California Beer at $1 per Barrel by the Trust.

SHOT HIS WIFE WHILE ASLEEP.

Chinamen Burned to Death—Coyotes Outwit Men—New Alaska Mail Service.

The cut rate of the beer trust in Stockton, Cal., is $1 a barrel. The cut is to cripple the Eisbacher brewery.

It now seems a settled fact that the Mormons will purchase the Casa Grande Valley canal, says the Florence (A. T.) Tribune.

Seattle, Wash., is to have a dog show May 13th, 14th, 15th and 16th. James Mortimer of New York has been engaged to judge all classes.

Stewart Richmond celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of his birth last Sunday at his home near Ardmore, Cal., by giving a dinner to seven[ty] whose birthdays fell on the same day.

Henry Pothero, 17 years of age, an apprentice on the British ship Drabloch, fell down the main hatch while the vessel was in port at San Francisco on Wednesday, and received fatal injuries.

The Spokane, Wash., flouring mills have shut down until they can buy wheat cheaper. They say they cannot make and export flour at present prices if they pay over $2 cents a bushel for wheat, which price the Washington farmers will not sell for.

A Chinese shanty in Reno, Nev., was burned recently. As soon as the place could be entered a few persons went in and were shocked by a horrible sight. On the top of the stove lay the body of a Chinese, burned almost to a crisp. Whether he fell on the stove accidentally or took this means of ending his life is not known.

The California manufacturers and producers' association has addressed communications to the trustees of the state asylums for the insane at Stockton and Napa, protesting against letting the contracts for the supply of coal for the institutions to parties handling English coal in preference to those handling California coal.

The guests at the Palace hotel, San Francisco, included T. G. Wehner and wife and Mrs. C. F. Richards of Salt Lake; at the Grand Union were registered Mrs. M. Judge and Miss F. Judge of Salt Lake, and at the Russ house, Lorenzo C. Clayton, David Neff and A. H. Curtis of Salt Lake, A. D. Hendricks of Richmond, Utah, and Wm. McDermott, of Chilton, Idaho.

Albert Rissiff blew out the brains of his wife, Julia, while she slept at his side in their room at the Peace lodging house, Seattle, Wednesday morning, and placing the barrel of the revolver against his own temple killed himself. Rissiff's step-daughter slept in the next room. She heard shots and rushing into the room, saw that her father and mother were dead. Jealousy was the cause of the crime.

Bee culture is generally considered by the average farmer a lucrative industry, and in the course of the past few years innumerable small apiaries have sprung up in different localities in San Luis Rey valley, writes a correspondent of the San Diego, Cal., Union. I. Isaac Irwin of Oceanside, Cal., makes the statement that he shipped ten carloads of sage honey to Liverpool, England, last year.

The great 700 foot tunnel at the head of the Rio Verde canal in the Salt river, A. T. valley, will be completed if nothing interferes within the next week. This will remove the chief obstacle on the line of the canal of which some twenty miles have been completed. There are, however, some interesting gaps to be excavated and work on the dam, now waiting for low water, to be executed. The upper portion of the canal covering Paradise valley will probably go to work some mission in time for the next cropping season.

The new Alaskan mail service goes into effect the close of this month. The new service is the most difficult and dangerous that has ever been attempted by the government, as it contemplates delivering mail at Circle City, 500 miles north of Juneau and the most northerly point reached by white traders and miners, every thirty days during the summer months. The route from Juneau to Circle City must be traversed partly on foot or snowshoes and partly on dog sleds, although a small portion of the distance in mid-summer may be traveled by water in a light canoe. Some of the mountain country to be traversed is covered with perpetual snow. Last year two Chilkoot half-breeds were lost on the trail with their pouches, and nothing has been heard of them since. One American carrier got through safe last year, but he had many difficulties to contend with. The only communication the Circle City people have had with the outer world for years has been through an occasional Alaska Commercial company carrier who managed to struggle through.

An amusing incident occurred the other day on the Lemon farm, near Griffin, Wash., says the Spokesman-Review. Bert Lemon and an employe of the farm were plowing when they came across three young coyote pups which had not yet opened their eyes. While they were exercising them the old mother appeared and appealed to within fifty yards. Mr. Lemon went to the house for a gun and a sack, and placed the young ones in the sack, which was tied up and left in the field until time to go in from work. The old coyotes kept a respectful distance from the rifle, but hovered around. Several times of the field were made with the plow, and finally, when Lemon came in sight of where they had left the sack containing the young coyotes, they saw one of the old ones with the sack, muzzle and all, streaking it over the hill, and that was the last seen of them.

San Francisco Chronicle, April 30: A party of five young Mormon missionaries arrived in the city yesterday en route to the South seas. Pending their departure they are making their headquarters at the Russ. The party includes A. D. Hendricks of Richmond, Utah; William McDermott of Chilton, Idaho; David Neff, Alv. H. Curtis and Lorenzo C. Clayton of Salt Lake City. Neff and Curtis are bound for Tahiti, and the other three will go to Samoa, sailing on the Mariposa today. They will all remain at their respective posts for two years, which is the term with all young Mormon missionaries who go to a foreign country where a strange language has to be learned. They say that a large number of Mormon missionaries are now being sent out to all parts of the world, most of whom are young people, who it is thought are more persuasively fitted for the work than persons of middle age.
