SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

MANUFACTURED BY

J. H. ZEILIN & CO., PHILADELPHIA, PA.

I was afflicted for several years with disordered liver, which resulted in a severe attack of jaundice. I had as good medical attendance as our section affords, who failed utterly to restore me to the enjoyment of my former good health. I then tried the favorite prescription of one of the most renowned physicians of Louisville, Ky., but to no purpose; whereupon I was induced to try Simmons Liver Regulator. I found immediate benefit from its use, and it ultimately restored me to the full enjoyment of health.

EVENING NEWS.

Tuesday, April 10, 1888.

AN OCEAN WAIF.

THE ADVENTURES OF FRANK MILLER.

The brig Wm. G. Irwin arrived recently from the Sandwich Islands, and shortly after a rumor was current along the water front that the vessel had brought with her a man who had been a victim of shanghaiers, who had leaped from a vessel to escape the abuse to which he was submitted, and had remained in the water nearly 17 hours before he was picked up by the Irwin. Captain McCollach of the brig was seen, and an interview with him gave color to the story. He said that he left Honolulu shortly after noon on the 3d inst., and when about three miles out, off Diamond head, he picked up a man who was clinging to a lumber chute, and who was well-nigh exhausted.

The man was cared for and remained below for a couple of days. When he was sufficiently recovered to be able to converse, he told the captain that he had been shanghaied on board the Jacob A. Howland, a whaler, and after remaining on board the vessel for four months had jumped over board, and being favored by the darkness of the night, had succeeded in making his escape. He gave the name of Frank Miller, and said that he was a native of Jersey City, and a cigar-maker by trade. Miller was seen by a Chronicle reporter yesterday afternoon, and his tale is substantially as follows:

He came to San Francisco from Jersey City about two years ago, expecting to have no trouble in securing employment at his trade. He found his mistake very soon, for, being a non-union man, he met with but little encouragement. He knocked about the city for some time, making several acquaintances, one of whom in latter part of last November proposed to him, as he could not get work at his own trade, that he ship on board a whaler. He protested that he knew nothing of the sea, but his friend assured him that mattered not. He accepted an invitation to take a drink, and how many followed the first he cannot remember, but upon awakening the following morning he found himself on board a vessel. His head was throbbing with a dull pain, and he said the conviction dawned upon him that he had been shanghaied.

"Were you willing to go to sea?" the reporter asked.

"Yes, I suppose so," he remarked, "but I don't remember signing any articles or any papers whatever."

"Well, you don't call that shanghaing, do you?"

The cigarmaker was not sound on this point, and finally he continued his story. The Jacob A Howland, he said, left San Francisco on the 27th of November, and after cruising about for several months finally reached Honolulu. Two whales were captured near Molokai in Calico Bay, and the deck was slippery after the killing. About 10 o'clock on the evening of March 3d Miller was on the port rail forward and he missed his footing and pitched headlong into the sea. He kept afloat by his exertions for nearly two hours, when, nearly exhausted and half drowned, he had the good fortune to encounter a couple of planks nailed together, which, from the appearance, had evidently seen service as a lumber chute. He managed to scramble on top, and there for 15 hours he was tossed about at the mercy of the waves.

He was in the channel between Oahse and Molokai, a place which is notorious for being infested with sharks. He was not in ignorance of his fact, as it was common talk among the sailors, and the condition of his mind was something terrible.

The morning dawned at last, and he could distinguish the outlines of the shore far ahead of him. The Jacob A. Howland was nowhere to be seen. He drifted around and around toward the land, but apparently got no nearer to it. The sun rose higher and higher, and its scorching rays blistered his hands and face and parched his tongue. A terrible thirst assailed him and he suffered greatly from the pangs of hunger. The sun was finally directly above him, and he knew it was the hour of noon, but yet no relief came. Two hours more of unbearable suspense and suffering followed, and then, to his great joy, he perceived a vessel coming from the shore. He attempted to raise himself to a standing position, but found that he was too weak to do so. Those on the brig saw him, and soon a small boat was bounding over the water in his direction, and about 3 o'clock he was lifted upon the deck of the William G Irwin.

His trip to San Francisco he referred to with pleasure, and spoke in the highest terms of the treatment he received at the hands of Captain McCollach.

"Were you illtreated on the Howland?" he was asked.

"Well, it seemed terrible to me," Miller answered, "but I suppose the treatment was nothing out of the ordinary, as there were very few complaints heard from the rest of the crew I, of course, knew nothing of the duties of a sailor, and nearly every time I received an order it was accompanied by a reminder from the soft part of a rope's end."

"You did not jump overboard to escape this treatment?"

"Oh, no; I knew the water was full of sharks, and I had rather take my chances of getting to shore by the vessel then swimming through sharks; but I am mighty glad that I fell overboard, I can tell you. About a week before my mishap a three-quarter white, a native of Honolulu, jumped into the sea with forty pounds of clothing on his back and swam to the shore. We were then about eight miles out from Honolulu."

The foregoing version of Miller's story is the one generally accepted, and the idea of his being shanghaied is not credited for a moment. The Jacob A. Howland shipped on November 17th, and it is generally conceded that the shipping of the crew was pretty straight. Those who know the waters in which Miller spent so long a time say that his escape from the sharks is marvelous.

MR. JOSEPH BEACH.

A LUCKY MAN.

Stone in the Kidney expelled after using Dr. David Kennedy's "Favorite Remedy" about two weeks.

One of the most remarkable cases that has ever been brought to the notice of the public is that of Mr. J. S. Beach, of Stone Ridge, Ulster Co., N. Y. Mr. Beach had suffered since October 18th, 1874, from the presence of Calculus or stone in the right kidney. No less than seven physicians were employed at different times, to whom Mr. Beach paid hundreds of dollars for medical treatment with only temporary relief from his agony.

By the urgent solicitation of his friends he was induced to try Dr. David Kennedy's "Favorite Remedy," made, you remember, at Rondout, N. Y. He experienced marked improvement from the first dose he began to use the medicine. On the 15th September he voided a stone as large as could be passed through the natural channel.

Mr. Beach concludes a long letter to Dr. Kennedy by saying: "It will always afford me pleasure to recommend the "Favorite Remedy" to those who may be suffering from difficulties of the Kidneys and Bladder, or any disorders arising from an impure state of the blood." The "Favorite Remedy," is sold by all druggists. Price only $1 a bottle. The Doctor's only address where he manufactures his "Favorite Remedy," is Rondout, N. Y. Richardson Drug Co., St. Louis, agents.

CURE FOR PILES.

Itching Piles are known by moisture like perspiration, producing a very disagreeable itching after getting warm. This form as well as Blind, Bleeding and protruding Piles, yield at once to the application of Dr. Bosanko's Pile Remedy, which acts directly upon the parts affected, absorbing the tumors, allaying the intense itching and effecting a permanent cure. 50 cents.
