the soldier with reference to the taking of otherwise and did not observe any evidences of a struggle in the house.

Dr. J. S. Sharp's testimony for the defense was that morphine administered as it was to Nisenegel would have the effect of suspending the mental functions. The drug has a cumulative effect in some cases. Cross-examined, he thought not the addition of laudanum then cumulative effect of morphine were usually observed only in persons where the drug was administered habitually and not hypodermically.

Ray Davidson was put in the box to prove he saw Hicks and a stranger in a few hours after firing.

THE WOMAN IN THE CASE.

Mrs. Amelia Blackley was called for the defense and testified that she first became acquainted with Kessler in February, 1894. He called at her house three times prior to the meeting. Knew Nisenegel, who came to visit seven times in seven days, who was staying with her daughter. "Kessler said never met Kessler at my house," continued the witness, "and it was impossible for the two to have met at the house without my knowing it. On the night of the shooting I was down town and at the Kenyon house, which I left at exactly 11 o'clock and took the car for my home, which I reached about a quarter to 11. I had not been home not a week prior to the evening on which the tragedy occurred. I met Nisenegel at the Kenyon house in the early part of that evening and he was in an intoxicated condition. Nisenegel was self-evidently well acquainted with my premises to be able to gain an entrance without assistance from within." Mrs. Blackley also testified at great length as to her relations with the defendant and denied her house in detail. Her relations with him had been strictly moral.

Mrs. Blackley was cross-examined by Mr. Williams, and put some questions touching on her life, etc., and during the questioning, while answering the interrogations emphatically and readily, the witness was a little nervous and was compelled to make lengthy explanations of her answers. The examination elicited contradictions of the witnesses testimony at the former trial and before the grand jury, and many of the answers were rendered weak by stress on the term of the former. No new information particularly was gained, however.

A SINGULAR TESTIFIER.

Norton Chrisp, now serving a term in the penitentiary for burglary, was called by the defense to testify as to the doings of Nisenegel on the same night just previous to the tragedy. The witness had been carousing around and drinking in company with Nisenegel and two other soldiers. His examination was not progressing when the News went to press.

The case will not go to the jury today, but Monday afternoon will doubtless see it entirely disposed of and a verdict rendered.

Robbed a Farmer.

Assistant County Attorney Daniel Harrington went out to Murray this afternoon to prosecute the case of the State vs. Peter Christensen. The defendant is charged with having stolen $100 from a Murray farmer named Johnson, who had just raised the money from the sale of his late produce when robbed by Christensen. The hearing will be the first case tried before Justice Beatie of the Murray precinct.

NEGLECTS THE BABY

Lewis Burningham Charged With an Omission of Duty.

TO CARE FOR HIS ALLEGED CHILD.

A Case in Which a Married Man Is Charged to Be the Father of Another Woman's Child.

A case which promises to be quite interesting and in which Lewis L. Burningham stands as defendant, will come up before Justice Winger in the police court on Monday morning next. Burningham, who has made himself a wide just seventeen days ago, stands charged with having wilfully and without lawful excuse neglected and refused to perform the duty imposed upon him by law, of providing the necessary food and clothing for one Lewis L. Burningham, an infant, the child of said Lewis L. Burningham. The complainant is Amanda McDonald, the mother of the child, who claims that the defendant has been criminally intimate with her and that he is the sire of the baby which she now sees a father's care for.

This is the case which was noted in the News at the time of Burningham's marriage when Miss McDonald, learned of the marriage, called upon her intention to a reporter. She swore that after the birth of her child he refused to marry her, but took another to wife at a cost of twenty-five hundred dollars and very pitiful.

Burningham appeared in the police court this morning and pleaded not guilty to the charge. His bonding was set for Monday morning next and his bond fixed at $700 which he readily furnished, with Elias Bringhurst and Mary E. Spencer as his sureties.

Charles Chapman Discharged.

Charles Chapman appeared in the police court today for trial on a charge of gambling—a charge which was preferred against him at the time of the raidery of Tourist Fair, the young fellow who was housed by Castlin and Chapman, by reason of the "book" game. Chapman was discharged, as Mr. Pratt, the complaining witness, and left for more congenial climes, and was therefore beyond the jurisdiction of the court.

CITY TEACHERS MEET.

Large on Schools the Three of Discussion—Rise by Salaries Debated.

Nearly the entire force of the city teachers were present this morning at the regular monthly meeting, which, as usual, was held in the high school room. "European Schools" formed the subject under consideration. The educational systems of Germany, England, France, Germany, Switzerland and Spain were treated most interestingly by the following instructors in the high school:

Spain, D. B. Dotrasch, teacher of Spanish; Switzerland, C. M. Stephens, teacher of English and Latin; France, V. B. De Lorey, teacher of French and German; England, Miss E. M. Dukes, teacher of English; Germany, Miss Carrie L. Paine, teacher of mathematics and Sweden, a paper by Mr. Naver was read by Miss Alice E. Rowe, teacher of Greek and Latin. At the close of the reading of the several papers, Prof. Hotchkiss was called upon who gave an outline of the courses of instruction as maintained and taught in the schools of Germany. Upon the adjournment of the meeting, Clerk Morton distributed the monthly teachers' salaries, a feature of the day's program not at all unpleasant to the teaching force.

Woman's Press Club.

KEARNS'S CONFIDENCE.

He Claims With one, Indiana and Nebraska for Bryan.

Hon. Thomas Kearns of Park City has been in the East the last few weeks championing the cause of free silver, returned home this morning, where he engaged on the Chicago tagline and went forth to other fields of the white metal brotherhood.

He was seen during the day by a News man, and concerning his mission and the political situation said that he had spoken in time principally in Nebraska, Iowa and Illinois, the Dakotas, Kansas, Indiana, Ohio and Illinois were doing good service in advising that Allen had been receiving veritable ovations in the western counties of Nebraska, that his audiences had ranged from 1,000 to 4,000, pointing out that he had made two speeches in that state altogether and that he would leave for Indiana tomorrow and remain there for the rest of the campaign.

Mr. Kearns said that he met Chairman Jones of the Democratic party, Senator Teller, Governor Altgeld, Congressmen Towne of Minnesota and Harmon of Montana at Chicago. All of them have the utmost confidence in Bryan's election, they are certain he will carry Michigan and Indiana and Altgeld declares he (Altgeld) will take Illinois by a majority in Cook county, how Chicago will go remains to be seen, it has the enormous number of 350,000 votes. Congressman Towne thinks that Minnesota will be found in the silver column, and that Nebraska will stay, notwithstanding the tremendous efforts being put forth by Senator Thurston, of which it is said that because of state and national pride he would rather see Gov. Holcomb defeated than see the Republican party take Nebraska with its eight.

Just to Get Acquainted.

By invitation of President Talmage and the faculty of the Utah University, about 300 students of that institution and visitors, assembled last evening in the University building for an evening's social enjoyment. The object of the gathering was that the many students might get thoroughly acquainted with the teachers and each other. The affair was entirely informal and speeches by the faculty and recitations by Miss Mae Babcock and Mr. Hoffman were the features of the occasion, while light refreshments, games around by charming young misses and gallant youths, served to whet the appetite for future occasions of a like nature yet to store for the students during the present school year.

Much good advice was given the students in regard to preserving their health, that they might be able to pursue their studies without interruption, such sentiments were numerous, in the time of the teachers were to meet during the evening, and college pride and spirit were not omitted by the more scholastic present, whenever opportunity presented.

WHERE IS MR. ROBBER

A Question That Has Not Yet Been Answered.

IT MAY BE BEFORE LONG.

The Conclusion Are That He Did Not Take to the Hills—Interesting Developments Transpired.

The men who for the past two days have been searching the hills to and around the scene of the recent bold and useless train robbery unsuccessfully have returned, but not with the robber. True, they did their best to repeat the feeling saliva, but their hopes once mounted to their coming back empty-handed.

Captain Adam Paul, whose experience in running down highwaymen is one that runs back to the early days, when the first train robbery occurred and this step, headed Chief Pratt's division of the pursuing party, and he returns saying that he still has the same opinion of the robbery as he did when he had been but two hours on the trail. He doesn't say what that opinion is, but he does say that although he and his men spent a couple of days in the hills he knew all the while that their search would be in vain, but, says he, we did it to satisfy the politicos who so the papers directly interested in the case.

Mr. Paul says that never in his experience of over thirty years has he been concerned with a case that looks more "crooked" than this one. When the first train robbery was perpetrated the idea wildly, he with others took up the case and unearthed the whole affair in a little while. He has been connected with many cases of a like nature but never before has he run foul of a case that left so little as much like a "wild goose" run as this.

The circumstances connected around the robbery has not so much to do as the Sherrill's theta as of suspicion, and the question now arises, "Did the robber dismount with his party, or did he remain on the train?" The latter seems to be the conclusion arrived at. The finding of a bundle of mail, supposed to be part of that taken from the train, is a blow down to the place where the robbery was committed, leaves the "Sixty" to make the Hoots think that Mr. Robber did work after the train, consequently it is not that he so taken to the hills is certainly would have been captured or every section on the line was notified and at the looks, while the rest men and citizens were manned with illcers, who that too in a comparatively short space of time after the hold robbery had been committed.

Officer Hodge and Keene, Officer Jones Carlisle, who had took part in the search, said that their "trailing" was in no way necessary for the capture of the men if men who did the job. The men robbers acted inadvertently when they left the train and the posse was a short time with undivided interest.
