NOW LAID TO REST.

The Body of Mayor Harrison Taken to Greenlond Cemetery.

A SORROWFUL PROCESSION.

Many Prominent Men and Societies Join in Showing Their Respects to the Honored Dead.

Special to the DESERET NEWS.

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—The great event of today in Chicago has been the funeral pageant of the deceased Mayor Harrison. The line was an hour and forty minutes passing the potoffice, it being composed of the military, police, letter carriers, fire department, city, county and state officials, Masonic and Odd Fellows organizations, numerous political societies, also German, Polish, Bohemian, Irish, Italian, French-Canadian and Scandinavian societies and other organizations, and thousands of citizens on foot. Over two thousand carriages and buggies followed the hearse, these including the family and friends of the deceased. The streets along the line of march were densely packed, giving scant room for the procession, and windows twenty stories upward were crowded with human faces. This is probably the largest ordinary procession ever known in Chicago. C. H.

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—With solemn pomp and imposing ceremonies befitting the interment of the chief magistrate of the World's Fair city and his dramatic fate, Carter H. Harrison's body was carried to Graceland cemetery today by an immense throng of sorrowing citizens. All night long two lines of people passed steadily by the bier on which the remains lay in state in the city hall corridor. The crowd about the city hall gradually decreased toward morning, as those who had stood in line for hours to get a last glimpse of the familiar features passed into the Board-of-Trade building, but early comers were lengthened the lines again and when finally the time arrived for beginning the ceremonies of the day and the doors closed it let a vast throng on the outside, bereaved of the privilege of seeing the peaceful features of the departed chief executive. How many thousands filed into the casket during the twenty-four hours the body lay in state it is impossible to estimate. After the door was closed the remains were tenderly borne from the black draped corridor and placed in the funeral car. Through the great crowd gathered to see the murdered mayor's last leave taking at the scene of his labors in behalf of the city he loved, the cortege slowly passed and took its place in the waiting procession. As it drew into line the march was taken up and the thousands who had gathered to honor the dead moved slowly through the crowded streets with banners draped to the sad music of funeral marches by the bands distributed at intervals.

Through a long line out from the center of the city the procession moved across the river to the beautiful church of Epiphany, near the late executive's home. All along the line of march the people, with sad faces and bared heads, watched the somber column, and about the church throngs as great as that which stood about the city hall was gathered.

When the remains arrived at the church they were carried in and deposited in front of the chancel, where in an impressive manner a solemn service for the dead was read. At the close, the procession again took up its line of march to Graceland cemetery. The cortege moved in the following order: Platoon of police, Iowa state band, Austin J. Doyle, marshal of the day, with his aids, General Nelson A. Miles and personal staff, department staff of army officers connected with the World's Fair, Col. Joel Crafton and staff, and the Fifteenth regiment of the United States regulars from Fort Sheridan, Light battery United States artillery, First Brigade Illinois National guards, chief of police, Michael Brennan and four companies of policemen, detachment of four companies of the fire department of Chicago Hussars, guard of honor of seven aldermen, honorary Pall bearers, Hon. T. W. Palmer, ex-Governor Oglesby, Hon. F. W. Winter, Adolph Kraus, Frank Sweet, ex-Mayor Washburne, H. N. Higinbotham, president of the World's Fair directors, Fred W. Peck, General Charles Fitzsimons, C. K. G. Billings, ex-Mayor Roche, Judge Francis Adams, Judge Lyman Trumbull, Comptroller Atmour, ex-Mayor Medill, R. A. Waller.

Then came the black draped funeral car with the active pall bearers, consisting of eight captains of police and fire department. Following these mourners in carriages were members of the city council, city officials, ex-city officials, board of education, library board, county officials, members of the judiciary, representatives of the Chicago Bar association, trustees of the sanitary district, park commissioners, governor Altgeld and the state officials of Illinois, Thirboard of World's Fair commissioners, U. S. government officials, Typographical union representatives, various civic societies, Cermania press club, Chicago newspaper club, Democratic and Republican central committee, two thousand city employes, various political clubs of both parties, German and singing societies, two thousand representatives of Polish societies, two thousand representatives of Bohemian societies, eight hundred Catholic autonomed societies and their Catholic church societies, Czan Na Gael guard, Ancient Order Hibernians, Irish literary clubs, French Canadian societies, Norwegian societies, Italian societies, citizens on foot and in carriages. Though the military walked eight abreast and the carriages were driven close together three abreast and great numbers of society members in line moving to close order it required hours for the procession to pass a given point. No funeral honors of such proportions were ever seen in this city.

Pursuing King Lobengulas.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—A dispatch from Fort Charles announces that several fights have taken place between British forces and Matabeles, in which the former have been invariably victorious. The Britons have captured Buluwayo, the capital of Matabeleland, and king Lobengula's stronghold, and that the latter, with remnants of his forces, are retreating toward the Kambezi river, pursued by Britons. No details are given as to loss of life in the engagements.

Will Fight Guilty.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 1.—Francis H. Wenze, New York's outstanding lawyer, who fled to Costa Rica, whence he was extradited, arrived here early this morning on the steamer Parkside. Though given entire liberty on board ship, he was carefully guarded to prevent his escape. Detectives in charge of him leave this evening by train for New York. Wenze says when he arrives there he will plead guilty and throw himself on the mercy of the court.

SHALL NOT OCCUPY TANGIER.

Treaty Between Spain, France and Spain.

PARIS, Nov. 1.—Explorer Soller, in an interview, intimates that Grand Duke Alexis of Russia has arranged a treaty between Russia, France and Spain, under which later Mediterranean occupation of Tangier and Morocco are provided for. It is added that, if this is not carried out these powers have determined that in no event shall Great Britain occupy Tangier, no matter what it costs to prevent it. The newspapers assert that Europe cannot allow England to occupy and hold the key to the Mediterranean, and urge the government to immediately dispatch a powerful French squadron to Tangier to support Spain against British interference in the disturbance about Melilla, and help force the sultan of Morocco to pay a heavy indemnity to Spain for loss of life at Melilla, and for expenses of subsequent war preparations.

Postal Estimates.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Postmaster General Bissell yesterday transmitted to the secretary of the treasury estimates for the post office department for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1895. The total amount is $74,000,000, as against $64,004,314 for the present fiscal year.

Will Not Post the $10,000.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 1.—The contest committee of the Olympic club held a meeting today and although the members decline to say positively what was done it is perfectly well understood the committee finally decided not to post the $10,000 as a guarantee for the Corbett-Mitchell fight to stand by Corbett. The committee will hold another meeting in a day or two and offer a purse of $25,000 for the contest, but compelling the pugilists to assume some of the element of risk with which the club will have to contend.

They Will Protest.

A letter was received this morning by the Utah Commission, ostensibly emanating from the Irish-American society, formally protesting against the Commission appointing as judges of election certain gentlemen who it is claimed are Mormons. What further action will be taken remains to be seen, but it is said that "a deputation" will probably wait upon the Commission tomorrow to stir the matter up.

CHILDREN TESTIFY

As to the Killing of Little Clyde Robinson While at Play.

OBJECTIONS BY THE DEFENSE.

Witnesses Say That Hammond Stood Two paces on "The Whole Outfit," on the Morning of the Tragedy.

At the time the NEWS went to press yesterday afternoon the trial of Henry Hammond for the willful murder of Clyde Robinson was proceeding. When Mr. Waight's testimony had concluded Gustave Tontrom was called by the prosecution. He is a Swede, aged seventy-six years, but the defense objected to him on the ground that his memory was not good, and allowed to testify to nothing but what he could remember he knew in that check.

Mrs. Wooting, daughter of Tontrom, was called, and stated that her father's memory was not good, but she believed his testimony could be relied upon as to what he knew.

Tontrom was then examined through Nicolai Gustavenson, as interpreter, as to his competency to testify. The court held that he was competent. Objections were then made to Gustavenson acting as interpreter. Deputy Sheriff Steele was sent for and the examination of Tontrom was begun. He testified that he heard a shot at the time of the killing and saw two boys run out on Malcolmson and then north. One of the boys had a gun, but he didn't know which one it was. He lived in the immediate vicinity.

Vicinia Ross, aged seven years, said she knew Clyde Robinson. She was passing through a fence when Clyde was killed. She saw Harry Hammond fire the shot. On cross-examination she adhered to her original story closely.

Court then adjourned until today.

The Scollom element of the city run riot last night and as a result considerable property was carried off and destroyed. In the Nineteenth ward gates were lifted from their hinges and taken blocks away. Where they would not yield readily to the vandal touch they were deliberately torn from their fastenings and the fixtures thrown away. Not less than fifteen gates were missing this morning in that ward alone. Several of them were placed on top of the highest telephone and electric light poles in the neighborhood. Not content with this wagons, carriages and carts were overturned and wheels and parts taken from them and broken.

It would almost seem that there was a preconcerted movement among this class of jokers throughout the city last night as similar reports have come in from all directions. In the business district carriage steps and dry goods boxes were piled up in the middle of the street, while there were numerous other evidences that the boys had been making "a night of it." It is said they were celebrating Hallowe'en. This may be true but their pranks were carried far for that. The chief of Police proposes to make an example of some of these chaps providing he can secure traffic and evidence against them to warrant prosecution.

Found Her Diamond.

Yesterday the wife of a well known local business man who lives in the southeastern suburbs of the city had the misfortune to lose a beautiful diamond setting from a gold ring. The lady came up town on a car to do some shopping and in her rounds visited dry goods houses, green grocers and a butcher shop. On returning home she first discovered her loss, and as the gem was a valuable one she was considerably perturbed. She immediately came back to the city and personally revisited the places to which her business had taken her earlier in the day, but all to no avail. She then remembered that she had waited near the curb for the car at the clock, corner of East Temple and First South streets and thither she went and commenced carefully to inspect the ground. Judge of her satisfaction and gratification when she observed the brilliant in a crevice in the sidewalk where it had late for hours to call view of hundreds of passersby.

THE DAIRY BUSINESS.

Those who are engaged in the dairy business in and around Salt Lake are not very enthusiastic over the financial results of their ventures. "It's a losing business," said a well-known dairyman today. "There isn't a man in it who is meeting expenses and making decent wages. Milk at 15 cents a gallon does not pay for feeding and care in the city or close up, and the people in the business today would be glad to get out if they could only realize a portion of their investment. With bad debts and low prices the loss is heavy. In one or two instances where parties keep long as well as one they are keeping even. The dairy raising business pays at present prices. It costs about the same to raise a calf of a pig to one year old. The former is worth $6 to $8 at the end of the time, and the pig will bring $16 to $20 easily. Milk can be purchased outside of town at 6 to 8 cents a gallon, and some people are buying at that price and retailing in town. But the straight dairyman who furnishes good, fresh milk is doing well. He can get $20 a month out of as large a business as one can care for." The figures here given are, of course, in the wholesale trade.

BUTTER.

Calvin W. Moore, a Mexican war veteran who now resides at Lawrence, Emery county, has been granted a pension.

Dun's Review of October 28 says of business in Salt Lake: Trade conditions have been gloomy the past week with light sales, slow collections, many days' sales, and offers of realizable products low, without signs of near improvement. Business fluctuates from fair to indifferent, with a strong tendency to the latter.

The bill to extend the time of making assessments on mining claims, which was amended by the Senate after it had passed the House, has been discussed by a conference committee of both branches of Congress. South Dakota is excepted from the operations of the bill, which, as it is agreed upon and will pass, suspends for the year 1893 the operation of the laws requiring $100 worth of assessment work to be done each year on mining claims. It also provides that claimants of any mining location, in order to secure the benefits of the act, shall cause to be recorded in the office where the location notice or certificate is filed on or before December 31st, a notice that he is doing, in good faith, intend to hold and work said claim.

Payette (Idaho) Independent: The fact that ex-Governor Hunt, of the American Mining company, is now in New York perfecting plans whereby the extensive Seven Devils copper mines of the company are to be worked the coming season on a large scale, is more than significant when considered in connection with the efforts that are being put forth by Mr. Hunt and his people to build a line of railway into that section of country. It is as well known that the mines of the Seven Devils cannot be successfully and profitably worked without transportation facilities, the present action of the American Mining company furnishes very tenable grounds for the belief that the Seven Devils railroad has a good deal of life left in it yet. So mote it be.

As to the Senate.

Editor Deseret News:

Speaking of the action of the Senate on the repeal question on Tuesday, you say: "The senate particularly has distinguished itself for abundance of speech, distortions of action, vacillation in leadership, pettiness for filibustering and obstinacy against reason." You very justly say, also, that "the same reproach (extraordinary) session has been the most notable and interesting in all our legislative history." It is true that the session and the conclusions reached so far have been notable and interesting. As the subject under consideration is one of the most important questions ever brought up in Congress, it follows that people would, as the NEWS does, regard it as interesting and notable. That the initial steps for repeal it at first sufficient grounds upon which the senate may be reasonably defended against your charge of "shiftiness of action and abundance of speech." This charge implies that the NEWS is disposed to criticise unfavorably the conduct of the campaign by the silver leaders so far during the session.

If the NEWS will refer to the history of legislation in the past, it will doubtless find that heretofore, on more than one occasion, much time has been spent in using an abundance of speech, as well as in dilatory action and filibustering.

The question of currency, or money of finance, whichever name you may prefer it, is one of the utmost importance to the people; it should be permanently settled once for all, and in order that it may be settled on a proper basis, it is essential that it should be discussed from all points of view, and in its title, time, patience and thorough investigation are necessary.

This discussion has been carried on as you mention during the session. It is not to turn in mind that it is not only necessary that the members of Congress shall thoroughly investigate and understand all great questions coming before them, but the people of the country who are so deeply interested should also understand them. In order that all light possible shall be produced and that equality for a legal tender measure of values, I presume the senators who have altered the abundance of speech to which you refer have resorted to the same in order to afford the people at large the desired information on the subject. Their speeches will be printed and sent broadcast over the country and will probably have the effect of inducing the people to instruct their representatives as to their wishes in the premises. Taking this view of the case I do not arrive, as the NEWS seems to have done, at the conclusion that the silver senators are to blame for consuming the time they have in deliberation.

It must be remembered that, as a general rule, men who have firm convictions adhere to them firmly, and in the controversy between the advocates of repeal and their antagonists, the firmness was made manifest on both sides. When either side was threatened, it was resisted; when personal physical endurance became an issue it was as firmly met. The result is known.

Let the friends of the poor man and the money of the people keep up their courage. As Mr. Vorhees said in the Senate "The fight has set just commenced." H. D. JOHNSON.

AMUSEMENTS.

THE LONDON COMEDY company, who are the successors to the Boston Video company, drew a rather light audience to the theater last evening, but one that was immensely delighted with the entertainment. The surprise is that Video's successor should be so little noticed. In the Pantomime Rehearsal, as often and so admirably rendered here by Video, Felix Morris, Marion Stokes and Courtenay Thorpe, last night's company certainly equal shone, and in reality the representation was better in some respects than that of Video herself. Morris, the French actor, is the principal attraction, and last evening as the Baron in one piece and as the man in search of a divorce in the other he caught the fancy of the house immediately, and charmed himself as a great artist. Miss Paget is a pleasant and clever comedian, very reminiscent of Video, and it must be said, in some lines just as good as Video. Mr. Granville's heavy dragoon was an admirable piece of acting, and Mr. Stokesdale's distracted author was almost as good as Thorpe's—not quite, himself, a little at times, but very perfectly performed, but was not up to the other two renditions.

Tonight the brief season closes with another triple bill, an special feature of which is a pantomime monologue by M. Marius, called Waiting. He holds the stage for fifteen or twenty minutes and does not speak a word, yet so exquisite is his art that he is said to enchant his audience throughout.

POLITICAL COLUMN.

Tough Looking Strangers Flocking Into the City.

WHAT CALLS THEM HERE NOW?

Prudent Campaign Meetings.—Meeting in the Theater Tomorrow Night.—Notes.

A suspicious circumstance just now and one that is causing alarm and the belief that Liberals are up to their old election tricks, is the arrival of hordes of hard and seedy looking strangers in this city. These characters were on the streets in groups of dozens and scores today, and the statement is made by those who are looking after the interests of the Citizens' campaign, that many of them are moving into the vacant houses at which men have been registered out at which they could not be found by the deputy registrars.

Where these fellows were imported from has not yet been disclosed. That they are here for a purpose, though, and that that purpose is to serve the "political ends" is pretty well established. One thing, however, is certain, and that is that the transients will be pretty closely watched.

DEMAND FOR IMPORTED VOTERS.

The following address was issued by the Citizens' executive campaign committee last night:

Citizens of Salt Lake:—Information of an unusual character reaches us from various parts of the city, especially from the Fifth and Second precincts, that the herd of imported voters with whom the Liberal leaders hope to carry the city are beginning to make their appearance with the intention of voting on Tuesday next. Empty houses are being filled up by small squads of men who rent them for periods reaching just beyond election day. These men will attempt to vote the names of the six or more whom the various deputy registrars failed to find in moving their canvass of the city, but who came in direct to Registrar Welden's office and announced there, swearing that they lived at various addresses in the Fifth, Second, or Fifth precincts. A second and third canvass has failed to find these men, many of the addresses given being on empty lots, in stores, or residences of well known citizens.

Women and people who desire to see a fair and honest election on Tuesday next, to promptly report at Citizens' headquarters, Hooper block, any suspicious cases coming under their notice where numbers of men move into vacant houses, or arrive at boarding houses or hotels within the next six days. Prompt reports will enable the committee to take steps for the detection of frauds, and aid in securing a fair and honest expression of home-life citizens and none others at the coming municipal election.

Meaney, L. Delgaet, Judge J. C. McNally, John H. Tommey, J. E. Larson, L. G. Hardy, George Stringfellow, E. F. Newell.

A very funny incident, thoroughly Liberal, occurred on a street car last night, much to the amusement of some of the passengers and at the same time much to the chagrin of others. A semi-mandlin creature who had attended one of the Liberal meetings was lighted and the statement that the Liberal candidate for marshal was surely with the reason that he was better known than his opponent. He wanted to know "who is the—the man Pratt, is, anyhow." (Why," he stammered, "I have been living here for nearly a year and a half and I never heard of Lorenzo. He must be a new comer." He fainted when told that Mr. Pratt had lived here not only a year and a half but all his life.
