SWEET CHARITY AND THE ORPHANS

Elk's Purple Day at Picturesque Lagoon Was an Unqualified Success.

LEGIONS OF HAPPY CHILDREN.

Romp on the Lawn, Sport Among the Flowers, and Are Feasted and Petted by Many Kind People.

The Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks of this city which entertained the orphans from the various charitable institutions hereabouts, is deserving of much praise for the success which attended its efforts yesterday, while the members must feel pleased in contemplating the fact that they were instrumental in bringing so much happiness to the little ones who have been thrown upon the charity of strangers at such tender ages. For the scene presented at Lagoon as the host of boys and girls swarmed over the beautiful grounds, was such as to warm the heart of the most casual observer, and to cause him to feel that charity is not so "cold" after all.

Under the watchcare of the Sisters of Charity and the matrons of the various orphanages of the city, the children as the guests of the Elks, were conveyed to the Lagoon depot and snugly ensconsed on the 9:30 train, known as the "the orphans' special." None but the orphans, those in charge of them and the Elks were taken on this train.

From the time the train reached the resort until the youngsters were put away in their little beds at night, those in charge of them were kept busy. When the party reached Lagoon it required the greatest effort on the part of Sisters, matrons and Elks to keep them together long enough to get them safely on the grounds, and when once inside the inclosure, like a bundle of straws when the wire is cut, they scattered far and wide. They enjoyed their freedom immensely, and indulged in all kinds of childish capers on the grass until 11:30 o'clock, when the call to dinner came, and the children were grouped together in squads and marched to the bowery, where tables were spread, freighted with sandwiches, cake and other edibles which take the fancy of little ones. The tables with their snow white covers and floral decorations presented a lovely appearance. When the meal was concluded, with their dimpled hands full of candy and fruit, the little guests were again "turned loose" to wander at pleasure among the trees and flowers. But the "sand man" was around, and many a little head drooped and its owner was off to "napland."

At 3 o'clock the various scheduled amusements began under the direction of Messrs. J. C. Barthel, W. L. Pope and W. E. Tremayne, the committee in charge of the sports. This part of the entertainment was not the success it might have been for the reason that it was impossible to tie the children down to business, as many of them preferred to wander around taking in the lake, the fishes, the bear, monkeys, etc. The ball game between the Orphans' Home and Day Nursery and the Kearns' St. Ann's Orphanage was won by the former in a score of 9 to 4. There were numerous foot races and other contests for both boys and girls, the winners being given knives, balls, bats, story books, and numerous other things dear to the hearts of boys and girls.

After the sports were concluded all repaired to the dancing pavilion where addresses were made by Rev. Father James J. French of Notre Dame university, South Bend, Ind., and Rev. Peter A. Simpkin. Both of whom spoke eloquently on the beauties of charity, and congratulated the Elks on the splendid entertainment they had furnished the orphans. After the speaking, little Miss Millie Williams sang in her usual sweet way, "Tessie" and "Bedella."

At 7:30, after having partaken of another delightful feast, and been given rides on the little train and the boats, the children were placed aboard the train for home where they arrived about 9 o'clock. The little folks were all neatly attired and presented a clean, animated appearance, and showed plainly, though they are orphans, they are well cared for by the kind people whose charges they are.

The clam bake, so persistently advertised by the Elks, was everything that had been promised, and by all who had a taste for the shell fish, was pronounced a great succes.

The attendance during the day was between 4,000 and 5,000 and was handled with the usual care and expedition by the officials at the Lagoon, and every detail was skillfully and satisfactorily worked out by the ladies and others in charge. The proceeds of the excursion will go to the various orphanages of the city.

SECRET SERVICE CATCH.

Kansas Man Run Down in Utah for Impersonating Revenue Officer.

Deputy Marshal Smyth and Fred Forneff of the secret service department arrested H. N. Baum yesterday afternoon at the request of the marshal of Topeka, Kan., who wants him for impersonating a revenue officer. Some time ago Marshal Heywood received word that Baum was in Salt Lake, but not until yesterday, when he visited the National Bank of the Republic, was he recognized. The prisoner will have a hearing before Commissioner Twomey tomorrow and will, if the circumstances warrant it, be sent to Kansas.

IMPROVEMENTS IN SANITATION.

Various Boards of Health in Different Parts of Country Are Making Them.

ATTENTION TO STREET CARS.

Experiments Prove Very Interesting —Better Health Certain to Result.

Special Correspondence.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 1, 1904.—Reports are beginning to come in as to the experiments which are being conducted by various boards of health with a view to improving the ventilation of closed street cars and railroad passenger coaches. One of the most interesting experiments was made in Brooklyn with a car of the Brooklyn Heights railroad under the direction of Dr. Walker, chief of the department of health of that city. In making his experiments, Dr. Walker sought the simplest possible means of securing a steady current of air sufficient to keep the atmosphere fresh but without subjecting the passengers to a draft and instead of attempting to utilize an expensive system involving the use of hot air, numerous ducts, etc., he employed a device so simple that any student of a manual training school or any ordinary carpenter could duplicate it. According to the report Dr. Walker had two openings made in the "deck-sash," about ten inches apart, "into which were fitted slats to deflect the intake of air to the roof of the car. Between these openings a shingle was extended from the side of the car so that the wind would strike against it when the car was in motion." The principle on which this experiment was conducted was that the shingle would intercept the air and deflect the same through the inclined slats toward the roof of the car, cinders, dust, etc., striking the shingle and falling to the ground. Meanwhile the passage of the shingle from the air would create a vacuum behind it, which would result in the vitiated air in the car being drawn off through the slats in the rear of the shingle.

The car with which the experiments were made was filled with smoke from burning rags and refuse until the atmosphere was rendered absolutely unbearable. It was then set in motion at the rate of 15 to 18 miles per hour and within two minutes and 30 seconds the air in the car was declared absolutely fresh and pure. "It is estimated that during the time the car was in motion 300 cubic feet of air per minute came into the openings in front of the shutter and that a similar amount was exhausted in the rear."

The absence of draft was particularly noticeable in these experiments, that is to say draft which the passengers, had there been any, would have been exposed. The fresh air entering through the opening of the deck-sash was deflected toward the roof and being heavier than the vitiated atmosphere within, pressed down upon the same, which was drawn out through the opening behind the shingle assisted by the vacuum. The fresh air having thus displaced the vitiated air descended slowly toward the floor but so gradually, being checked by the rising vitiated air, that its movement could not be detected by a taper.

Dr. Walker speaks enthusiastically of the results obtained especially as the ventilator worked automatically the results being the same no matter in which direction the car was running.

WOMEN IN FINLAND.

In Finland the women of the educated classes set a good example as to practical work. Some of the daughters of the best families practise as trained masseuses and teachers of gymnastics for the sick. This is due partly to the general lack of means and partly to the democratic spirit of the country.

PARKER SPEECHES; PARKER BUTTONS.

Former Heard and Latter Seen in Large Numbers at Democratic Excursion to Saltair.

THE CROWD WAS A LARGE ONE.

Attendance Was Five Thousand and Party Leaders Came from All Over the State.

Parker day at Saltair is now a matter of history, and it is within the bounds of reason to say that it was among the most successful Democratic celebrations in Utah. With excursionists coming in from all parts of the state, Salt Lake Democracy out in force, a hot day that drove hundreds of the city's residents to the resort; despite the opposition of Purple day at Lagoon, more than 5,000 people went to the beach and attended the exercises arranged by the Young Men's Democratic club.

The usual pastimes were engaged in until 6:30, at which hour, after the crowd had, by the liberal use of megaphones, been gathered around the stand on the dancing floor, Chairman W. H. King commenced the program. He spoke a few words of encouragement to Democrats in introducing Frank J. Cannon as the first speaker.

Senator Cannon was at his best in the four minutes he stood before the large audience. He was very earnest. He congratulated the party on the fact that for the first time since 1892, it is united. "The autocracy of the White House at present," he declared, "is endangering all that our fathers fought for." Senator Cannon extended his congratulations to the Young Men's Democratic club on its successful excursion.

Judge Powers made one of his characteristic talks. Since 1892, he said, the drift of public opinion had never been so near to Democracy as at present. He predicted success for Parker and Davis.

Joshua Greenwood of Millard was cheered when he eulogized Parker for his courageous stand in sending the telegram to St. Louis, an act which might have resulted in his name being taken off the banner. "Such a man," said Mr. Greenwood, "is too good, too big, to be defeated by Theodore Roosevelt."

A song by Mr. Phillips was well rendered, his selection being, "There's Nobody Just Like You."

W. E. Rydalch of Provo made a stirring talk. In concluding he did not forget to thank the Young Men's club for getting the Democrats of the state together.

Robert W. Sloan delivered one of his scintillating efforts with a couple of good stories in it, and was loudly applauded.

When Aquila Nebeker arose he received not only the applause of the multitude, but a series of cow-puncher's yells that startled the rafters of the historic structure. There had been unlimited talk about 'Quil for governor all day, and in this manner it found its way to the front. Mr. Nebeker gave a sound, convincing talk of four minutes' duration.

Hon. John T. Cain closed the speaking with a few impromptu, sincere allusions to the party, past and present.

The Columbia drill, given by sixteen young women under Miss Anna Mousley, brought the program to a close; and the crowds returned either to their dancing or their lunch baskets.

Parker buttons were everywhere in evidence during the day. Even the Republicans present, who numbered not a few, gave into the sentiment for the day and allowed themselves to be decorated with pictures of the man from Esopus.

HEADQUARTERS HERE.

Arid Land Reclamation Work of Five States to be Directed from Salt Lake.

Supervising Engineer N. H. Savage of the arid land reclamation service arrived in this city last evening, and stated his intention to locate his headquarters here. He has in charge the reclamation work covering Utah, Wyoming, Oregon, Washington and Montana and says he locates here because it is the geographical center of the 13 states in which the government is engaged in reclamation work, as well as a great railroad and business center. Mr. Savage also calls attention to the fact that establishing his headquarters in Salt Lake will bring here many other officials engaged in this and kindred lines of work, and gives credit to Col. Holmes and State Engineer Doremus for their influence in inducing him to come here.

HOSIERY and VESTS AT YOUR PRICES.

Our hosiery trade has steadily increased since the opening of the store. This speaks well for quality, correct style where style is necessary, and for courteous attention to customers. Especially is the trade big on Fridays and Saturdays, when specials are offered. It has become known that these specials are to be depended upon and that they mean bargains.

Infants' silk hose has been a strong seller. The qualities and shades seem to be just what the mothers are anxious for. For two days the 65-cent quality is offered at 39c.

There is a certain quality of hose which has given such excellent satisfaction to the ladies that we now call it the Keith-O'Brien special. It is the best value for a quarter we have seen. It is lisle ribbed, double heel, toe and sole, and has a full fashioned foot. All sizes from 8 to 10 are shown.

VERY NEAT AT THE PRICE.

Ladies' Swiss ribbed lisle vests will attract attention because they are reduced for two days. Around the top and the armholes, which are lace trimmed, there is a tape. The two lines are sold at 35 and 50 cents, respectively, but for two days only you can have them for a quarter.
