CORONER'S INQUEST.

was substantially the same as that given by the motorman, except that he thought the rear truck of the car was the only one which passed over the unfortunate lady, judging from the jolt he felt, and judging from the jolt which was made by the car passing over it.

A little point as adjournment was taken until 1:30.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Upon reassembling this afternoon Charles H. Seywell, a baker, residing at the east, Fourth South street, was the first witness and gave the following testimony:

I was going to work about 12:45, and when near Third East he saw the woman, and noticed her step on the track, the car striking her. The motorman had shouted to the woman, but she paid no attention. Did not hear the bell ring. The car was about ten feet from where she was struck.

Mrs. Louisa Neumann, a girl of 11 years, was next sworn and testified as follows: I was walking along the street with the woman being struck by a car, before which the motorman stood over and lifted to catch her.

Mrs. Buckley, a granddaughter of Mr. Duffin, was sworn and testified as follows: The grandmother was 76 years, 9 months and 20 days old. Her health was perfectly considering her age. She was very fond of going out. Her sight was very good. Her hearing was not impaired and hearing were as keen as to the time. She was in the habit of doing all her own work, including washing. Most generally went out alone. Was fond of marketing.

O. S. Decker, being the next witness, testified as to his acquaintance with Mrs. Duffin. Witness made an examination of the locality where the accident occurred. According to measurements taken by him, it is 14 feet from the west edge of the cross walk to the nearest point behind which the motorman had testified the wagon stopped.

THE MOTORMAN'S CHARACTER.

Frank McKinnon, assistant superintendent of the Rapid Transit company, was testified. Was once in the employ of the company as timekeeper, and in such position had occasion to note the general fitness of men for their work. He considered Mr. Langton, the motorman of the car, a very capable and efficient workman, and had observed his general conduct since he was employed by the company. He had received no recommendation which testified as to his efficiency as a motorman, upon which letters he was employed by the company. His reputation as to sobriety was good.

LANGTON RECALLED.

Mr. Langton, the motorman was recalled and testified that he might possibly have been able to stop the car before reaching the woman, had he not released his brake. He released it, however, thinking that the woman was determined to stand still until the car would go by.

This closed the evidence, when the jury retired, and after a lapse of twenty minutes they entered with the following verdict:

THE COMPANY EXONERATED.

We, the jurors on their oaths do say, from the evidence presented that on the 4th day of December, 1895, the said Deceased, Mrs. Buckley, came to her death by being struck by a Rapid Transit car, in charge of George Langton, motorman. We, the jurors further find by the evidence that no blame can be attached to the motorman in charge of the car or the Rapid Transit company.

Conference Report from Hawaii.

LAIE, OAHU, HAWAIIAN ISLANDS,
Nov. 9, 1895.

To the Editor:

Owing to the recent cholera epidemic in the city of Honolulu, it was deemed advisable to dispense with our regular semi-annual conference, consequently we have no report to forward at present, yet a few lines from Hawaii may be of some interest to the many readers of your valuable paper, especially to those who have relatives and friends in the part of the Lord's vineyard.

Although the Hawaiian saints have, for some time, been inattentive and often showed little interest in religious matters, she is happy to state the feeling has now that there would be no general conference with feelings of regret, for truly there are times that are to hard little to by both the natives and missionaries from Zion with eager anticipation when we are privileged to meet in the same roof, hear the same elder's hard in brotherly and elderly love, and encompassed with the benign influence of God's holy spirit, and by the encouraging, comforting counsels and good instructions that are imparted on such occasions.

The presence of the above stated reasons necessitate the Elders remaining in their several fields of labor on the various islands about a month longer than they otherwise would have done, but nevertheless Israel's little band laboring for the advancement of truth in the paradise of the Pacific, have again been permitted to assemble at our mid-week home and are at the present enjoying a pleasant reunion and will, before taking leave, depart to fulfill the appointments assigned to.

After conversing with the brethren as to how the different conferences, I think it would be a difficult matter to impress you with a correct status of affairs, or in other portions of the world, a report that would apply to some branches would be in direct contrast to others, meaning by this that the saints in many districts are making some effort to improve themselves and thereby advance the work of God, while a great number are very sleepy and negligent, the sleepy ones deaf to the voice of warning being but little heeded. Much laboring in their midst we are usually kindly received and made to feel comfortable as their scanty circumstances will permit of, however, there is still existing in their minds that feeling of bitterness in all foreigners that I have mentioned to previous correspondence, which frequently causes us much unpleasantness.

While progress in some directions among this people is almost impossible it would be unfair for me to say that the mission is retrograding, for, during the term of six months since the last report 103 souls have entered into the fold of Christ through the door of baptism and 53 children have been blessed; quite an increase over last term, which is proof a doubt that the "bread cast upon the water" has produced favorable results, the fact of which side more is encouraging us to press onward in the noble cause and fly with diligent hearts to do the Master's will.

The "Saints Herald" (news) in report proves the truth of the old adage that "there is no news like good news" and is of a most elaborate character—one an arrival, the other a departure. The arrival to our mission is a large, fat, bouncing boy born to Brother and Sister M. M. Harmon on Sunday, November 3rd. Mother and son doing nicely. The departure is the return of our beloved and much esteemed president, Elder Seattle W. Noall, and wife, accompanied by Elder John Brown and wife, to their home in lovely Zion at Lee one of their successively performed missions. They have all labored long and diligently in the field and bear away who them our respect and heartiest devotion.

Another important event worthy of mention was the arrival of our new president, Elder Samuel E. Woolley, with his wife and family, in Honolulu on August 21st, in good health and spirits. They are at the present with us at Laie, where a special meeting was held last evening and the following temporal and ecclesiastical appointments were made for the ensuing term: Samuel E. Woolley, manager of the Laie plantation, with Walter Hulme as assistant, M. M. Harmon, school teacher and bookkeeper, Alice Harmon, storekeeper, and Laura Fisher, assistant school teacher; the ecclesiastical appointments are, for Laie, S. E. Woolley, president of branch, with M. M. Harmon and Walter Hulme as counselors; Ella Hulme, president of the Primary association, with Alice Woolley and native, Mikanna, as counselors; the Sabbath school and Mutual Improvement associations are both presided over by native brethren with Harmon and Hulme for the Islands—Sister Alice Woolley as president of the Relief society, with Sisters Alice Harmon, Phoebe Schuler, Laura Fisher, Ella Hulme and native Keanewa and Kahuku as counselors, and native sisters Makahoe and Kapu as aids; E. C. Dobbie as president of the Sabbath schools, with M. M. Harmon as John B. Jolley as counselors; Thos. Brimley as president of the Mutual Improvement associations, with Wm. H. Thompson and Wm. H. Mendenhall as counselors; Geo. H. Fisher as clerk of the mission and secretary of the Sabbath schools and Mutual Improvement associations.

Thos. Brimley, Geo. H. Hicks and native Nawahine, traveling Elders for the island of Kauai.

Wm. H. Mendenhall and C. L. Rooks, Oahu.

E. C. Dobbie, John D. Hooper and native Kaniakahoma, Maui.

Geo. H. Fisher, Walter T. Hatch and native Kaihiai, south Hawaii.

Henry M. and Louis B. Jenkins, south Hawaii.

John B. Jolley and native Nakuaau, Honolulu branch.

Wm. H. Thompson, music instructor for the branches of Laie and Honolulu, Oahu and Waiohiu, Maui.

The Elders will shortly depart for their respective fields of labor. All upon the mission are enjoying the best of health and spirits and feel to continue in the great work of publishing glad tidings of eternal salvation among this portion of Israel's children.

Ever praying for the welfare of Zion and truth, I remain

Very respectfully,
GEO. H. FISHER,
Clerk of Mission.

The Work in Florida.

GREENVILLE, Madison Co., Fla.,
November, 1895.

To the Editor:

The following few lines are submitted for publication trusting room may be found in your valuable columns, and that those interested in the work abroad it may not fall short of its desired end.

At the time of the writing the missionary labor of this state extends as far east as the Suwannee river in the part known as central Florida, and is now being pushed with renewed vigor. Four Elders, among whom were John Watts, Geo. A. Wootton and Frank Smith, according to appointment landed here and began the work of canvassing among the people who had never seen a "Mormon" before. The first warning note struck was that of "detectives," "spies," etc, quickly followed by the evil fruits of "yellow-backed novels." Alter less than a week's labor Elder Wootton was taken down suddenly with a severe attack of rheumatism, preventing him wholly from subsequent activities. This was truly discouraging to all parties but the work has been kept steadily moving and it is to be noted with gratification that the work is gaining ground and finding favor more generally each day. True the adversary has not been idle and there remains much room wherein evil may be done. The fact is keenly realized by the Elders here. Two were met by a mob of some eight men and given timely warning to leave the country, showing that the grand master of evil has not broken his old schemes.

Prejudice seems the easiest barrier several and the one requiring greatest patience to break down. Under the most trifling and often without the slightest excuse some refuse to hear. By virtue of the same spirit the majority of the churches are closed against us, which is likewise true of the school houses, but it never fails that where there is a desire to hear a way is always provided, while the servants of God rejoice in witnessing the attainment of the desired end.

The condition of the people varies from a point scarcely above actual want to that of comfort and ease. This particular section, Madison and adjoining counties, embraces some of the best lands of the state for corn and cotton, which feature is evidenced by frequent land monopolies by way of plantations. Naturally enough this better grade of land has by book or by stock worked its way into the knees of non-mormons, which makes more of a Homestead turn of mind. Another and inferior grade of land is that which during the wet season is more or less submerged. Such places, and those known as "piney woods" where little else but the turpentine pine will grow, is where the poor man makes his home. The inclemency of the winters south of the most economically in different cabins by settlers, while on the other hand labor is not restricted during any month of the year.

The ways of making a living seem sufficiently varied and easy, but impossible, a seemingly unknown disease of the will, is common, despite this fact they are clever and fearless as a rule and with a generosity hardly to be surpassed. The prospection of the field may with the propriety be ranked equal to any other part as regards climate or labor. As we come and those who join us are assured a pleasant and profitable time.

Respectfully yours,
FRANK CUTLER.

Canvassing School Returns.

THE OUTLOOK FOR SILVER.

No Legislation Expected During This Session of Congress.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Senator Dubois said today that the friends of silver did not look for favorable legislation by the present session of Congress, and in view of the hostile attitude of the President, he did not believe any special effort would be made in that direction. The silver men, he believed, would so far control the committees that they could at any time bring up a free coinage bill, and it was very likely that speeches in advocacy of such measure would be made during the session. The wisdom of making a prolonged fight with the full knowledge of its hopelessness, he said, was much doubted by silver men, and it was altogether likely that they would content themselves with reaffirming their allegiance to the cause rather than prolong the session when no substantial good could possibly result.

The senator, however, was very positive in asserting that no issue of bonds would be authorized or other financial legislation permitted without some substantial recognition given to silver, nor, he mentioned, would any measure providing for the retirement of green back pass the Senate, except silver be given an important place in any scheme for preventing the contraction of currency, which necessarily would be caused by such retirement. He therefore did not look for any financial legislation at the present session.
