NEWS OF THE WEST.

Denver and Rio Grande Looking for a Route into San Francisco.

NOT KILLED WITH A BEAN.

Fatally Shot Himself—Lost Pay Found in a River—Reed Crushed to a Jelly.

The entlusiasm in Colorado and Wyoming are again making war on the sheepmen.

The coroner's jury in the case of John Owen, killed in No. 6 mine at Alma, Wyoming, by the falling of a lot of coal, has returned a verdict of accidental death. The deceased has a daughter in Salt Lake City.

Some boys playfully threw some beans at young Douglas McGloach at Highland, Cal.. One of these lodged in his ear and could not be extracted. A violent inflammation set in, he soon became crazy and died in three days.

The 8-year-old son of M. M. Sandale, a resident of Mendocino, Cal., mysteriously disappeared from his home last Sunday morning. His parents and others scoured the woods in all directions, and the river, which runs near his home, was dragged. Saturday afternoon his body was found in the river. The little fellow probably fell off the boom sticks while at play.

George Blake of Alameda, Cal., was nearly drowned in the tidal canal late Friday afternoon while fishing. All sorts of crafts are pressed into service by the fishermen, and he was more of a corpse than a boat. Thus it happened that when he took in a passenger in Captain Thorning, who wanted to get ashore from his boat, Blake's toe box upset. Thorning swam to land, but Blake could not swim, and nearly drowned before he was fished out.

John Bungard, a miner in the Utica mine at Angels, Cal., met with sudden death in the shaft Friday afternoon. He was engaged in repairing some of the timber linings of the shaft, and was trying to place a heavy plank in position, when it caught in the pump-rob and was thrown toward him, striking his head and forcing him back against the rough surface of the shaft. His head was crushed to a jelly and he was dead when extricated. The dead man leaves a widow and child.

Uinta, Wyoming, Herald: Master James Burbank, 14 years old, who lives on a farm at Bennington, four miles north of Montpelier, met with a fatal accident last Sunday while his parents were at church. He was loading a shotgun with lead slugs, when it was accidentally discharged, blowing the left side of his head off, the slugs remaining in his head, making a frightful wound. Dr. Hoover of Montpelier was summoned and said it was impossible for him to recover.

The value of the California and Nevada railway as a means of entering San Francisco is being looked into by the officials of the Denver and Rio Grande railway at Oakland, Cal., and it is possible that the little Alameda county narrow-gauge line may pass into the control of the big corporation named. At the request of Chas. H. Smith of Denver, who now has control of the first mortgage bonds of the line, says an Oakland dispatch, Receiver C. K. King has prepared an extended report on the road, and copies of the document have been sent to Denver. Smith is a son of Captain Smith, who projected and built the road and ever since he secured the position he now holds he has been endeavoring to do something with the road. As the report prepared by Receiver King points out, the little 28-mile line offers one of the few openings still left by which San Francisco may be reached from this side of the bay. The creek and the land in the vicinity of the point are covered by a network of the Southern Pacific tracks, and any more franchises there are out of the question. The California and Nevada has a good terminus at Emeryville and has a right of way through the northern end of Oakland that would be very difficult to duplicate at this time. Receiver King has pointed out all these facts and has added the asserting that if the line were put through to Walnut creek it could be made self-supporting. Mr. King did not care to discuss the matter when seen Saturday afternoon. He admitted that Mr. Smith, who now controls the first-mortgage bonds was endeavoring to do something with the road and might lay a proposition before the Denver and Rio Grande. He said that Smith had written to him for a description of the property and that he had prepared one for him. It is understood that an engineer of the Denver and Rio Grande railway is to be sent here from Denver at an early date. No particular significance is attached to the matter, for it has been given out here that the engine was purchased from the Denver and Rio Grande by Mr. Smith.

Dairy and Creamery.

A cow must make 150 pounds of butter a year to pay for her keep alone without giving a cent of profit to her owner or paying him for his labor. This implies that she must yield at least 1,700 quarts of milk.

It requires between 11 and 12 quarts of ordinary milk to make one pound of butter, or, say 23 pounds of milk to make a pound of butter.

Examine carefully each of your cows this fall before you go into winter feeding and see if each one will yield 240 pounds of butter a year. If not, then you get no profit worth speaking of from the ones yielding less than this. These are hard times, and when butter and milk do not bring so good prices the dairyman and creamery man must produce more of them in order to get a living.

Good dairymen universally begin early to feed ensilage. Along with the ensilage they feed a small quantity of linseed oil meal, plenty of bran and some cottonseed meal or gluten meal.

Velaney E. Fuller is of opinion that the refuse from a housing factory is a better food for dairy cows, particularly Jersey cows, than cottonseed.

In Canada some breeders have been trying for several years making a cross between Jersey and Shorthorn. They think highly of it. In size the cross is nearly as large as the Shorthorn, and milks readily to the number. The crossbred cow is more refined in appearance than the Shorthorn, however, and gives 60 pounds of milk a day.
