Utah Beef.

Salt Lake has commenced to realize that Cache Valley is the place to which to purchase fine juicy beef.

The Utah Slaughtering Co. have purchased three hundred and fifty head of beef from Aaron Farr, who delivers them to the company in Salt Lake. Mr. Farr finds it much cheaper to drive the cattle to Salt Lake on foot, than to ship them over the railroad.

Daily 15,000 head of cattle were shipped this year in Montana and Idaho points from this Territory, and the prospects are that a much greater number will be in demand next year. Mr. Farr has been offered a contract for 5,000 head already. The prospects are that next year the cattle will be driven instead of being shipped, as the railway company seems to want the earth.—Logan Journal.

Returned Missionaries.

Elder Henry Moyle of Alpine, Utah county, called at our office last evening, having returned from a mission to Great Britain, for which part of the world he left his home on June 2nd, 1886. He labored diligently as a traveling Elder in the Cheltenham conference until July, 1888, at which time he was chosen president of that conference and which position he held until released to return home. He enjoyed good health most of the time, and met with fair success as a missionary. Several new openings have been made and prospects for doing good are promising. Elder Moyle met with good treatment generally and on his departure for home the Saints of Cheltenham gave a pleasant party in his honor.

Elder John Trimble of Fillmore has also returned from a mission to Europe. He left home on August 20th, 1890. His labors were confined to the Newcastle conference in England and all things considered were very satisfactory. Elder Trimble reports that there is great interest among the coal miners in that region on account of the big strikes.

Elder Noah Edwards of Beaver City left his home for a mission to Europe on February 13th, 1891. He traveled in the Scottish Conference the first ten months, at the expiration of which time he was transferred to the Birmingham Conference where he labored until released. His health was not good during the latter part of his mission and he is glad to get home.

Personal.

Fred Dustin and family, of St. Louis, Mo., are visiting friends in this city.

G. A. Robertson, son of Congressman Robertson, has arrived in this city from the East.

Mr. L. Todd, a well-known Provo miner, is in Salt Lake on business.

ANOTHER "LIBERAL" SHOUT.

The Tuscarores' Pow-wow in the Exposition Building Today.

PREPARATIONS FOR THE CELEBRATION.

There Will Be Lots of Lemonade For Those Who Want It.—Distribution of Badges and Tickets.

This is a big field day with the Tuscarores. Wednesday having been especially set apart for the holding of their conclave in the Exposition building, Grand Sachem Powers the premier-tot was jogging around before breakfast this morning to company with a number of his most prominent "braves," giving the Building touches to the preparations of events and between 6 and 10 o'clock he set at his desk in his law office distributing party "favors" in the shape of satin badges, etc. It was he, too, who doled out the somewhat considerable details of admission to the Exposition building, of which, it is said, something like 8,000 had been scattered between 8 and 11 a.m. today. No less than 10,000 feet of lumber had been employed in erecting seating accommodation in the hall in which the pow-wow is to be held, and the speakers' platform has been elaborately filled up. The decorations are in keeping with the occasion. The old shields of the counties are there and "Liberal" campaign banners which have done service in the past occupy conspicuous positions. The national colors were brought into play, and Tuscarora flags were aloft. The mottoes on the badges proclaim the virtue (?) of the "Liberal." "We have kept the faith!" runs one; while another admonishes the followers of "Roger" to "Hold the Fort."

At 8 o'clock this morning the "pages" and others assembled, in accordance with a prearranged plan, in the office of the "Chief," where there went through what was gently termed "drills," and received instructions as to their duties during the day. It was 1 o'clock when the Deseret band struck up a lively tune and made for the Exposition building—the scene of more active operations, and about the same time the Territorial committee met together at the Walker House to arrange preliminaries.

It was promised that none who attended the "great gathering" need go unrefreshed, as to the janitor of the building has been entrusted the duty of dispensing fresh iced lemonade and other innocent drinks to the thirsty, or thirsty. All the visitors have to do is to help themselves.

The questions proposed for the consideration of the convention are these:

First—Is it deemed advisable for the Liberal party to nominate a delegate to Congress next fall?

Second—If not, shall the Liberal party wage an active campaign next fall for the local offices?

Third—Is the Liberal party ready to advocate immediate statehood for Utah?

Fourth—Is it the judgment of the Liberal party that the time has arrived to divide on party lines in Utah?

The decorations of the Exposition building were thrown open at 1:30 p.m., and then the "Liberal" influx began. Shortly after 2 o'clock the meeting was called to order. Various formalities, termed "the opening exercises," were duly observed, the Grand Sachem, as chairman of the "Liberal" Territorial committee, presented himself before his political subjects, and that worthy was moved to discourage the first lot of oratorical fireworks in the great gymnastic display as the NEWS went to press.

IN A MERCIFUL MOOD.

Police Justice Keiler Deals Lightly With Transgressors This Morning.

The police court this morning was wholly devoid of interest, as will be seen from the account of the business transacted.

James Jackson and John Goodfellow a brace of homeless fellows plead guilty to trespass. The court was in a merciful mood and discharged them.

A trio of whiskey-soaked creatures who each responded to the name of John Doe was before the court for drunkenness. His honor was also lenient to them and let them off without punishment.

William Howard and Arthur Williams are pedaling in the shady regions of the world, bail pending arrangement for petit larceny.

Bowden were offered and received in evidence. Account allowed and distribution made as prayed for.

Estate of A. J. Allen, deceased; continued to July 23rd.

Estate of L. W. Ingham, deceased; decree of sale and legal notice to creditors made; order made fixing August 17 to hear account and petition for distribution.

Estate and guardianship of Melanie Gundersdorf, a minor; board of inquiry appointed; guardian, for $500 approved.

Nothing Barring.

The matter will be temporarily at a standstill. Chief Justice Zane will not again hold court until next Saturday, and Judge Anderson is expected out of the city. The Commissioners were here yesterday, waiting for an hour or two, so far as public business is concerned. Tuesday been another money day all round.

NOW HAS GOT TWENTY DOLLARS.

The Deal of a Foreign Footle Gang in the Rear Before the Big Fire.

Before the fire of 1871 there lived in Chicago a noted footle gang named Mike O'Mara. He is now serving time at Columbus, O., but in those days he was known from the prairies as a shining light of footledom. One day in 1870 he went into the saloon of a West side Irishman who prided himself on his knowledge of money. Mike threw down a shiny looking dollar and called for rye. The bartender picked up the coin and examined it closely.

"Some bad coin, Mike," said he.

"Bejabbers, 'tis it ain't," answered Mike quick as a wink, pulling out a bill and slapping it down on the counter. After looking at Mike's bill a moment the saloon man took a fen dollar note from his drawer and laid it on the other.

"Wouldjaaack?" he asked.

"Cannot, cannot, I'm bound in Holland street," answered Mike. The two men were bunkoed to one of Mike's friends and the two, followed by a curious crowd, went over to the bank. When they got there the saloon man plunked the dollar before the teller and said:

"Don't you see that counterfeit?"

"No," he answered after a brief examination. "It is perfectly good."

"I don't believe you," cried the saloon man angrily. "Take it down a peg."

The teller flushed, and silently turning to a stack of coin taken off a dollar and handing it to the other said:

"Is that good?"

"Yes," was the answer.

"Then keep it, and . . . if take this other in its place." That of course gourmed the saloon man, and Mike won. As he was about to put the bills in his pocket he stopped and began an super examination of one of them. It was, in fact, the ten he had put up. Turning to his opponent, he asked:

"Did you look at the bill you staked?"

"No."

"Did you look at mine?"

"Sure an you don't think I'd bet Mike O'Mara without seeing that your stuff was good?"

"Was it good?"

"Of course."

"Well," said Mike, "this bill is bad, and if you hadn't said what you did I would have swore that my tye was all right anyway."

The saloon man did not believe Mike and the bill was passed in for the teller to decide. The answer was a red stamp, "counterfeit," across its face. The saloon man filled much or ten out of his treasury to replace it, but he never would be reminded that Mike took twenty dollars on the deal.—Chicago Times.

A Touch of Color.

"This artist needs a touch of color," commented a young woman, who was "fixing up" the parlor of her one apartment in expectation of a visitor, "a bit of bright color. I know it!"—she interrupted herself suddenly and ran out of the room. In three minutes she came back with a delicately patted face on which was a small choice of Malaga grapes and a fine orange with a quarter cut out. A pearl handled knife lay across the plate, and when she put it on the little table in the color-needing corner she looked a richly rouged lady in the mahogany half moonlight.

"There, Bob," she said, "is the color and the touch of harmony."

"Yes," grumbled her friend, "and the touch will of a careless maid or mistress."

But the orange remained.—The Point of View in New York Times.

Loss in Domestic Animals.

We can't call out all the loss there is in our domestic animals for the most part none at all. It makes no sense a sore hoof when I drive about the country and see the hoofed look of horses and cows. Pain has gone, the cows are nearly petted, and made much of as friends. They know it there's a good supply for anodynes and ointments.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The Battle Further of the Sea.

The future of our life in the upper portion of the ocean bottom may depend to a great or little but of us from the surface. Dr. Murray reports a large area, which continues to swarm 300 to 500 feet from the bottom, where the deep sea animals begin to appear.—Chicago Herald.

A large cave was recently discovered in Montana which contained the bones of hundreds of animals that had fallen into it and were unable to escape.

SUICIDE AT BINGHAM.

Abraham Veechi, an Italian Cuts His Throat With a Razor

WHILE IN A FIT OF TEMPORARY INSANITY.

No Reason Assigned for the Premeditated Act of the Despondent Dago.—The Inquest Tomorrow.

Abraham Veechi, an Italian in the employ of the Old Telegraph Mining company, at Bingham, committed suicide at Bingham at 11 o'clock today. He left no letters or other information or to why he committed the terrible deed and the whole affair is of a more or less mysterious character.

During the last few days and up to a few minutes before the suicide was committed, Veechi was outwardly merry, so jubilant in fact, that his friends noticed the unusual. A few minutes before the fatal stroke he went to Batten's dry goods. He entered a razor in his and he nothing was thought of the incident. He was seen to apply the shining blade to his throat. Three times in quick succession he drew the weapon across his windpipe severing it completely. Blood gushed forth in all directions and the unfortunate fell to the floor and expired without speaking, about ten minutes afterward.

The deceased was said to have been a quiet man and well respected in Bingham, where he had resided for the past eight years. He was thirty-four years of age and married. His body will be turned by his friends.

Coroner Harris was notified and will hold an inquest over the remains tomorrow.

It is generally believed that Veechi was suddenly seized with a fit of temporary insanity and that he committed self-murder while in that condition.

Birthday Surprise Party.

A birthday surprise party was given in honor of Bishop A. E. McMullin by the citizens of this place on the 19th inst. They assembled at the meeting house, bringing a choice picnic with them and spread three tables the full length of the house with the delicies of life. And when the Bishop arrived home from the field where he had been laboring, he was asked by his wife to accompany her over to the meeting house to a meeting. On entering the door the martial band struck up a lively tune and the Bishop was conducted up to the stand where he made a few very appropriate remarks. He was so overcome by the surprise that he could hardly speak. After we had appeased our appetites the tables were removed and we had an enjoyable time to dancing.
