PROVO.

PROVO, UTAH, ... MAY 20, 1895.

Farmers Incorporate.

At a meeting of the Utah Fruit and Agricultural Society on Saturday, it was decided to incorporate the society under the state laws. Articles of incorporation have been drawn up and will be filed in a few days. The capital stock of the association is placed at $10,000, in shares of $5. The purpose of the society is to buy and sell the products of Utah, and act as general commission merchants, and establish agricultural manufacturing enterprises in Utah. Provo is chosen as the principal place of business.

The society commenced business on the 25th of March, 1895, with only 11 members, and today has 105, with the prospect of a rapid increase in membership. During the last year over $50,000 worth of farm produce has been shipped by the society, and better prices received than would have been possible through any other source. This year the prospects for the society are better than they have been in the past and beneficial results to the producers are looked for.

The committee having the business of soliciting subscriptions of stock in local days been instructed to receive no larger amount than $25 from one subscriber. The object of this is to obtain as many members as possible, and not to place large blocks of stock in the hands of one or two persons. It is not the intention to make the payment of dividends in cash, but members will receive some advantages in being charged a smaller commission on sales of their produce than non-members.

Intercollegiate Sports.

The games between the students of the University of Utah and the students of the Brigham Young Academy, which took place yesterday, attracted large crowds of people. An unfortunate disagreement between the rival teams in the question of a foul tail resulted in breaking up the ball game. The University team claimed that the tail was fair, and it was finally so decided by the umpire, but the Academy team refused to accept the decision with the result that the game was not finished. There is talk of playing the game in Salt Lake City some time this week.

The ball in the opera house in the evening was a very pleasant affair. The visitors were entertained to the academy where elegant supper were furnished them by a good treasure.
