Lawson, his son, had been driven from their home in Carter co., by masked Ku Klux, and that Thos. was whipped. Both gentlemen are now in Franklin, Mo., where they lodged information before U. S. CHICAGO, 3.—The Post's Washington special, says several Southern Democratic papers received here to-day, state that Sumner's letter has had little influence with the colored voters, and that they will not follow him into the Greeley camp, but will go solid for President Grant. This morning's Richmond, Va., papers say the negroes in Valparaiso show every disposition not to trust the Democratic leaders but will vote in opposition to those who have heretofore been their masters, and that no inducements held out will convince them that they will be as fully protected if Greeley is elected as they have been under the present administration.

The Republicans concede the State by 1,500 or 2,500 majority. There is still an intense interest felt in the result.

A letter dated Camp McDowell, July 18, says the Apache chief Tagolina Dos Kaj, with 60 men, women and children, said to be coyoteous, which is doubted here, came in to-day, and gave up their arms, consisting of two guns and a number of bows and arrows, and agreed to remain on the reserve and as-

The reception took place on the Brooklyn, a case of small-pox having recently appeared on Alden's flagship, the Wabash. The Prince and Princess of Wales embarked on a royal steam yacht in the afternoon, and on the arrival of the party on the Brooklyn there was a blending of the flags of England and the United States. The Prince inspected the fleet, and remarked on going to the Wabash that he was not afraid of small-pox. A repeat was given on the Brooklyn by Alden, at which were present Minister Schenck, General Sherman, Bishop McIlvaine, of Ohio, and others. A grand salute was fired on the Prince's departure.

THE MORMONS AND THEIR CITY.

SALT LAKE CITY, July 21st, 1872.

I never realized or appreciated the description given by travelers in Arabia of the "oasis" in the desert until my arrival in this beautiful valley after a sojourn of months amidst the sagebrush of Nevada. I wonder at the improvements, and as time passes the wonder increases. The Mormons have created for themselves a monument in the building up of this beautiful city that will be a pride and an ornament when their traducers will be forgotten. No other people would or could have made such progress in material and industrial wealth as have the Mormons, saying nothing of the disadvantages of location and the prejudices of fanatics against them. This Territory can be aptly termed the beehive of the continent; the people are industrious, frugal and temperate, and at the same time the most hospitable I have ever met with. I have seen three different parties of California prospectors who had been absent for several weeks, and they unanimously speak well of the kindness and hospitality they met with while traveling through the Mormon settlements in the southern portion of the Territory, and every gentleman and lady visitor to their city speaks in the highest terms of praise of the reception they meet with here. Much has been written of the scallawags and carpet-baggers in the Southern States, but if worse specimens of that genus can be found outside of this Territory the English language does not furnish words sufficiently forcible to do justice to them.

A comparison between the Mormon and Gentile in this place as representative people will not redound to the credit of the latter. Here there are more grogshops, houses of ill-fame and gamblers than in any city of the size in the Union, and all are Gentiles. The Mormon authorities levy license on the grogshops, the payment of which is resisted and appeals taken to higher courts. The Mormon police do their best to suppress gambling and houses of ill-fame, but meet with determined opposition and denunciation from the Gentiles. The Gentiles with few exceptions form a phalanx to oppose any and all enactments pertaining to morality, if emanating from Mormon rulers. The mixture in the witches' cauldron in "Macbeth" was not composed of more incongruous elements than is the phalanx in this city who are opposed to order and law. Here we have the robber, gambler, grogshop-man, spiritualist, prostitute, psalm-singer, apostate and Josephite banded together "to oppose Brigham Young." As said in a harangue on Saturday last, "We care not who rallies to our standard; anything that is opposed to the damnable church despotism." Each sect separately denounces Brigham Young and the Mormon church from its standpoint and joins hands with the others—the old battle of the "outs" versus the "ins."

Persecution will never disrupt the Mormon Church, but on the other hand will cement it the stronger. The Mormons are anxious for Gentile immigration of the better class, and are willing that their religion be compared with other sects—all being equal before the law. Many of their leading men have said to me, "If our religion cannot stand the test, let it sink into merited oblivion." OCCASIONAL.

—Sacramento Union.

In view of the enormous and malignant slanders indulged in toward the people in this Territory by their enemies, and the unstinted, vile abuse which is poured out by a few unprincipled stump orators and filthy sheets devoted to the purpose of overthrowing the liberties of our citizens, the following extract from the New York Star will be found most appropriate. The writer could hardly have described the character, practices, and purposes, and the tendencies of the same, of several prominent persons of the rabid anti-Mormon and anti-Utah classes. It is almost impossible to imagine anything more false, slanderous, abusive, vile, brutal and filthy than the strains in which such creatures sometimes indulge when they get excited against the people who settled and developed this Territory. Truth, civility, fairness, every honorable feeling and sentiment appear to be forgotten when certain characters get their high-heeled boots on and open their mouths pertaining to anything connected with the views and policy of the people of this community. But read this extract:

POLITICAL MORALITY.

The personal, criminal and retaliations of our annual and quadrennial electors speak illy for the civilization of an age which tolerates, and less for those who indulge in such means of compassing the public good or their own personal ambitions. Government—which should be for the good of the people, is worked as if it were a machine constituted expressly for the purpose of oppressing and swindling the people. In this country it appears to be a settled thing that the party in power is entitled to run the machine for and in behalf of its own friends and for the perpetuation of power, rather than for the general good. The idea of public justice, public economy, public integrity and morality is only incidentally thought of on the eve of an important election, when each party's stock in virtue appears to consist in showing up the vices of the other. Meantime the science of government; its practical application to the mitigation of the evils communities are subject to; the solution of the great questions of the age and present hour, are left to amateurs and private citizens for consideration. The average candidate for popular favor is neither statesman nor patriot, but charlatan, or traitor to all else than his own personal ambition. The noble competent man cannot get down into the mire to contend with the weapons—money, whisky, and the like—which the political parties of the day use to place candidates in office. It thus falls out that, as a rule, the most unfit class, like scum or froth, come to the surface and take the lead in public affairs. There are three principal reasons for this: 1st. The pay is better than they can make at any productive industry or legitimate profession. 2nd. The legitimate perquisites augment the pay in money, position, and personal influence. 3rd. The opportunity to steal is magnificent, so that if the two former fail, the latter is a certain success. It is all bosh to talk about patriotism in politics. It ought to be there, but it isn't. When men spend large sums of money and much valuable time to secure public places, they calculate to be well paid for the outlay at heavy compound interest. This is about all the morality there is in politics. That it is demoralizing; that it defeats the true purposes of government; that it makes a huckster's market of places and preferments, and prostitutes statesmanship out of all decency, none can deny.

The people of this Territory do not believe in any such political morality as that, and whenever they are permitted the use of the franchise they are accustomed to vote not for corrupt politicians, but for their own known neighbors and tried friends, the sophisticated pretensions of the unprincipled and ambitious demagogues to the contrary notwithstanding. We might assert, with perfect assurance, that in no State or Territory in the Union have less votes been given to political pretenders than in Utah. Such characters obtain the support of certain parties, for certain purposes, to which the welfare of the community or the country has not the remotest relation.

A Flemish army surgeon recommends wooden shoes as a preventive of rheumatism.

Manus What he Says.—Though "confirmations strong as proofs of Holy Writ," are as numerous as the sands on the sea shore, were produced to prove that Dr. Pierce, the proprietor of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, is in earnest and means what he says, when he offers $500 reward for any case of Catarrh which he cannot cure, yet there would be some skeptics and fogies who would continue to shout, "Humbug!" "Humbug!" "It cannot be, because Dr. Homespun says Catarrh cannot be cured." Now, this Dr. Homespun is the identical, good-natured old fellow who honestly believes and persists in declaring that this earth is not round or spherical, but flat as a "slap jack," and does not turn over, otherwise the water would all be spilled out of Deacon Bascom's mill pond. But astronomical science has positively demonstrated and proven that Dr. Homespun is wrong in supposing this earth to be flat and stationary, and medical science is daily proving the fact that he is no less mistaken and behind the times in regard to the curability of Catarrh. In short, it has been positively proven that this world moves, and that medical science is progressive—the opinion of Dr. Homespun to the contrary notwithstanding. That Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy will cure Catarrh, thousands who have used it attest. Then buy it, and use it, in doubt do not stand. You will find it in drug stores all over the land.
