QUIET POLITICAL CAMPAIGN CLOSED

Result Now in the Hands of Voters
—Three Municipal Tickets
To Select From.

DUTY OF CITIZENS TO VOTE.

Personnel of Democratic, Republican and Socialist Municipal Tickets for Tomorrow's Election.

Ogden, Utah, Nov. 6.—Tomorrow will determine who will govern the destinies of Ogden city during the next two years, so far as the city government is concerned. The matter is now in the hands of the voters. Tonight closes one of the quietest campaigns so far as concerns political meetings ever experienced in Ogden. The only two rallies were held, one at Five Points Thursday night and the other will be held tonight at the Grand opera house by the Republicans.

Much has been said by the local press concerning the various candidates nominated for the public positions of trust. Many unkind and untrue statements have been printed concerning some of the candidates, but the voters should always consider the source of such statements before passing judgment. The duty resting upon the voters tomorrow is a very important one, to elect city officials who will conduct the affairs of Ogden in an economical, progressive manner. All patriotic citizens want Ogden to continue to grow and advance in every avenue of industry. Therefore the voters should consider carefully the various candidates on the three tickets, select those whom they think will make the best city officials, then go to the polls early tomorrow and cast their ballot for them.

Ernest Lubeck in Trying to Jump on Train Falls Under Wheels.

Ogden, Nov. 6.—Ernest Lubeck, the 12-year-old son of Anton Lubeck, who resides at 284 Park avenue, met with a serious injury Saturday afternoon necessitating the amputation of his left foot at the ankle. The boy lives close to the railroad tracks, and as is the habit with a number of boys who live in that neighborhood, attempted to jump on to a moving Union Pacific train for a ride. His hold slipped, however, letting him fall beneath the wheels, which passed over his foot just at the ankle. The train was moving slowly, and was soon stopped. The lad was carried to his home, about a block away, where Dr. Dixon amputated the foot, and he is now getting along as well as can be expected.

A CENTENNIAL HISTORY OF THE CHURCH.

"ONE HUNDRED YEARS OF MORMONISM."

Salt Lake City, October 27, 1905.

President Joseph F. Smith and Counselors, President's Office, City.

Dear Brethren—We, your brethren, appointed as a special committee to examine the work written by Elder John Henry Evans, of the Latter-day Saints University, entitled "One Hundred Years of Mormonism," respectfully report that we have carefully read and considered the whole of said work and find the facts therein to be true and correct as far as our knowledge extends.

In style, the writing is plain, direct and simple, without any marked effort at literary embellishment, and well adapted, in our opinion, for a text book in Church History that can advantageously be used in our Sunday Schools and other Church institutions of learning. We believe that it will materially help our youth in their study of the great history-day work by making clear a number of points that former histories, written for the young people of the Church, have left somewhat ambiguous.

Most respectfully we remain, Your Brethren,

FRANCIS M. LYMAN,
GEORGE REXFORD,
JOSEPH F. SMITH, JR.
