They found the unfortunate lying across the track between the cars. His head was completely severed from the body, which was cut in two at the waistline. The total value of the mineral and metal production of the United States in 1895, according to the Engineering and Mining Journal, amounts to the enormous sum of $675,000,000, which compares with a colonial total of $576,000,000 for 1894, showing a total increase of $99,000,000 for the year. Of the whole amount last year $244,000,000 represented the value of the metals; $435,000,000 that of the non-metallic products, including $5,000,000 for various unspecified products. From these totals, however, it is necessary to make some deductions for articles which have been necessarily duplicated in the value. Among these is the iron ore used in making pig iron; a large part of the fuel used in making white lead; the coke used in making iron castings; the coal in making coke, an enormous ore used in making the iron and the sand, alone are used in making a conglomerate, which is used in making pig iron, and some other articles of the kind. A careful estimate of the proper amount of these deductions would give about $40,000,000 in 1895, against $34,000,000 in 1894. Making these deductions, we have a total net value for 1895 of $635,000,000, against $544,000,000 for 1894, the increase amounting to $94,000,000, or 17.5 per cent.

One Way of Catching Edible Crabs.

There are various ways of catching edible crabs. One way of catching the black or mud edible, the one that bores into muddy banks along salt creeks, is with two boards so placed as to form a deep sided letter V. The boards make a space where the tide is little strip of sand at low water, between the base of the mud bank and the water's edge. The crabs come out of their holes and go down to the edge of the water, often in great numbers. The fisherman comes down the bank with his boards, which he sets up on edge as quickly as he can on the mud, with the opening of the V toward the water. Then he chases the crabs, and they come everything up the little bank in confusion bound for their holes. As they come to the boards they run along with them, somewhat as the soldier carries his gun. It is from the habit that the soldier rudeness the name of soldier crab, by which it is also known. These crabs that are opposite the opening in the V finds with the rest of the line but when they strike the board, then they are the sun more and more together until they converge to a point at the point. The fisherman, sitting outside, takes them out by the handful.—New York Sun.

H. A. Archer, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the time is not far distant when a mother will consider the health of her child sufficient to cause her to reject the various quack nostrums which are destroying their lives, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other injurious agents down their throats, thereby sealing them to premature graves."
Dr. J. F. Kincheloe, Conway, Ark.
