SALT WATER FOR STREET SPRINKLING.

A San Francisco Chinese Highbinder Temporarily Saved from the Gallows.—Cricket Plague.

A small son of Isaac Hansen of Sanitquin was playing the other day with a scythe and had the misfortune to cut the tendon of his right leg.

Grasshoppers are hatching out by the millions on the Sand Ridge and are working their way to the south. It is feared that they will greatly damage the second crop of lucern.

The corn crop in the valley of Mexico and through the southern states of the republic is the most abundant known for several years and the price of the grain has already taken a big decline.

The granger beef cattle shipments from Sheridan, Wyo., to Chicago will begin in a short time, and the estimated amount of money to be derived from sales during the next two months is something over $200,000.

While endeavoring to stop a runaway team in a hayfield at Kaysville, Davis county, Frank Barton was knocked down by one of the horses and the wagon went over him. No bones were broken and the injuries were not serious.

Three thieves entered the magnificent cathedral at Queretaro, Mexico, and carried away with them the sacred vessels and a great many ornaments of solid gold. The total value of the articles taken is about $10,000. The robbery caused much excitement.

The Payson Canning Factory, under the management of Mr. Remnow, was moved this week to the farm of Orson Hulsh, about two miles east of Payson, where there is an abundance of all kinds of fruit. The management expect to be able to run steadily until the close of the season, and to place on the market goods which will be a credit to the firm and Payson.—Payson Globe.

A dispatch from Casper, Wyo., says that M. N. Hill, a sheep shearer, has died from the effects of a dose of poison administered by one of his fellow workmen by mistake. The men were camping out. Hill was taken sick in the night and asked for a dose of salts, but the attendant got hold of a bottle containing the poison used in preparing the sheep dip.

The young son of Mr. Stayner of Pocatello, Idaho, came very nearly being drowned in the Portneuf on Saturday evening. He was playing on some wooden steps which ran into the water and in capering about he slipped and fell into the stream. He went down the stream some distance before help could reach him and as he came to the surface the second time he was rescued by his father.

Nearly two months ago a man named J. Stone was swindled out of $2000 in Oakland, Cal., by the gold brick scheme. The officers at that time were unable to locate the swindler, but they have been working steadily on the case ever since. Chief Schaffer has now received information that the swindler was known as Russell, alias Callanan, and he has secured a photograph of the man. Stone, who is now living at Penryn, Cal., identified the picture as that of the man who robbed him. The police are making a search for Russell.

The smallpox scare in Anaconda, Mont., is rapidly subsiding. In fact there has not been at any time a feeling of anxiety among the people of the city. There are seven people at the pesthouse, but several of them are convalescent. Two houses in town are under quarantine. No new cases have developed in the past two days and the patients who are suffering have an extremely mild type of the scourge. The reports sent out about an intention to quarantine the town are false and the business of the place is not disturbed.

There seems to be a diversity of opinion among physicians as to whether Mrs. Arrieta is in danger from the bite received on the cheek by the little child in the last stages of rabies, says the Phoenix Republican. Some claim the malady is transmissible only from animals of the canine or feline tribes, while others think the danger, though not so great from human beings or herbivorous animals, is nevertheless great, and every restraining precaution should be placed around the unfortunate mother who endangered her own life in her efforts to save that of her child.

A board composed of seven officers of the pension department from Washington is in session at Albuquerque, N. M., and making a systematic examination of all persons drawing pensions on account of service in New Mexico regiments. The muster rolls of the regiments raised here were stolen just after the war and have never since been in the possession of the territory. The records have always been in a very disorderly condition, and as a consequence the facilities for the commission of frauds in the pension business have been greatly enlarged. There are over 1800 cases to be investigated and the board is disposing of about twenty a day.

Salt water for sprinkling streets has been tried in Alameda, Cal., for some time and seems to work well. The dust is kept down with much less water. An experimental plant was erected at the city's electrical works, where power to pump was supplied by the engines that drive the dynamos. All the streets and avenues within easy reach have been sprinkled, with the best apparent results. It is claimed by some that dust from streets sprinkled with salt water will prove very injurious to lawns and shrubbery as well as to paint and varnish of carriages. This fact as yet has not at all to bother out. A much more extensive salt-water plant for street sprinkling is being put in at the west. The water will be pumped by an electric motor at the Terrace baths.

An army of crickets of the genus gryllus have invaded the vicinity of Lost Cabin, Wyo., and are devastating the country of all vegetation. The crickets cover a strip of country about twelve to fifteen miles wide and are traveling in a southeast direction at the rate of three miles a day. The army struck the ranch of Enoch Corbell about 10 o'clock in the forenoon of July 10th and in less than four hours had eaten up his potato crop and before night his alfalfa and oats had the appearance of being ripe and ready for harvest. The crickets are jet black and about one inch long and are remarkable for the fact that they are about one size. It is supposed that they hatched in the Big Horn mountains, and, taking advantage of the strong northwest winds that have prevailed in that section of country of late, are traveling southeast. At the rate they are now traveling they will pass Casper about August 1st and be in Western Nebraska about rafting our time. The army is about three-quarters of a mile wide. The chirping of the immense horde can be heard for miles.

During a severe thunder storm which prevailed at Byers, Colo., on Friday afternoon Miss Nellie Duncan was sitting at a sewing machine close to the open window when suddenly there was a vivid flash of lightning, followed immediately by a loud crash, and the room she was in was entered by the electric fluid, making a dense smoke. The young lady was thrown violently from her chair by the force of the electricity and felt a sharp pain in her left arm. At first she did not realize that she had been injured and ran to the front door to see if the house had been struck by the flash, but the next moment staggered and would have fallen if she had not been caught by her mother. On examination it was found that her left side was partly paralyzed, and a blue scar on her left arm showed where the electric fluid had struck her. Happily after an hour or so the numbness passed away, leaving her with a few sharp pains and considerable prostration of nerves as forcible reminders that she had had a remarkable escape from a violent death. At last accounts Miss Duncan was progressing favorably, but is still confined to her bed.

Lee Sing, the Chinaman who was convicted of murder in April last by a jury in Judge Dangerfield's court at San Francisco and was subsequently sentenced to be hanged on July 14th, did not mount the gallows prepared for him on Friday. His attorneys managed at the last moment to interpose a notice of appeal to the Supreme Court and Lee Sing's neck will be saved from strangulation for a good many months to come. The crime for which the condemned man was doomed to the gallows was committed on March 6th of this year. A fierce war among the various factions of highbinders was in progress at that time in Chinatown. Ah Kee, who resembled Yick Kee, a Chinese merchant hated by the murderous tongs, was shot down on St. Louis street, near Washington, by a crowd composed of five or six highbinders. The only man the police were able to capture after the murder was Lee Sing. He was arrested, and during his trial it was found that he had not a friend among all the Chinese in the city except his brother, who was working as a domestic in a private family on Taylor street. The trial lasted sixteen days, and 800 jurors had to be examined before twelve men were finally selected to pass judgment. After the decision was rendered and Lee Sing had been adjudged guilty of murder in the first degree he was, as stated, sentenced to be hanged at San Quentin on July 14th. About ten days ago Lee Sing was removed from the county jail to the state prison, and ever since that time he has been the occupant of what is known as the "death cell." Sing never for a moment rebelled against the fate he considered was awaiting him. He was a quiet and patient prisoner, apparently resigned to meet his doom. When the prison officials commenced on Friday to prepare the scaffold, stretched the ropes and adjusted the weights, Sing watched them unconcernedly from his cell.
