NO. 245. WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 20, 1893. SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH. VOL. XXVI

OUR LEGISLATORS.

The Democrats Fill Their Benches in the House Today.

NO MORE FILIBUSTERING.

The Senate Still Struggling With the Repeal Bill.—Talking of Applying Cloture.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—The decrees of King Canute were all dominant in the House today. The Democratic majority acted as a unit in ending the filibustering which has blocked legislation for weeks. When the House met the Democratic benches were crowded. The committee on rules had held a meeting at which over the protest of the Republican the members committee was instructed to report rules that would disarm the filibusterers.

As soon as the Journal was read, Lind of California, submitted unanimous consent for consideration of a resolution asking the secretary of the treasury how many ounces of silver were purchased in July and August; amount offered, and, if the government had not purchased the amount required by law, under what authority the secretary acted.

Pitch objected and the struggle began.

Burrows moved the suspension of the call of committees for reports.

Catchings, from the committee on rules, presented a report providing that no other business be in order until the reports to the committee had been received.

Burrows made the point of order that the report was not in order as it had originated with the committee. After a sharp fill with Burrows and Reed on one side, and the Speaker on the other. The Speaker overruled the point of order holding that the committee on rules would originate the order of business just as the committee on appropriations would originate the appropriations. (Loud Democratic applause.)

Burrows appealed against the decision of the chair.

Flick, New York, moved to lay the appeal on the table.

Burrows moved that the House take recess one hour.

Catchings made the point of order that the report of the committee on rules was the only thing in order.

The Speaker instructed the clerk to read the report of the committee.

Reed made a vehement fight against the action of the Speaker and declared that the clerk had no right to read the report.

He declared that the Democratic caucus at the action of the speaker were the most surprising in our legislative history.

THE SENATE.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—Morgan, Ala., presented a petition from citizens of his state in favor of the repeal of the Sherman act. He said it was one of the petitions sent out by New York bankers and he considered it a mandate from them and not from the people of Alabama.

Voorhees moved that the repeal bill be taken up. After a sharp passage between him and Platt, N. Y., who wished to make a motion for an amendment of the rules providing for cloture, the latter yielded to George, Miss., who addressed the Senate in opposition to the bill.

The Faribault Plan.

ST. PAUL, Sept. 20.—In reply to criticisms to the effect that the Faribault plan, uniting parochial and public schools, is a failure, Archbishop Ireland said to an Associated Press reporter that the plan is stronger today than ever before. It is now in operation in over a hundred localities. It has ceased to exist at Faribault, through local conditions merely, and at the archbishop's own suggestion, not by command from Rome.

Appointed by Cleveland.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—The President has appointed J. W. Nichol, Ind., deputy assistant comptroller of the treasury.

A REIGN OF TERROR.

Preparations to Terrify and Have a Massacre.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 20.—The leading citizens men in this city are secretly acting appointed a committee to see the governor for troops for protection against the reign of terror in Jefferson Parish, in the suburbs of the city. A mass meeting of colored citizens of that state has been called for on Monday.

There are indications of serious trouble. Jefferson Parish has been declared under martial law. It is impossible to learn whether the murderer, Johns, has been captured or burned at the stake. It is believed that the state troops will be called out today. Many white women and children have come in the city for refuge. Bloodhounds from the penitentiary were let loose this morning in the swamp in their search for the murderer. On the exact spot where Judge Bunge at left an iron stake has been driven into the ground, to which the murderer will be tied when caught. Business place further surround it, benefits being are hung with which he will be tortured, while suspended from the gallows by his arms, above the fire.

Destroyed by Fire.

CITY OF MEXICO, Sept. 20.—A fire yesterday in the Jesuits' Hospital at Tepic, owned by Juan A. Dehesque & Co. destroyed $200,000 worth of property. Four hundred barrels of wine and a large quantity of sugar were among the losses.

THE BRAZILIAN CONGRESS.

Its Work Interrupted a few Minutes.

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—For the first time the speaker in the parliament of Brazil which has been in progress in connection with the World's Fair congress was interrupted by persons in the audience, who objected to what he was saying. Senhor Saul Weiss, the American consular agent at Leme, raised a storm of protest by attempting to defend polygamy. The audience cried "No! No!" and he dropped the subject. In the podent many women's voices were discernable.

SURRENDER OR BE DOOMED.

An Ultimatum Sent to the Authorities of Rio de Janeiro.

The Capital of Brazil in a Condition of Consternation and Dismay.

LONDON, Sept. 20.—Admiral Benedicto has sent an ultimatum to the authorities at Rio de Janeiro announcing his intention of immediately and thoroughly bombarding the city with all his ships unless it promptly surrenders.

This information comes from the agent of a leading banking house in this city with large Brazilian interests and is believed to be thoroughly reliable. The report is to the effect that Rio is in the utmost consternation and dismay. Citizens are fleeing to the country with such of their belongings as they can carry. Merchants are packing their goods in the extreme preparatory to fleeing from the city.

The consular representatives of the powers are using their utmost efforts to dissuade the rebel commander from carrying out his threat, but so far without avail. Heavy pressure is being brought to bear on the local authorities to induce them to surrender, as it is considered folly to resist, the fleet being unable to do anything against the rebel gunboats and the land artillery being unable to reach them in their shelter behind the islands in the bay, from which they can throw shells into the city. It is recognized that to hold out means simply destruction, without any compensating advantage to Peixoto. In the meantime three rebel vessels have reached Santos, and after a sharp fight succeeded in landing a strong force of marines. At the time the dispatch was sent they were endeavoring to take the city by assault with probabilities of success.

The Army of Cumberland.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Sept. 20.—The twenty-fourth annual reunion of the Society of the Army of Cumberland was opened here today with a routine business session. This afternoon the soldiers and sailors' and the Garfield monuments were visited.

Battle With Crooks.

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—Sullivan, Rowan and Flannery this morning attempted the street robbery of a young man, Chas. McMullen, and the notorious mistress, Nellie Foley. A reverver fusillade resulted. Rowan was shot in the groin and will probably die, Flannery got two bullets in the thigh, and McMullen a bullet in his neck, a fatal wound.

A. D. A. R. G. Express Wrecked.

DENVER, Sept. 20.—The express in the Denver & Rio Grande which left Leadville this morning was wrecked near Colorado.

The officials of the road say the accident was unimportant. The baggage and express cars left the track on account of a broken rail. It caused a delay of one hour.

Alleged Case of Kidnapping.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 20.—Investigation is being made into the alleged kidnapping of Mexican jubilee, son of Wm. Whitman, who absconded from Springfield with $2500 belonging to the American Express company, and went to Lower California. Negotiations are opened and he agreed to surrender, and return what was left of the money, if the express company would be bonded with him. The sheriff went from here and brought him back. He will be sent east. It is now claimed that Mr. Robson was drugged and kidnapped. The Mexican authorities have arrested A. M. Pelham, an American citizen concerned in the alleged production. He has appealed to the United States.

THE DAY AT THE FAIR.

Celebrations in Less Favorable Weather.

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—The leading feature at the World's Fair today was the opening of Iowa's two days celebration. Unfortunately for the Hawkeyes since last May the weather was unfavorable. The day opened cloudy with a chill, raw wind, making fine overcoats comfortable. Before 10 o'clock a drizzling rain began to fall. Nevertheless the procession headed by Governor Boies passed through the grounds, followed by a reception in Iowa's building.

The Patriotic Sons of America celebrated the day with a procession through the grounds.

Montana was to have celebrated the day, but Commissioner Bechtel received word that the citizens would not give a special rate from the northwest, so the program and speakers were abandoned.

UTAH'S BIG CHOIR.

It Receives a Glowing Tribute From Professor Rudolfo.

GREATER THAN ITS COMPETITORS

All Things Considered, Says the Professor, it was Entitled to the First Prize.

A NEWS representative had a pleasant chat with Professor Rudolfo, the noted musician of the Congregational church this morning, where he was tuning up the organ and instrument in the building, preparatory to rendering the music for a wedding to be held at that place at high noon.

The professor and of 50 Chicago on the same train as President Woodruff and party, not was seated at lunch. I came on the Colorado Midland, but our tickets were issued at Grand Junction. The trip was a most enjoyable one."

Speaking of the great choir contest, Professor Rudolfo said: "I certainly that as things transpired our choir did the best work and had it not been for a little audience music "floating" in the last chorus there is no doubt but that they would have been awarded the first prize. In my opinion it would not have been otherwise. Several of the members of the choir came to me after the contest and asked what I thought of it and I told them that if they did not get first money it would be for the reason stated. I attribute the "floating" in fugue on the part of our chorus. The singing, however, was glorious. Nearly all of the Presbyterians with whom I talked, varied their congratulations of us by sympathy with one of the Scranton choirs lapsed with and unfortunately declared that our singers only won the $2000 prize. On all sides I heard: 'The Scranton choir is the best.'

"I had a talk with W. Apgahan, secretary of the International Jury, testified in relation to the matter. He said without reserve that the Mormon choir was entitled to the first prize. He showed me the decision of the adjudicators in which our singers received high and honorable mention. I am sure that had it not been for the little point mentioned we would have been victorious, and as it was were really so, as the Utah choir sang better in other parts than any of their competitors.

"As to Professor Stephens he was more correct in his songs than any contestant in the contest. Again, his conception of how each part should be rendered was unequalled.

"Said Secretary Apgahan to me: 'Had the Mormon Choir sung as well at the great contest as they did on the Saturday after at the Grand Central Music Hall they would have easily defeated all competitors. Their work there was a masterly and unqualified effort.'"

"Professor, not being a member of the choir I ask you," said the reporter, "for your opinion as to the comparative merits of the competing choirs?"

"I give it as my unqualified opinion that the Salt Lake Choir is the greatest and best ever heard in organization."

When in Chicago Professor Rudolfo, after the departure of the Utah choir, played two accompaniments on the great Festival organ for the combined Kansas choirs of seven hundred voices. That was on the 13th inst., Kansas Day. He received splendid notice from the Chicago press for his excellent work. One paper, however, credited it to Dr. Gower, of Denver, mistaking that gentleman for the Professor, who also played on two other occasions.

THE DYER WILL CASE.

Contest Over The Executors' Accounts in the Probate Court.

Mrs. Dyer's Objection Thereto.—Judge Henderson on the Witness Stand.—A Vitchkers Legal Fight.

In the Probate Court this morning, the hearing on executors' accounts and objections thereto in the matter of the estate of Frank H. Dyer, deceased, took place, having been continued from August 3rd. The case is expected to last all day, if not longer, and will be ponderously fought by counsel.

The contestant is the widow of the deceased, Mrs. Ella F. Dyer, who was represented by Judge Powers. Attorneys Williams and Van Cott appeared in opposition.

The executors under the will are Judge Henderson and Attorney P. L. Williams, and exception is taken to the account rendered by them, and filed May 23rd in the present year, on the grounds that some of the items are exorbitant and improper as charges against the estate, and not entitled to be allowed as credits to the executors. The contestant, among other things, charges in the estate being charged with $20,000 received from the New York Life Insurance company, $7000 from the Equitable, $5000 from the Ancient Order United Workmen, and $1000 from the New York Life, for the reason that each of those amounts is the individual property of Mrs. Dyer. She objects to the estate being charged with $25 dues of the expired stock of the Salt Lake City Gas Co., amounting in the aggregate to $300,000, inasmuch as 500 shares were Mrs. Dyer's individual property, amounting to $50,000. The estate should, she says, be credited with 500 shares. Objection is taken to the item of $1000 paid to Executor P. L. Williams, the same never having been allowed by the court, and to $1000 paid to Executor Henderson for the same reason.

Another item of $[illegible] she says is improper, is one of $[illegible] said to have been improperly paid to the widow of the deceased, and to Brigham H. Dyer, a minor, and to F. A. Williams, one of the executors and attorneys, for the use of the estate of Seth Lane City Gas Co., stock, describing the stock as individually owned property, on the 13th day of April, 1891, to H. B. Dyer, a minor, to Judge Henderson, to Williams, and to Mrs. Dyer, the ground that there is no warrant in law authority for the delivery of the stock for the credit and the expense of the estate. Item on page 4, $[illegible] received from A. G. T. W. Lee, Longmeir Co., being for payment of rents against the estate which have accrued prior to the death of Mr. Dyer, and which was never in the possession of the deceased." Item received by the executors from J. W. Wightman, amounting to $[illegible] and should have been paid to the individual heirs. Among the other items which should have been paid to some heirs taken for their collection, the same being insolvent. The "three accounts" is contested for various reasons.

When the matter was called for the hearing, after the dispatch of minor business, Judge Powers said that he had a few objections to the court. The point on which side should open the proceedings was then raised and argued by Judge Powers, Judge Henderson and Attorney Van Cott. The court ruled that the contestant should open and argue the contestants opposed, so Judge Powers led off and called Judge Henderson to the stand. The witness was interrogated relative to the following objections, particularly: "Objection to the item of $2000 in question as to whether he did not pay Mrs. Dyer $2000 received from the A. O. U. W., the judge said he did. He gave his own personal check for the amount and for a receipt kept the insurance money separate from the funds of the estate. As to the sale of the city gas company stock, he was asked whether Mr. Wightman was not employee, as a broker to dispose of it, whether these were not a consolidation as between themselves, McCornick and others in the matter, and whether Wightman or McCornick obliged to divide the loss with McCornick before the sale could go through, the witness said he knew nothing of any division between the two persons mentioned. The executor employed Wightman.

Judge Henderson was under examination when a recess was taken at noon.

THE WORK OF BURGLARS.

The Footed Housebreaker Makes a Visit to Councilman Hardy's Residence.

When Councilman Hardy returned to his home, No. 526 West, Second North Street last night after the meeting of the city school, he was more than surprised to learn that burglars had visited the home a few minutes before. Entrance was effected by prying open a front pantry window with a jimmy. The thieves did their work quietly failing to disturb any of the members of the household, and went from room to room taking such things as pleased their fancy. Among the articles stolen was a handsome onyx clock and a considerable amount of silverware.

Mr. Hardy was compelled to go to Provo on an early morning train and therefore did not discover the loss since attention. The police, however, have to in hand but up to this afternoon had not succeeded in finding a clue.

An Excellent Portrait.

There is in Johnson, Pratt & Co.'s window an excellent crayon portrait of the late Elder Orson Pratt. It is from the best photograph taken in life, when the subject was seventy years of age. The artist is a young man, L. M. Pratt, a grandson of Elder Parley P. Pratt. The portrait is a strikingly life-like picture, and is highly commendable as a work of art. It is destined to adorn a place in the Salt Lake Temple, having been painted with that object in view by Lorenzo Pratt, son of Elder Orson Pratt.

AMUSEMENTS.

THE GRAND.—The deeply interesting and uplifting drama has not been done in this city for several years. The production, which is to be given at the Salt Lake Theater tonight and Friday and Saturday evenings, promises to be an event of no little importance, duly for the reason that a meritorious and powerful performance is to be finally given. Manager Mayo Hanks is to receive a goodly share of the receipts with which he is to start a cool fund for the purpose of buying coal for destitute and worthy poor, a charity which is so commendable a cause offered for the consideration of the public. Lastly but most important of all is the engagement notable because the first time in the history of the Salt Lake Theater the prices reduced to 50, 35, 25 and 15 cents.

The Two Orphans was selected for an opening play because it contains the essential qualities of a great drama, a thrilling story, pathos, comedy, and thoroughly dramatic scenes and situations. The company is a great favorite with the playgoing public and touches the heart and mind of all classes of people. The play, the charity and reduced prices are worthy of patronage.

BUSINESS AND MINES.

Improvement Manifest in Mercantile Quarters.

BANKS ARE LOANING MONEY.

Real Estate Market.—Jewelry Factory Located.—Mining and Other News.

"Prospects are steadily growing brighter," said a leading merchant today. "Small business is picking up, and that is a good indication. Wholesale business is quiet. Things are being cleared up by the fact that we are and also just get to our money for wool, mohair, etc. The market for mohair is, however, tending to favorably. Twenty cents a pound, live weight, is now paid in Salt Lake, and this means $2.50 to $2.75 for good mohair wethers. The volume of trade is increasing all around from what it was a short time since.

"I am convinced more than ever that this thing is going to prove a blessing to the people of Utah. It will put a stop to wildcat stock schemes, curb the boom spirit, and bring us out the plain, matter-of-fact people that we are. There has been a little too much display. It is better to live plainly and quietly, keep out of debt and be honest than to be foolish in our dress and wildly speculative in our business. People out here are well off, but when some who have acquired considerable property for this section try to put on style like the millionaires of the East, why they can't hold a candle to the concerns for wealth. We will be thought all the better of for living within our means, and I think the present circumstances will have the effect of knocking us to sense. I believe that the times will steadily improve so that the people will be able to get along comfortably."

MAKING LOANS.

The statement was made today that commencing on October 1st the city banks would resume making short loans. This branch has been practically suspended during the past three months, and the banks have been steadily increasing their resources to meet any possible contingency. Inquiry at different banks regarding the reported resumption elicited a variety of replies, the substance of which is that there is no concerted movement. Some of the banks prefer to wait a little while longer before again launching out, while others are already making loans to a limited extent, and propose to increase the amount as money matters grow easier. All are agreed, however, that the crisis is over. Nobody goes up for the security now the time of business to be again inaugurated.

REAL ESTATE.

The Real Estate exchange regular meeting should have been held this afternoon, but there was not a quorum present. The members who went to the World's Fair recently have not returned yet. When they do, the exchange proposes to hold a home to society meeting. This is likely to come off next week.

As to the real estate market, one of the excessive members said to day: "It is quiet it possible than it ever has been. There is virtually nothing at all being done except a little sentimental business and the trading in of mines and stocks. There is now nothing to keep a live independent real estate man afloat. There is the business are waiting around, but capacity barely supplying one to do, or the last first nothing to do. Times are with a more encouraging prospect. Lots of them waited for the same thing last winter, but it didn't come. Now some of them haven't got enough to pay for advertising, and without the advertisement there is no hope of business."

"Real estate prices have all gone to pieces the last ninety days," said a dealer today. "Some people in the same figure for their property today that they did in June, times and of course don't get it. Others are selling at almost any sacrifice for ready cash. I know a piece of property, just outside town, that two years ago cost around $[illegible] per acre. There are twelve acres, and today that place can be bought for $1000. Yet nobody seems disposed to take it. There are lots of things now for cash, but they don't go. There are many people who would be made, so as to change their financial situation, but the class represents the greater proportion of the transfers that are now made. The other day there were lots of transfers aggregating over $[illegible] and with the exception of two small pieces of property and the clearing up of the title to the same. I think the most satisfactory sales that are made today, both for farm and city property, are those for long time and small payments."

JEWELRY FACTORY.

Moses Kinkerscher & Lietel, whose intention to establish a manufacturing jewelers' plant in this locality was mentioned in the NEWS a few days ago, have decided upon a location for their business. They have secured five acres of land just above the river for the plant of the Salt Lake Jewelry and Lapidary Works, and will shortly employ 20 to 30 hands. Work on the place for a factory. A city office will be established in the central part of town.

POTTS.

A. H. Ferguson, of Denver, who represents a syndicate of Colorado capitalists, is in the city to make arrangements for the purchase of Utah ores.

Judge J. R. McCarty reports the Beaver mines as being opened up in a satisfactory manner, with a strong prospect of good times there next summer. The result of the work up now being made at the Rio Rey mills is looked forward to with more interest.

Hailey, Idaho, Times: Three years ago, while a miner was digging into was in thought was a fortune, inherited the floor of a drift to lay and rest, he unexpectedly made a discovery that may increase the value of the mine mine very materially. The discovery was a vein of solid galena which has then been spread and drawn to least four feet thick, with pocket in the face. The total width of the vein is therefore undetermined. The discovery was made at a point about sixty feet from the face of the old workings, and at a depth from the surface of over 300 feet. Its importance is therefore great and its value hard to discover. The ore is clean, solid, rich, and there is apparently a large body of it. The discovery was not made before a week ago, when the lower workings, the drift was run in the hanging wall. And it was only by an accident, as above stated, that it was made at this time. The large lump lost in drifting, so far, and it is safe to be handled on the river, and to promise to prove the biggest thing ever seen in our town. As there is a good stock of ore in the old workings, the mine is now looking better than ever.

ALL ABOUT THREE SHEEP.

Frank Armstrong, a Salt Lake young man about 17 years of age, appeared to answer a charge of unlawfully driving away three head of sheep, the property of Hyrum B. Wright, a farmer of Provo, Saturday evening, and failing to return them within a period of twenty-four hours.

Assistant District Attorney Orval presented; Attorney Cabell defended.

The case now comes up on appeal from the judgment of Justice of the Peace Oscar Wilkins of Summit county, before whom the defendant was convicted of the offense charged on November 12, 1892, and orders to pay a fine of $10 and $[illegible] costs.

Some time last August the defendant and one Orange Pope on Saturday, driving a flock of sheep in the direction of Weber canyon. As he passed near complainant's residence he noticed the flock of sheep bleating to air. Wright left the barnyard through a gap in the fence, mingled with the defendants and was driven away with them. Mr. Wright stated that she saw the three sheep join the others, but he did not know that they were gone until they came home next day. In answer to Attorney Cabell she said the defendant was a stranger to her until that time, she identified him nevertheless. Mr. Wright was called and said he went to the ranch of the defendant's father, and it is about seven miles distant from his own place. Defendant did him no harm nothing of those sheep, but that if he could find them anywhere among his flock he could certainly take them. He was unable to identify them, however.

After a short deliberation, the jury acquitted the defendant.

A pretty wedding occurred at the Congregational church at noon today, the Reverend Dr. Utter officiating. The contracting parties were Mr. Clarence Bradley and Anna Maddison. After the ceremony they were driven at once to the residence of the bride's mother at No. 207 East Seventh South street, where a tasteful and elegant luncheon had been prepared. Mr. and Mrs. Bradley and Mrs. Maddison leave tonight for the east. The young couple will take up their residence here on their return. Congratulations and kindest wishes go with them on their journey through life.

A HORRIBLE DEED.

Richard Sullivan Cuts His Throat With a Broken Whisky Bottle.

FOUND BLEEDING FITFULLY.

He is a Native of Nevada, Was Liberated for the Catholic Ministry, But Went to the Bad.

One of the most shocking attempts at self-destruction ever recorded in this city was made by Richard Sullivan at the rear of the Utah and Montana Machinery company's place of business on East Temple, between Second and Third South streets, at an early hour this morning.

A few minutes before 8 o'clock a couple of plasterers in the employ of Christiansen Moren were about to enter the shop on the premises indicated when they heard someone apparently crying for help and moaning piteously. It was evident to them that the individual making the strange noise was in great distress, and they immediately commenced a search. A few feet to the right of the entrance to the shop was a broken trap door leading into an unused dark and dirty cellar under the building. On the door was the bloody imprint of a man's right hand, while a pile of iron piping near by was also thickly sprinkled with the same. The workmen jumped into the opening and found a man lying on an old quilt with a piece of carpet for a pillow.

A couple of policemen were summoned and by the aid of a lighted candle it was discovered that the man was Richard Sullivan and that he had attempted to commit suicide by cutting his throat and severing the arteries of his left wrist. He was almost unconscious and could not utter a coherent sentence. He was taken to the Sisters' Hospital in the patrol wagon, and there signified his desire to have the presence of a priest, believing that his time on earth was very short. When questioned as to why he had acted so rashly he feebly murmured that he did not know but that he supposed it was because he was crazy as the result of a seven days' spree. He also confessed to having used a concentrated morphine the last two weeks, though to deny the habitual use of the drug.

A NEWS reporter made an inspection of the premises shortly after the removal of Sullivan to the hospital. It was found that some time during the night he had entered the basement of the Dickinson meat market; that he had spent some time on a cot there generally occupied by an engineer. It was here that the fellow, crazed with drink, began his deadly work. This is evident from the fact that the place was covered with blood and spots of it were found to the cot in the roadway and all over the path across which he had made his way to Moran's cellar.

In the cellar where he was found the reporter discovered a pint flask containing whisky. The bottle was broken off just above the body, while the neck had been used to cut his throat, a piece of work he did in a most haggling and horrible manner. The cutting of the wind was so less lightful.

Mr. C. P. Mason, in speaking to the newspapermen of Sullivan, said: "His history is a very bad one. I knew him and his parents in Carson, Nevada, years ago. His father is a well-to-do and influential man. This boy was the only son and upon him every affection and care possible were bestowed. His father was determined to give him a good education and did so. After the boy left school his father insisted that he should learn a trade and he accordingly became an expert machinist. About a year ago he came here and hunted me up. He was in a terrible condition, ragged, dirty and destitute, having gone to the bad on general principles. But I took him in my way and made a place for him. He attempted to tell me on two or three occasions of his downfall and experience since I had seen him ten years before, but I was not anxious to hear it and so told him. He soon commenced to drink. But the boys in the shop liked him on account of scholarship and social qualities and they got up a subscription and put him through a course of the liquor habit, and six months after he was straight as my cane. He was a fine Latin scholar, a splendid linguist and a mechanician of a high order. Some of his books are still here in the office.

"His father came to Utah a couple of months ago to see him and was overjoyed at his reform. About three weeks ago, however, he broke out in the way and went to pieces all at once. Since then he has gambled and been drunk nearly all the time. He was a slave to the use of absinthe and would get it wherever he could."

Alvan C. Ellis, a young attorney with Dickson & Stone, was a school mate of Sullivan's. He says the latter studied for several years at the leading Catholic school in San Francisco, for the ministry. But for some reason he never entered upon active church work. He also spent some time in a San Francisco law office. He has a father, mother and step sister at Carson, Nevada.

Dr. Meacham said this afternoon he was of the opinion that Sullivan would recover.

Today's Probate Court.

Estate of John Kelsen, deceased. Hearing on petition for probate of will. On request of the attorney for the petitioners the matter was withdrawn and dismissed.
