Home Again.

Elder E. J. Eardley, of the Sixth Ward of this city, who returned from a mission to Virginia on Saturday, called at our office this morning. He left home for his field of labor on March 12th, 1890. He reports that in the twelve counties of Virginia, where his ministerial duties were performed, there is a much better feeling towards the Latter-day Saints than formerly. The mission is in an excellent condition. He made many warm friends during his absence.

We have also had the pleasure of meeting Elder Walter J. Poulton, who left this city in company with Elder Eardley, labored in the same Conference, although not in the same part of the field, and also returned home at the same time. Elder Poulton, like Elder Eardley, performed a faithful mission, and both of them express themselves to the effect that when they entered the ministry they certainly realized the benefit of having had a training in the first principles of the Gospel several years ago in connection with a Preparation class. Both enjoyed their ministry and return in good health and spirits. On his arrival here Brother Poulton found a letter from his sister-in-law which was expressions of appreciation of his labors.

Suit Against Marshal Parsons.

Suit has been brought in the Third district court against Marshal Parsons by Arthur Pratt, who seeks to recover $1,627.93, and two years' interest in addition.

The action has its foundation in the plaintiff's former position as deputy marshal. In the year 1889 Mr. Pratt was deputy marshal in charge of the First judicial district, his headquarters being at Ogden. When Mr. Parsons took control as marshal the plaintiff alleges that he entered into a contract with him whereby he was to receive sixty per cent. of the net earnings of the district and the defendant forty per cent. It is further claimed that under this contract there is due him $1,627.93, with interest from March 15, 1890, and he demands judgment for that amount, with costs of suit.

The marshal maintains that the record is incorrect and that there is nothing due to the plaintiff any more than at that time.

Harmel Pratt is the plaintiff's attorney.

JUDGE ZANE'S COURT.

Sunday Liquor Selling—The Charge of Permitting Gaming Against Marshal Parsons.

In the Third District court this morning Emma Whiting was arraigned on a charge of keeping a house of ill fame, and pleaded not guilty.

SUNDAY LIQUOR SELLING.

The appeal of Charles Thiele, saloon keeper of Murray, Salt Lake County, against a conviction for unlawfully selling liquor on Sunday, July 5th, 1891, was taken up. The prosecution was represented by Assistant District Attorney Stephens, and Colonel Lochie defended.

On July 17th the case came on for hearing in the Third District court, and the defendant was found guilty. The following day was set for sentence, when a motion was filed in arrest of judgment, submitted and overruled. Thereupon the court ordered the defendant to pay a fine of $25 and costs, the latter being fixed at $27.30. Subsequently notice of appeal was given and the required bond furnished.

Witnesses called by the prosecution now testified that they were speedily served with liquor by the defendant's bartender, the defendant himself being present at the time. No witnesses were called on the defense.

Colonel Lochie moved for a dismissal, on the ground that whereas the complaint charged the defendant with having sold liquor on Sunday, there was no evidence to prove that what was sold was actually intoxicating.

Judge Zane—Liquor beer, as I understand, is intoxicating, and the witnesses testify that they were supplied with that.

The case was then given to the jury, who retired to consider their verdict after an absence of about fifteen minutes they returned into court with a verdict of guilty.

ALLEGATIONS AGAINST MARSHAL PARSONS.

The next case called up, and which is expected to occupy the entire day, was that of the People vs. Marshal E. B. Parsons, against whom the former grand jury had found an indictment charging that, on the owner in part of a certain house in Plum Alley, on November 15th, 1891, and on divers other days, he therein "knowingly permitted gaming for money, credit, checks, and other representatives of value to be played, conducted and dealt, and particularly a game played with lottery and certain other devices, commonly known as 'lan.'"

For the prosecution there appeared District Attorney Varian and his associate, Messrs. F. B. Stephens and E. M. Allison, Jr. The defense was conducted by Judge Henderson, with whom was Attorney E. R. Critchlow.

A jury of twelve having been called, they were minutely questioned by Judge Henderson as to whether on the strength of what they had heard or read they had formed any opinion upon the case. Among the questions put was whether any of the jurors had read the editorials and reports reflecting upon Marshal Parsons in the Salt Lake Tribune, and whether, in the face of these, they could give a true and honest verdict. Several of them admitted that they had formed some opinion upon the case, but, if sworn, would decide the case upon the evidence, and were therefore excused; objections were made in several other instances with the court overruled, and Judge Henderson took an exception.

It was nearly one o'clock when the task of empaneling a jury was completed, and the court then adjourned until 2:15. The first witness called this afternoon was Mr. F. H. Dyer.

Amusement Notes.

Patti Rosa's appearance at the theatre tonight and tomorrow night will afford our theatre-goers an exceptionally delightful entertainment. Patti Rosa is recognized as the leader of soubrettes. During her appearance in London it became the fashion among club people and fashionable society to go to the Strand Theatre to see the "Little American." "Dolley Vardash" is said to be the best play she has yet had. It is bright, witty and diverting.

THE ATTACHES' BALL.

The grand ball to be given at the theatre should be liberally patronized, as it gives the public an opportunity to show in a substantial manner the appreciation of their services. Tickets can be procured from any of the theatre attaches.

WONDERLAND.

"Myrtle Fern" is well rendered by the stock company, and the wonders in the curio hall are attractive, as usual.

AN OGDEN SHOOTING.

Deputy U. S. Marshal McLellan Seriously Wounded by Ex-Deputy Marshal Whetstone.

Deputy United States Marshal J. B. McLellan was shot and seriously wounded by ex-Deputy Marshal Henry Whetstone, in a saloon at Ogden, on Saturday night.

It seems that the officers named and Oliver Hiles (Judge Powers' law partner) and one of two other persons were in a saloon had been quite drinking liquor and discussing matters of general. Hiles and Whetstone got into a controversy over an old grudge. McLellan took sides with Hiles. Whetstone stood him to be quiet but he would not. At this juncture the row was ended by the intervention of friends. Whetstone left the saloon. The last seen of him he was back in the saloon standing by the stove, with Officer Steele and Mr. Keck, who tried to get him to go home. This he refused to do. Presently McLellan, with his hands in his inside pockets, came toward Whetstone, in the hallway between the card rooms. As he approached, Whetstone said: "Mac, don't you say this again," at the same time pulling his gun. McLellan took no heed but kept on. Whetstone levelled his gun and fired. At the time the shot was fired he was standing between Steele and Keck, but he turned and fled through the rear door of the saloon.

McLellan fell to the sidewalk. The ball had entered his body in front of the left shoulder passing under the upper rim and leaving down in the spine, which was shattered. It was thought that McLellan would die and a deposition was taken from him.

Whetstone gave himself up and was conveyed to the city jail.

McLellan is still sinking.

The Logan Election.

The following special was received at 3:10 p. m. today:

LOGAN, March 7th.—Nothing definite to telegraph yet. We are confident of a Democratic majority.

JOHN T. CLARK, JR.

LATER.

LOGAN, March 7.—DESERET NEWS: The contest is very close. The Democratic six wards of two wards and the prospect is good for their carrying the general ticket. There is much excitement, but no trouble.

LATER.

From present indications the Republicans claim they will poll a majority in the Second and Third wards and Fifth wards, and that the First ward is doubtful; also, that they will elect the mayor by a fair majority. The Democrats claim they will carry two wards and probably the mayor. Appearances so far, would lead to the conclusion that the Democrats will be defeated in all but one ward and that the Republicans will elect all mobile of that.

THE SUGAR BOUNTY.

The President of the Utah Sugar Company Interviewed on the Subject.

Mr. Elias Morris, President of the Utah Sugar Company, was interviewed by a NEWS reporter today in regard to the subject of the sugar bounty. In answer to the question, "Why do you think a sugar bounty is equitable?"

Mr. Morris said—My reasons are these: We have constructed a factory at Lehi at a cost of about $500,000, and supplied it it machinery with a capacity of turning out from six to seven million pounds of sugar during a season. We obtained beets last year sufficient to enable us to run at about one-sixth of our capacity, and, judging from the experience of factories elsewhere, it will take us perhaps two or three years more to educate our farmers to raise the standard of beets required for sugar and to produce a sufficient quantity to run a factory at the capacity of the one at Lehi. But until we attain this end and get beets raised to the standard per cent. of saccharine, we need a Territorial bounty. Until we have so educated our farmers that they can see their own interest in raising sufficient beets to make it profitable for us to continuously we shall be losing by the operations of the factory. We paid eleven cents per pound for beets and $4.50 per ton. It does not pay the company to extract at that rate; there is no money in it at that price. The company used all the economy possible in their undertaking last season. We have no salaried officers except the president, secretary and bookkeeper; the other members of the board have given their services gratuitously. To prove that there is no monopoly in the concern, I may point out that the stock is offered to the public today at the same figure that we paid for it a year ago, the advantages of our past labor in promoting the scheme being thrown in. These are some of my reasons why the bounty asked for should be granted.

Sapete Mining.

A gentleman from Manti was in town a day or two ago with some specimens of gold, silver and lead bearing ore from a discovery just south of that place; these were only croppings, but those assayed handsomely. He says a force of men are at work and will continue right along. A letter just received from Manti announces that work in the West Mountain (Cleveland district) is being pushed actively and excellent ore in good quantity is being taken out in places, while all hands interested seem particularly active and hopeful. It promises to be a busy season in mining down there.

JOE BUSH UNDER ARREST.

He is Charged with Assault and Battery.—Petit Larceny and Other Cases.

Joe Bush, ex-deputy United States marshal, is registered on the blue docket of the Police Court. The charge against him is assault and battery. It seems that on Saturday night he took part in a free-for-all fight with some of Uncle Sam's officers in Main street. In the language of an eyewitness "The minions of Columbia did Bush up." He was seen to emerge from the street today, but case of his eye is in deep mourning, while the other is more or less discolored. Bush's defense will be that he was acting the part of a peacemaker at the time.

Three of the soldiers who participated in the affair are also under arrest charged with disorderly fighting. The case has been set down for 10 a. m. on Wednesday.

G. Rhodes and Peter Hawkins are in jail account petit larceny.

CONGRESS.

An Animated Discussion in the House.

WASHINGTON, MARCH 7.—Before the reading of the journal, Catchings, Mississippi, called up a resolution setting apart three days for consideration of the silver bill, and the clerk proceeded to read the bill in the adoption. Catchings demanded the previous question.

Tracey (New York) called attention to the fact that the journal had not been read.

The Speaker declared it was in order to call up a resolution, and the reading of the journal was dispensed with.

Dingley—Has the chair ruled that this report of the committee on rules can be considered before the journal has been read?

The Speaker—The chair has. That is one provision of the rules.

Dingley—Then the chair decides that business can be done before the reading of the journal?

The Speaker—The chair so decides.

Tracey—I appeal from the decision of the chair.

A wrangle ensued, after the conclusion of Bland's remarks. In these remarks he alluded to a conversation had with Cockran (N. Y.) and Cockran (Illinois), in which those gentlemen stated that if consideration of the resolution were postponed until today they would be no filibustering on the part of the anti-silver men, and he charged those anti-silver men with bad faith.

To this charge Cockran made a fiery denial. He had a conversation with the gentleman from Missouri and at that conversation Bland declined to agree that the resolution should be taken up today. Only after he had a talk with members of the committee on rules, then Bland consented to it. Not one word about filibustering had been said in the conversation with Bland.

The Condition of Affairs in Greece.

ATHENS, March 7.—The story published in the Paris Estoir recently last, stating that the superfortes of Delyannis, the excommunicated, had been placed under arrest and that all members of the Delyannis cabinet are being closely watched, is pronounced false by the authorities here. As for the stories printed abroad that the people throughout the country are arming for rebellion, and that, altogether, the situation is very alarming, they are laughed at by those best qualified to judge of the state of affairs. No revolution is impending, and perfect quiet reigns.
