IOWA DEMOCRATS.

The Delegates Meet to Prepare a Platform.

OTTAWA, Iowa, June 24.—Walter H. Butler, temporary chairman, made an eloquent address, in which he eulogized Governor Boies. He said the work by the Democratic party in Iowa would not be fully done until the prohibition force was swept from the code.

The members of the new State Central Committee were then announced, and the convention took a recess until 2:30 p. m.

Immediately after the adjournment the committee on resolutions met to prepare a platform. Great progress was made, and except on two or three disputed questions a platform was substantially agreed upon before the afternoon meeting.

Upon the reassembling of the convention in the afternoon, W. H. Posey of Council Bluffs was selected as permanent chairman.

After a speech by the permanent chairman the formal reports of the committees were received and adopted, and the nomination of State officers declared in order. Judge Kinne of Cedar Rapids nominated Boies for the second gubernatorial term. Hagenbeck was an eloquent one and was heartily cheered throughout. The convention then by acclamation declared Boies the nominee. There was the widest excitement and enthusiasm for a time.

The other nominees were: For lieutenant-governor, Samuel L. Brown; supreme judge, L. G. Kinne; superintendent of public instruction, J. F. Kessler; railroad commissioner, Peter A. Day.

The platform, as finally presented, contained the silver clause of last year, and was unanimously adopted without discussion. The platform demands the repeal of the prohibitory liquor law, and the interests of true temperance carefully guarded by a license law. It favors such changes in the law as will insure full and equal taxation of every species of property, after allowing the present exemptions. It favors the Australian ballot system and denounces the Republican party "for the defeat of the military reform in the twenty-first general assembly." It reaffirms the Chicago platform of the central and regulation of railroads as now enacted into a law, with such changes as experience may show to be necessary to protect the people from the invasion of the law. It calls for statutes which provide stringent safeguards in the organization of all corporations to protect the people from fraudulent concerns, and when any such artificial creature of the law is found in harmful practices, the law should immediately and in its entirety be enforced. It denounces all trusts, pools and combines, and knows such pillids, state and national, as will be held to the public all the benefits and protection which the laws should afford to every citizen, regardless of the interests of those in form trusts, manufactures, trades or enterprises, to the injury and spoliation of the people, and also to insure the safety, permanency, stability of individuals thus conspiring against the public weal.

The Democratic party declares that in the division of products between capital and labor, labor does not receive its fair proportion.

On behalf of the laboring and producing masses the platform "renews that devotion to their interests and rights which always have been the fundamental doctrines of the Democratic party." It favors all fair and lawful methods by which labor may secure laws establishing free public employment agencies and adequate compensation for authorized work by laborers in the enrichment of the few at the expense of the many; it condemns the practice of importing contract labor for work in Iowa; it demands the election of United States senators by the direct vote of the people; and lastly in detestation of the alarming corruption so widespread in sensational elections by legislatures.

On the silver question the platform says: "We reiterate our demands of a free coinage of the free coinage of silver, and that it be made full legal tender for all debts, public and private, and denounce as unjustified and dishonest the action of the last congress (Republican), allowing parties to stipulate against payments in silver and silver certificates. This is condemned as the setting up of one standard for the creditor and another for the debtor, one for the poor and another for the rich man."

The platform favors liberal equitable pensions, denounces the McKinley bill, the motives of its authors and defenders and the theory under which it is submitted for approval to the American people, insists that every expressive feature of the tariff be eliminated to the end that our merchant marine may be restored to the sea and the markets of the world opened to the protecting classes. The sugar bounty is not a tariff; it is a spoliation of the treasury for special classes and interests which are no more entitled to be aided by the government than the farmers in their hardships.

The platform denounces "the wasteful and lavish appropriations" of the last Congress; declares its unalterable opposition to the non-resident alien ownership of lands and of the ownership by one of our industries, and demands that all unearned land grants be reclaimed and held for actual settlers. Sympathy is expressed with the Irish in their struggle for home rule. A shortcome is expressed at the Russian persecutions of the Jews, and a belief that all civilized nations should protest. A liberal appropriation for an exhibit at the World's Fair is recommended.

A Statue to Beecher.

BROOKLYN, June 24.—At the unveiling of the Beecher statue, Seth Low delivered the oration, which was devoted to a eulogy of Beecher. Speaking of the school divine's work for the abolition of slavery, Low said: "By his oratorical spirit he made good at all times the words which he chanted to the tents of Israel: Hymn-dowed the souls when they broke upon the stubborn meeting in New York. Many another note he struck on the beatitudes of the human heart, but no one will doubt that his passion for freedom was the master passion of his life.

"Just as Beecher left Lane seminary, the foundations were crumbling which divided the Presbyterians of that day into the old and new schools. Beecher, though sound orthodox, was refused a license to preach because his father belonged to the new school and he himself also declined to subscribe to the old.

"In 1847 he came to the newly-organized Plymouth church of Brooklyn. What manner of man he was at this time, appeared in his discussion, when he said to those present: (If you come to this church congregation, I want you to understand distinctly that I will preach the gospel as I apprehend it, whether the men will hear it, or whether they will forbear, and that I will apply it without mint and anerise and strongly to the overthrow of every evil and the upbuilding of all that is good.'"

The Keystone Bank.

PHILADELPHIA, June 24.—The investigation committee of connecting this afternoon examined Rosetter Yardley of the Keystone bank. He identified 20½ shares of alleged over-issued stock. It originally stood in the name of John C. Lonas, but had been transferred by him to a nominee. It seems, frequently transpired in the testimony of another witness that the persons to whom the stock was transferred were merely "straw men" who signed blank stock used when stock was pledged to borrow money on.

Wanamaker's name does not appear on the stock books as owner of the stock. Yardley had no explanation to offer why some of the fraudulent stock said to have been placed in Wanamaker's vaults during Lovett's lifetime beats date of 1885, nearly two years after Lovett's death.

IOWA DEVASTATED

In Several Places by Terrible Rain Storms Causing Washouts and Inundations.

REPORTS OF EIGHT PERSONS DROWNED.

The Terror of the Johnstown Flood in Part Repeated in Cherokee.

By Telegraph to the News.

FLOODS IN IOWA.

Houses Carried Away and Several Lives Lost.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 24.—A special from Sioux City, Iowa, says: The heaviest rains of last night and this morning have almost devastated this portion of Iowa. No roads are running trains from this city except Illinois Central. Sioux City is inundated for thirty-five miles north of this city. Many houses in Lo Mars are flooded over the first floors, while the towns of Merrill, Hinton and James are in a worse condition.

Thirty-five miles of track on each of the Illinois Central, Chicago, St. Paul & Kansas City, Sioux City & Omaha and Sioux City & Northern are flooded north of this city, and all weekouts at Le Mars. The Little Sioux river bottom at Cherokee is entirely inundated, and thousands of acres are under water. Water at Cherokee carried away many houses. On the Central Iowa branch not fifty feet of track was carried out. On the Sioux Falls branch seven bridges were washed out. The Chicago & Northwestern tracks in Sioux City are washed out for a mile at Sutherland. The same road is also washed out at Carroll.

At Merrill, eight miles from this city, the Floyd river rose fifteen feet in three hours this afternoon, and tonight the flood is sweeping through Floyd River valley towards the city and threatening business of acres of crops. The manufacturing town of Leeds, Lyon and Lowelston are in its course and will be submerged by morning, causing thousands of dollars of damage.

Tonight hundreds of families on the Floyd river flats in this city are moving out to higher ground. The railroad companies have scrambled their yards and shops, and the engines, cars and all kinds of material are being moved to higher ground. Stocks in the Union and Central stockyards, the packing-houses, railroad shops and many houses will be partially under water and great damage will be done. Wires east and north of here are all down.

Reports from South Dakota are that the Vermillion river is out of its banks and flooding thousands of acres of growing grain. The storm at Sutherland last night blew down seventy-five fifteen dwellings, four warehouses and several barns. People took to caves, and no one was injured. All the county and railroad bridges are washed out.

TOWNS DAMAGED.

WATERLOO, Ia., June 24.—Reports have been received here by the Illinois central officials of a terrible wind and rain storm which prevailed last night along that company's lines, from Waterloo to Lake City, a distance of fifty-six miles. Towns were considerably damaged, four persons were drowned at Cherokee and four at Correctionville. The railroad depot at Calumet was blown down and much damage to the town property is reported.

Moorhead, O'Brien county, a small station on the Northwestern road, five miles from Calumet, is reported wiped out, over forty buildings being blown down. The time was so short, and it is impossible to obtain accurate information, except through the reports transmitted to the railroad officials and these are not always accessible.

Reports continue to be received somewhat of the disastrous storms and floods along the Illinois Central. Cherokee was visited by another storm this morning fully as disastrous, though not of as long duration, as that of last night. The Illinois Central bridge about 250 feet long, across the Little Sioux at Cherokee went down under the rush of the flood this afternoon, together with several houses in the lower part of the town.

Reports of the drowning of four persons at Cherokee and four at Correctionville are confirmed by a dispatch from superintendent Gillen of the Iowa division, who is at the scene of the disaster. Aurelia and Cherokee both reported another storm breaking at 8:30 p.m.

DESTRUCTION IN CHEROKEE.

CHEROKEE, Iowa, June 24.—The terrors of the Johnstown flood were in part repeated in this place today. Seventy-five houses were carried out of sight in the Niagara falls torrent. How many lives were lost is yet a matter of uncertainty. A terrific cloudburst, thrice repeated, the wind almost a hurricane, are what contributed the dread work. The storm which begun last night, appears to have swept in a vast circle to northwestern Iowa, fully one hundred miles in diameter, with Cherokee as the center. Up to 10:30 p.m. tonight, owing to the destruction of the wires and railroads, only the vagrant reports have reached here from the devastated territory to the west, north and south. The damage here, taking into account the relatively small size of the town, is enormous.

Most of the destruction in Cherokee was wrought by the extraordinary downpour of water from the sky. The flood carried off the big trues bridge on the Illinois Central, and with the bridge went 80 feet of trestle approach. Tonight the Little Sioux is at the highest stage ever known. The best information indicates that the Illinois Central rails are under water continuously for many miles west. Ocaya Branch, and great havoc has been done both to the roadway and bridges. The damage is something seldom paralleled in railroad history.

Work Resumed at the Black Diamond Mine.

SEATTLE, June 24.—Work was resumed at the Black Diamond coal mines today, the miners having come to the company's terms. At Gilman, however, serious trouble is threatened. The company attempted to put a force of men to work, but the striking miners drove them away. A special train with additional forces of guards left here tonight for the mines.

BERLIN, June 24.—Professor Weber, the well-known scientist, died today.

A DESPERATE MIDNIGHT CHASE.

WHAT CAME OF AN OMAHA WOMAN'S WALKING IN HER SLEEP.

(From the Omaha World-Herald.)

Several nights ago a prominent business man living on Twenty-first street was awakened from sleep and startled to see his wife in her nightdress, hastily rising to begin a search of the premises. In the hallway of the first floor he found his wife lying unconscious on the floor with several ugly gashes on her face and neck. Instantly it dawned on the husband's mind that burglars had entered the house and that his wife had been attacked.

There was no one in the house to send for help. The nearest house upon the front door and fortunately or unfortunately, as the case may be, upon the rear door, he proceeded to be an equally well-known young business man, returning from a late card party, passed by.

Arrayed in his night gown, the business man turned down the steps and called quietly to the young man. The latter turned and gazed upon the figure in white. One glance was sufficient to terrorize a less superstitious man. The startled listener heard the young man, but the latter took a long grip on the overcoat which and hung carelessly over his arm and started east on Farnam street at a dead run.

"Stop, there, I called the husband.

But the intimation only served to accelerate the speed of the young man. At second time only disappeared in sight, and the husband hung up. When the night robe flapping in the breeze he flew over the pavement, yelling at every bound, when he could summon breath sufficient to utter the words, terrified to see if he was still pursued, and then he took a fresh grip on his coat and plunged forward into the darkness. Meanwhile the husband and the young man, and on and on followed the husband. It seemed a race for life. But entire result yet remained unknown. The husband was plainly gaining and the young man was plainly losing his breath. When the young man struck the hill in front of John A. Median's residence it seemed that all hope had gone and his legs showed signs of weakening. The husband gained several leaps and he seemed to progress right within an equal rate. At the top of the hill all the breath was gone from the young man, and bailiwick he hitched, and, turning as nearly upon his parents, exclaimed:

"What's thunder are you chasing me for, anyhow?"

The husband gasped for breath as he pantingly: "What's thunder are you running for? My wife has been attacked by burglars, and I want you to go for a doctor. Now, will you go get one?"

A glad light burst upon the young man, and, feeling as though he was a brand snatched from the burning, he hastily took the overcoat of his partner's house and hastened away in search of a doctor.

The young man repaired to his own home, where he summoned Dr. Riley by telephone. Then he sent to the stable for his team, and drove out on Thirty-first street to see if he could be of further assistance. But in the excitement of the moment the young man had become confused on numbers, and after an hour's search for his partner's house he hastened to his own home, and was soon lost in slumber.

The next day the young man met the husband on the street, and explanations followed. The doctor had found the house, and had administered to the wife. It was not a case of burglary at all. The wife had simply arisen and walked in her sleep, something she had never done before. In attempting to pass through a big pane of window glass she had sustained her injuries.

THE CHINA RIOTS.

A Mob Determined to Destroy the Property of the Jesuits at Wuhu.

THE ALLEGED CAUSE OF THE TROUBLE.

French and German Men-of-War in the Scene.—Placards Posted by the Rioters.

By Telegraph to the News.

NEWS FROM CHINA.

Celestials Attack Mission Stations and Chinese Converts.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 24.—The steamer "Gaelic" arrived yesterday from Yokohama and Hongkong. The North China News, in its recent account of the Wuhu riots, says that it had been reported for several days that a Chinese mob was determined to land and burn the property of the Jesuits at Wuhu, owing to a report that a number of Chinese children had been killed and their eyes had been taken out by the Jesuit fathers to make medicine.

May 12th the mob gathered, drove out the missionaries and destroyed the buildings. The mob then proceeded to the English consulate and destroyed considerable property by throwing rocks. The British consul and his wife escaped dressed in Chinese costume and embarked on the China Navigation company's receiving ship.

A number of foreigners, headed by the British consul, armed themselves and passed the night at the custom house where, needed by the British Chinese magistrate, they twice repelled the mob which attempted to land and burn the building. The next afternoon three Chinese gunboats arrived and quieted the mob. The rioters did not make any demonstration against the American Methodist Episcopal mission, but on the advice of the British consul the missionaries also embarked in the steamer which brought all to Shanghai.

On the 16th of May at Nyanking Chinese made an attack on the Roman Catholic mission there on account of some rumors prevailing at Wuhu. The priests succeeded in driving the mob away. The rioters made a descent also on the inland mission near the North Gate, but the authorities promptly dispersed the rioters.

A French man-of-war was sent for and her commander informed the governor if the rioters did not obey the mandate of the magistrate he would not hesitate to take strong measures. A German gunboat also arrived the day after and co-operated in the efforts to secure quietude for the unfortunate.

At the last advices, however, placards had been posted by the rioters declaring that the mission buildings would be destroyed, beginning May 22nd, and threatening fiery death.

Experiments in the Air.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—Further experiments were made this afternoon by Professor Dyrenfurth of the Agricultural Department in testing the practicability of exploding balloons charged with gas at a considerable height in the air with the object of determining the practicability of exploding balloons in the manner and its effects in producing rain from time of drought. Three balloons, about twelve feet in diameter, charged with two parts hydrogen and one of oxygen, were sent up and 100 feet and exploded by means of an electric current transmitted over a fine wire. The tests were considered successful.

An Intercepted Speech at the Yale Alumni Dinner.

NEW HAVEN, June 24.—President Dwight presided at the Yale alumni dinner this afternoon. Among the speakers was secretary of the Interior Noble. President Dwight in introducing Hubert Trumbull of line of Chile, who is in this country representing the Congressional party of Chile, said: "He is a member of the warlike family of Trumbull, who gave a good account of themselves in the Revolutionary days."

Trumbull said among other things: "At home we are now in the throes of civil war. For sixty years there never has been a revolution, but today there is in that once happy country distrust and despair. We want a government of our men who fought shoulder to shoulder, and there are now war clouds in the sky. These men unfortunately demand bribes. They are men who have shot up the courts and set aside the law.

"I know that we in our struggles will have the support of Yale, for Yale sons are sons of liberty. We want a government something like that of the New England States. We believe that you are with us in our struggle for right."

The outburst of applause which followed Trumbull's address rattled the windows of the old Alumni Hall, continuing two or three minutes.

Funeral of Mac Donald.

INDIANAPOLIS, June 24.—The funeral of Michael Mac Donald Donald occurred this afternoon from the family residence. From noon until 2 o'clock a perfect stream of people passed through the house to get a last glimpse of the remains. In the funeral procession were political clubs and other organizations and over 300 carriages.

After the services at the house, which were attended by people from all over the State, the remains were taken to the cemetery.

Emigration Agents Must be Careful.

NEW YORK, June 24.—The Hamburg-American steamship line has followed the example of the North German Lloyd line and sent to all its agents abroad circulars to the effect that they must exercise more care in selling tickets to immigrants. If they sell tickets to paupers, criminals, insane people and others, who are undesirable additions to the United States population, they will be held responsible for all expenses incurred in returning them.

The Hamburg-American people, in their list of undesirables, go a step further than the United States government and include anarchists. Now that two of the great German lines are taking over here more than one-third of the total number of immigrants have fallen in line with Colonel Weber, the other lines will have to follow, and the class of immigrants in the future should be much improved.

Notes From the Nation's Capital.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—It is stated on the best authority that the only question to be considered by the Cabinet on Friday's meeting is whether the coinage of the standard silver dollars shall continue after the first, and that the data on that subject is now being prepared at the treasury department.

A great many communications on the subject have been received, a large majority of which favor the proposition. The only ones so far opposing it are certain New York bankers. The prevailing sentiment with the leading treasury officials is that the proposition will be adopted.

It is understood that the question of the extension of the 4½ per cent loan will be disposed of next month. The offers so far received in response to Secretary Foster's suggestion for the extension represent only about $5,000,000 of bonds. A prominent treasury official said today, "There is not the least doubt of the government's ability to meet all its obligations during the coming fiscal year."

PROMOTIONS IN THE POSTOFFICE DEPARTMENT.

Postmaster-General Wanamaker today issued an order relative to the promotions in the Postoffice department. It is ordered that there be established in the Postoffice department a board of Promotions, to consist of clerks of the various departments.
