HORSE BREEDING.

Its Prospects in the Middle Section of the Union.

The Breeder's Gazette says:

The time has been a marked falling off in the demand for stallions of the various draft breeds during the past few years in the neighborhood of all leading breeders and breeders. Importations had to be made, and some of your good horses sacrificed for lack of substantial patronage. Times have now set at a most quickly been enough to induce them to remain a few years ago. Thousands have fallen to a low price, as a result of the wide distribution of stallion horses, good and indifferent, resulting, as the average of farmers, is not a matter for surprise, and with a the general depressing effect caused by the demonetization of silver had extended and so uncertain as to the general feeling in regard to the price of horses must be expected this season. The Gazette put out a short time since a query addressed to breeding men.

Several replied good reviews and statements in the states of Illinois, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska were quite cheerful in view of the fact of horses were generally purchased by farmers of from leaves the states and to indicate the range of market here. It is clear that sentiment has changed in a great deal in the station breeder has to do some stupendous to "pay up." Those who have been accustomed to paying a big price for a good horse are of course in a somewhat peculiar position. The man who pays a long figure for a fully equal horse of the country and whose breeding will cause some owner disposed to sell the horse rather than to allow things to a "point" simply because he could buy him cheaper elsewhere is a sentimental fool.

We know with style and quality are with exceedingly comparative prices, as are not the dowdy, frumpy ladies and their cheap finch and cartige shoes. It is the great mass of every-day thousands, financial, yearly hard and industrial horses, desirous of work and quality, such as would their patronizing those mongrel or grade cross-bred sires of no breed whatever.

If we need be allowed to compound "an Irish bull," the kind of horse need to have in order to succeed in the main. Jacks have done a big service, and in many cases, and we would rather that those who have patronized them have, generally speaking, shown more sense than those who have had good cash spent in worthless mongrel or nondescript dog horses. The jack is a pretty well one of late, and you know just about what to be expected from his services, and the mules is no means the worst selling animal of the day. From the accounts of the best, there will be a good mule. As between them and the dog the jack is to be preferred every time.

A summary of the reports in The Gazette would make the stallion fee in the states named average about $9. The price ranges all the way from $5 to $50. The reports show extremes of mixed breeding that are enough to drive one crazy. Horses in some sections have been nearly ruined by breeding draft mares to trotters. Many common farmers are attempting to get fast trotters. No one in twenty succeeds, and a flood of horses so good for anything is poured upon the community, sending the price of them down so low that it does not pay at present pay to breed a good horse in those localities.

In the midst of the confusion a few fixed conclusions can be ascertained. One is that pure bred, first class draft horses and carriage horses are always in demand, and trotters to a considerable extent, for, if one can be sure they are going to be fast. The Clydesdales, Percherons, French coach horses and trotters are the breeds most popular in the states indicated. There are also some Shires and Belgian drafts, with a fond sprinkling of Cleveslyndale. The Hackney is practically unknown. Little attempt is made to develop breeds of saddle horses.

Harvesting Wheat.

The time to harvest wheat is when the wheat grains have passed the milk state and are hard and firm. The condition of the straw is not always a good index of the condition of the grain. Farmers who judge by the straw will sometimes find that they make a mistake. An examination of a few heads of wheat will soon convince one as to whether or not the grains are firm enough for cutting, says a writer in a letter to American Cultivator, who adds that wheat ought to be cut when quite ripe, and it should be gathered within three or four days after cutting to prevent its getting very dirty. This will make quite a difference at threshing time. The dust tends to injure both grain and straw.

Wet weather is apt to make the wheat harvesting long, and sometimes it seems impossible to get the wheat in within a short time. To make this possible it is better to bind in small, loose bundles and not in large, tight ones. The grain and straw will dry quicker in this way, and very often with the good days intervening between the storms we can get the wheat dried and out of the field.

When the reaper and binder is used it is always better to let the wheat get very ripe before cutting, for the bundles are not quite tight to use machines. By letting the grain get good and ripe it can be carried from the field in a very short time, as it will not need so much drying in the sun. When the field is unevenly ripened, it is also better to wait until the field is good and ripe, but not until the grain becomes hard and dead ripe. The green portion on a rule will ripen up well enough in the stack or even in the barn and stack. The dew has very little bad effect either upon the straw or grain, and if the wheat would be right before it can be cared in early in the morning with impunity, according to the authority quoted.

In view of the new inventions and discoveries, splendid advances in civilization, climate, decency and refinement which will gradually lodge the human race and its condition in the next century, our might well be glad to live till 1893 so as to see it all.

I am so glad as one cases. Bond Ice Bond. A few months ago I had given myself up to die, and by mere chance I heard of Hiller's Geneva Mineral Water, from Geneva, New York. I called at the Water Depot in Portland, Oregon. I told the agent I had been afflicted for many years with what is called Cystitis, or inflammation of the bladder, also diabetes, that I had lost fifty pounds weight in the past year, and that I would soon pass to another sphere. I have spent thousands of dollars on doctors and medicines, and all to no avail, and was using medicine all the time for the past six years, by the time I had used five gallons of the Geneva Water I was completely well. Or, dear sir, all you that are afflicted and suffering with Urinary Troubles or Stomach Ailments of any kind, the Geneva Mineral Water will cure you. It has cured me.

Come and see me and judge for yourself. 310 Post office Block, Salt Lake City.

Mandrake Pills have a virtue as a household remedy far beyond the power of language to describe. The family can hardly be true to itself that does not keep them on hand for use in emergencies.

MANDRAKE

is the only vegetable substitute for that dangerous mineral, Mercury, and while its action as a cathartic is fully equal, it possesses none of its pernicious effects.

In Constipation, Mandrake acts upon the bowels without disposing them to subsequent costiveness.

As a family use as Mandrake on the liver, nothing so speedily cures Sick Headache, Sour Stomach and Biliousness as these
