NEWS FROM GUATEMALA.

The Rumor of the Amalgamation of Guatemala Denied.

CITY OF MEXICO, June 20.—The Anglo American has received a telegram from its correspondent at the city of Guatemala, saying that the secretary of foreign affairs has stated that the rumor about the annexation is false and that no such proposition has been made or is contemplated. President Barrillas also denied it.

A GREAT SENSATION.

ST. LOUIS, June 20.—A dispatch from the city of Guatemala says great sensation was caused here by the discovery of $5,000,000 in bonds issued for the redemption of treasury notes instead of the 3,000,000 called for. It is further stated that Barrillas has sold $2,000,000 worth of these bonds at 10 per cent. of their face value and pocketed the money and placed the remainder of the bonds in the treasury to redeem the notes. This piece of work has caused great indignation.

The Provisions of the Cattle Bill.

LONDON, June 20.—A bill to provide for the carrying out of the recommendations contained in the report of the Transatlantic Cattle Trade company has been presented in the Commons. The bill simply empowers the board of agriculture to appoint any person inspector to see that the provisions of the report in regard to the conveyance of cattle are fulfilled by the shipments of cattle and the masters of vessels carrying cattle across the Atlantic.

The Lynchers Will Probably be Acquitted.

WALLA WALLA, Wash., June 19.—The trial of the six soldiers for the lynching of Hunt, so far as taking testimony is concerned, is ended. Arguments will be made by counsel on both sides today. It seems to be the general belief that the soldiers will be acquitted.

The Railroad Collision on the Central Illinois.

NEW ORLEANS, June 20.—The collision on the Illinois Central railroad last night near Sturtz was caused by an open switch near where the freight train was side tracked and ran into by the southbound fast express. Four men were killed and six severely injured. The killed are Engineer Mitchell, Fireman Lawson, and Charles Munn and Bell Williams of Colorado. The mail train was behind time and running very fast when the accident occurred. The passengers were severely shaken, but none seriously injured.

A Bill Passed Over the President's Veto.

BUENOS AYRES, June 20.—The President has sent a message to Congress in which he vetoes the bill granting six months delay upon bills payable in gold or silver. The chamber of deputies immediately upon receipt of the message passed the bill over the President's veto, by two thirds majority.

Sentenced to Death.

COLUMBUS, June 20.—The court of inquiry which has been investigating the Manipur massacre has found the Regent guilty of warring upon the forces of the Empress of India, but on the other hand, the court finds the Regent not guilty of the murder of Chief Commissioner Quinton and other British officers killed during the massacre. The regent was sentenced to death.

Cassola Arrested.

NEW YORK, June 20.—Count Cassola, who has had charge of the business of the German-American Insurance company, North Adams, Mass., for some years, resigned his position about four weeks ago and came to this city. A telegram has been received from the chief of police of North Adams, requesting that Cassola be arrested. It is said that after Cassola resigned, his books were overhauled and a shortage of $20,000 discovered. He was arrested and remanded.

Money for Campaign Purposes.

OTTAWA, June 20. Owen E. Murphy is one of the witnesses heard by the Parliamentary committee investigating the charge of corruption preferred against Thomas McGreevy, M. P., in obtaining government contracts for Murphy's firm. McGreevy's brother also being a member of the firm. Murphy testified that in three years his firm gave $100,000 in donations to politicians' gubernatorial and campaign purposes.

Claims to Land in Arizona.

NEW YORK, June 20.—The Casa Grande Improvement Co., New York, is soon to present its petition to the new land court to determine the title to 4,320,000 acres of land in Arizona. It is an old Spanish claim, and the estimated value of the land involved, as it stands at present, is between $8,000,000 and $10,000,000. This petition will probably be the first business to come before the land court, which will soon organize and sit in the western coast. The Casa Grande Improvement Company (Limited) of Arizona, which has been organized three or four years, has a capital stock of $1,000,000. In case the Peralta claim is successful, the titles of the actual settlers will not be disturbed, as the United States law protects them.

FROM HAYTI.

The Rumored Assassination of President Hippolyte.

PARIS, June 20.—The Haytian minister here has received a letter from the Haytian secretary of state, dated Fort au Prince, saying that on Corpus Christi day, May 28, President Hippolyte was attending the religious ceremonies in the cathedral of Fort au Prince, when a band of desperadoes attacked the prison, forced open the doors and liberated the prisoners therein confined. The band then started for the presidential palace, hoping to surprise and assassinate President Hippolyte and the cabinet ministers. The former promptly mobilized his forces and were managed to suppress the revolt. The leaders of the revolutionary movement were placed under arrest and a number of their accomplices were also made prisoners.

Higaud was shot, after surrender, and having been furnished that he was not a French subject.

The secretary of State's letter concludes with the remark that the country is now tranquil and will remain so.

The Gaulois today says the European cabinets are discussing the expediency of taking united action in order to resuscitate the Haytian.

At a cabinet council held today it was decided to demand reparation from Hayti for the shooting by Hippolyte of Higaud, on the ground that he was a French subject.

Very Promising Crops

KINGFISHER, O.T., June 20. The wheat harvest in Oklahoma is almost complete. The yield is estimated at not less than twenty-five bushels per acre. Crops of all kinds are very promising.

A Deputy's Confession.

WICHITA, Kansas, June 20.—The mystery surrounding the murder of Sylvester Helm, the sensible cattle man, whose body was found on the Cherokee strip riddled with bullets, has now been cleared up. A burglar was fatally shot at Cherokee, Texas, and confessed that he and a man named Ben Scott killed Helm and robbed the body of a large sum of money. It is said the authorities have Scottbe shot.

IN PANGUITCH STAKE.

Exciting Experience in a Cart.—A Visit to Distant Settlements.

Editor Deseret News:

Early in the morning of Friday, the 5th inst., I left Panguitch in a cart carrying the United States mail, in charge of Don Carlos Sharp, for the purpose of visiting the distant settlements of Cannonville, Henrieville and Escalante.

From Panguitch the mail takes a course due east for one and a quarter miles until the mill is passed and the river crossed. Then we turn to the right and follow up the east bank of the south fork of the Sevier, passing several ranches on our way, until we near the place where the town of Hillsdale once flourished, turn to the left toward the mountains, and soon reach the mouth of Red canyon, through which our road takes a winding course until the tops of the mountains are reached about fifteen miles southeast of Panguitch. Then we descend gradually for nearly six miles until we cross the east Fork of the Sevier, nearly ten miles below where it rises in the forest-covered mountains to the southwest. We are here in the middle of a fine upper valley called the East Fork valley, and which at the time of the year is full of stock. Sheepherders' camps are seen in every direction and lots of thousands of sheep are grazing within a radius of a few miles.

This is a very cold country in the winter and is often covered with snow to the depth of six feet or more, on level ground, the altitude being nearly 9000 feet.

To cross this tract of land in the dead of winter is often a most dangerous task, and for months at a time it is never attempted except by the mail carrier or those who of necessity are compelled to do so. To guide the traveler when the snow has obliterated all trace of wagon roads, poles are stuck in the ground at about the same distance from each other as telegraph poles. The tops of these are painted black in order to appear as different as possible to the white snow, but even with this aid, there is often danger of the traveler losing his direction in the blinding snowstorms which are very frequent here.

From the crossing of the East fork we travel about four miles to the ranch this name or to a point known locally as the "dump" or "jump off," where the country suddenly "breaks off" and slopes toward the Colorado river, and where a most awe-inspiring view is had of the rough, broken, sandy and desolate country lying southward. At this particular point there is no mountain ridge or summit, not even a low ridge, to cross in order to get from the broken stairs of the Sevier to those of the Paiuseh, a tributary of the Colorado, but the level plain simply breaks off into a country that is no different than that lying on the north as anything could be.

Before we got very far down the dangerously steep road, we found it indeed both a "jump off" and a "dump," for as we plunged slowly down the steep incline, the part of our horse's harness generally called the breeching by most teamsters, suddenly gave way, and our cart, which was rather heavier loaded than usual (though having an extra passenger along, came down upon the horse, who at once seemed to forget all about a step or two, which had caused the progress of the morning to be rather slower than ordinarily, and off he went with a speed that would have done a race-horse credit, the cart with the U. S. mail and human freight following.

Soon the muscular arm of the driver was found altogether inadequate to the task of "holding back," and away we went, down, down, down, while the infuriated animal tried its best to kick the cart asunder. The historian concerning the fact that little was a little more than common experience in going down a steep hill, and also remembering that the history of Panguitch state was not only his written yes and hence not being ready to have his limbs broken, made preparation for a graceful spring from the doomed vehicle, but in trying to carry out his purpose he lost his balance and his intended graceful "jump-off" terminated in a regular "dump" as the hind axle, whenever the horse left the road and landed in a side gulch, turning the cart completely over, while the horse, who through this gulch movement got rid of the cart, started in the direction of the Colorado river, the United States mail sack, a quantity of flour, a valise, a bundle of dinner tucked in extra pail shoes, etc., including a driver and a historian, were trying to see which could roll to the bottom of the hill at the quickest possible speed. When all come to a standstill it was discovered that no one was killed, that no bones were broken, and with the exception of the slight spraining of a wrist and an ankle, the breaking of the harness and a spoke, and the scattering about of our luggage, we found it but comparatively difficult to continue the journey, but it took us about an hour and a half to make the necessary repairs and get off, and then we had the same experience before we got to Cannonville, the animal having got terribly excited over the experience at the "dump."

Cannonville is a little town situated on the west bank of the west territory of the Paiuseh, at the foot of a nearly perpendicular bluff of red and white sand stone. The settlement has existed since 1875, but owing to disturbances of different kinds it has perhaps not progressed as fast as some of their other settlements, still the people are cheerful and confident that their town will be a success, and that they will be able to make a good living here. A number of young orchards are promising well this season, and the green fields and lawns put in cultivated along the cross ditches off in pleasant contrast to the sandy, desolate looking country around them.

The Paiuseh from which the people get their irrigation water is a very treacherous stream. Like many of the other creeks and rivers on this side of the rim of the basin, it is subject to disastrous freshets which sometimes will tear away dams, and block everything found in its way, and at such times the liquid is more like a mass of slimy, mud than a stream of water.

In a part of the Cannonville ward there is the village of Georgetown, on Yellow Creek, which is reached by rounding a point in the southwest. It is situated in a narrow valley, or rather a canyon, about three miles southwest of Cannonville, and is across the boundary line in Kane county. Seth D. Carter, the newly appointed Bishop of the ward, resides here, and about a dozen other families.

Clifton, a village lying four miles north of Cannonville, in the lower end of a valley opening into the Paiuseh from the east, is also a part of Cannonville ward. It consists of thirteen families belonging to the Church, who farm on a small scale and get their irrigation water from Pine Creek, a tributary of the East Fork, flowing in the Tackaiate mountains. A canal fifteen miles long, conveying the water across the rim of the basin, has been made by the few industrious men who reside in the village.

Four miles east of Cannonville, a short distance south of the main fork of the Paiuseh, lies the village of Henrieville, named for Patriarch James Henrie of the Panguitch Stake. Until two years ago this place also belonged to the Cannonville ward, but now has a separate ward organization with Daniel Gonthing as Bishop. This, like the other three little settlements already mentioned, stands in an oasis in the desert, its shade trees, orchards and green fields showing the great contrast between the country in its with desolate state and those tracts which have been redeemed by the industry and thrift of a God-fearing people.

Last night I held a meeting with the Saints in Cannonville, and delivered an address on early Church history. There are quite a number of young people in these new settlements who are expending upon history and tradition for their knowledge of what has done by the Prophet Joseph and those associated with him in laying the foundation of this great latter-day work, and as a rule I find the young men and women much interested in Church history. I shall for Escalante today.

POLITICAL POINTS.

Enthusiastic and Interesting Meetings in the City and Country.

A Democratic rally was held on Wednesday evening at Taylorville. George M. Spencer was chosen chairman, Mahonri Spencer secretary, and John D. Fenner sergeant-at-arms.

Hon. J. H. Moyle reviewed in a masterly way the situation in the Territory today, and showed up the difference between the two parties in the forming of our government.

He was followed by Mr. Cassady who spoke interestingly on the tariff question. Both speakers were greeted with loud burst of applause, and at the close of the meeting thirty-five persons signed the platform. A meeting for the purpose of organizing a club will be held Monday evening.

AT SPANISH FORK.

An enthusiastic meeting was held in the City Hall at Spanish Fork on Thursday evening. The hall was crowded to its utmost capacity. The meeting lasted nearly three hours. The speakers were Delegate Caine and Hon. W. H. King. The former stated why he was a Democrat, explaining the principles of that party which, he contended, were the greatest good to the greatest number. Democracy, he said, asked for no special or class privileges, but extended equal rights to every citizen. Mr. King spoke on the tariff, claiming that it was a tax which weighed heavily upon the poor for the benefit of the rich and powerful corporations, trusts and combinations. Democrats, he said, favored a tariff for revenue confined to the needs of the government economically administered. High tariff upon luxuries which only the rich could indulge in and low tariff upon the clothing and other necessaries of life which every man and working man and every family must have.

He depicted the idea of a strong central government as being the American. He referred to Greece and Rome and told how the greed and corruption of strong central governments there, made up from a privileged class, had deprived their citizens of their rights and liberties and left those countries some strong, weak prey for tyrants and usurpers.

Both speakers were loudly and heartily applauded, and at the conclusion a unanimous vote of thanks was tendered them, and the meeting closed with three cheers for the Democratic party.

LEHI DEMOCRATS.

On Wednesday the Democrats elected James S. Saddle president, James H. Anderson secretary, and an executive committee of five. Previous affiliation was ignored, the officers being chosen from both the late parties, and both sides are enthusiastic in the grand cause.

FARMERS' WARD DEMOCRATS.

The Democrats of Farmers' ward held an interesting and enthusiastic meeting in the District school house last night. Colonel A. A. Wills, president of the ward club, and Wm. Fuller were the speakers.

DEFIANCE AT KANSHAN.

Social hall at Kingston was crowded last evening by Democrats, who listened to speeches by F. H. Dyer, P. L. Williams and J. W. Judd. The meeting was an enthusiastic one. A club was organized with M. F. Arnot president and H. B. Quinn secretary.

Delegates were elected to the county convention which meets on Monday next.

SCANDINAVIAN DEMOCRATS.

The Scandinavian Democrats of this city held a well attended and interesting meeting in the Fourteenth ward Assembly hall last night. President C. M. Nilson, Oscar Peterson and F. S. Peterson were the speakers.
