TELEGRAPHIC.

SETTLED AT LAST.

Final Announcement of the Ratification of the Treaty

BETWEEN JAPAN AND CHINA.

The Original Terms Practically Unchanged Notwithstanding the Protest of Russia.

WASHINGTON, D.C., May 9.—At three o'clock today Minister Yang received a cablegram signed this afternoon from the chief officials of the port of Pekin, between Japan and China, exchanged at the Pei Ho forts, yesterday. The cablegram was made in the form of a telegram, as originally decided, failing into account, however, the recommendations made by Russia, Germany and France, the Japanese government had agreed to the amendment of the permanent occupation of the Liao Tung peninsula, provided that the telegraphic regulations be made and rules of navigation be reserved for adjustment between itself and the government of China.

The latter negotiation is conducted in a manner that leaves will not surrender its authority within interior, but take care that the commerce of the Amur shall not be interrupted. The Japanese government will agree to the payment of the Liao Tung peninsula for a term of years, provided China will pay the indemnity within the date when the indemnity shall be paid in full, then Japan will withdraw and make the payment of the indemnity, and China will not be liable to any further claim against Japan on the ground of necessity.

The party to make their protest against the Wei would be good until the last second million of the indemnity and the Wei would be good until the last second million of the indemnity and the Wei would be good until the last second million of the indemnity and