held on Saturday afternoon, Mr. Lloyd, who has been the committee's chairman for the past two years, reported the committee entirely out of debt, a condition largely due to his own efforts and purse. He was unanimously re-elected chairman and given authority to select his own executive committee and secretary.

SERVICES AT THE TABERNACLE

Presidents Lorenzo Snow and George Q. Cannon the Speakers Sunday Afternoon.

Recognition of the First Presidency Referred to and the Saints Admonished to Works of Righteousness.

The services at the Tabernacle Sunday afternoon, Sept. 18, 1898, were presided over by Elder Charles W. Penrose of the Stake Presidency.

The choir sang the hymn:

How stands with him surrounded,
Zion kept by power divine!

Prayer was offered by Eugene M. Cannon.

The choir further sang:

O God, Thou good, Thou great, Thou wise,
Eternal in Thy name.

President Lorenzo Snow was the first speaker, in commencing he expressed his delight in the words of the hymn just sung by the choir, as to him they were really full of signification. The apostle read some verses from the hymn so that all could hear them, and then referred to the words of John wherein God's fatherhood was set forth as well as the destiny of those who would keep themselves pure and holy. The Saints, said President Snow, had no occasion to worry over temporal things in this life, if they would observe him, the Lord God Sabaoth from the beginning had kept them and all would be well in the end.

Referring to the organization of the First Presidency a few days ago President Snow referred to the unity of feeling manifested and the spirit of humility and love which was accorded to. He spoke of his appointment to the responsible position imposed upon him, and expressed his thankfulness to the Lord for the honor conferred. He had confined blessings to the past from eighty-one years of age, and he knew the Saints would support him with their faith and prayers in his present calling. He felt that he was in the right and live day before the Lord, and this he knew, was the spirit which prompted the minds of President Brigham Young, Heber C. Kimball and Joseph F. Smith. "Follow the examples that we set you," said President Snow, "and we have assured that all will be well with you."

The speaker referred to the matter that the Lord called upon the aged in calling on His work. It was on the great and powerful in the earth, that were called in the beginning of the gospel dispensation, but those who were actually those who were educated in the college and seminaries of the land, but men of humility, men who were desirous to be the same at truth and could in full and guided by the Holy Spirit.

President Snow said he had spoken in and of himself to assume the responsibility he was resting upon him. If I had not been called upon by the Lord, he said, the speaker, I would never have been found in my present position. He had never sought for it, nor had he asked any of the brethren for their assistance in his appointment to the Presidency. He had had had a revelation, however, that such would be the outcome as it all he walk through life, he had felt no shirk any position that the Lord desired to impose upon him. He had tried to overcome the weakness of the flesh, that he might reach the highest glory possible for man to attain. And would people His servants, the children and if they would but listen, said He, and seek to do His bidding. He had set up His Kingdom in the last days for the benefit and blessing of mankind, that it might prepare the way for the coming of the Lord, and the Lord would be accomplished in spite of all opposition and the wicked and rebellious would be set aside and the way made for the coming of His kingdom.

President Snow said he had felt in times that the Saints would be faithful to the Work, and to remember the counsel of the Lord, and would be the means of righteousness, and would be the aim of the First Presidency to be forgiving and to bear with the people in their weaknesses and frailties. It was the Lord's desire to show unto His children the greatest kindness but He required true repentance of them, that they would endeavor at all times to act and conduct the sons of the world and live pure and holy before the Lord. The speaker called upon the people, and prayed that their lives in the future might be happier day by day.

President George Q. Cannon was the next speaker. He expressed his pleasure and satisfaction at having been privileged to listen to the words of President Snow, a man in whom character and life work there was not a single blemish. God had been with him and his people in raising up such men to preside over them. They were those who had served the Lord from their youth. They had never deviated from the path of duty and had been true and faithful to every trust reposed in them. President Snow, at his advanced age, had been called upon to perform a work which was not usual, and those who would listen to his counsel would be blessed of the Lord.

Speaking of the reorganization of the First Presidency, President Cannon said he never saw a more united, more harmonious action than that which took place days ago by the Council of Apostles in the appointment of President Snow. It had been necessary, President Snow, under a revelation, to defer such appointments for some time, and therefore some of the brethren expected such action in the matter for some time to come. But the Spirit of the Lord had rested upon them, the spirit of the revelation, and all were moved upon in unison to be in favor of the reorganization. President Snow had been called upon, that council and where he had confided and his brethren the revelation received by President Snow was in the Apostleship to relate to the management of the Church, and the fact that God's Spirit had so directed the remarks made by each member of the Council of Twelve. Not limited his services and had made a revelation that the reorganization of the First Presidency should receive immediate attention.

President Cannon spoke of the desire of the work of the Lord, and of the need to endeavor to remain true and faithful. The Saints should pray for guidance and the spirit of the Lord would accompany with peace and happiness. Zionites should not stay in the ranks of hatred and malice, but should seek the prosperity of each other. Then they would be happy and the blessings of the Lord would follow them. The Lord had helped the Saints to attain to a good degree of perfection and had established them and made them shining marks among their fellowmen, and it would continue to help them if they would be faithful and obedient to the principles and laws.

The choir and congregation sang the hymn:

"Now let us rejoice in the day of salvation,
No longer as strangers on earth need we roam."

Benediction was pronounced by Elder Heber J. Grant of the Council of the Apostles.
