Sports and Pastimes

Labor Day Meet, Bicycle Notes, Football Prospects, Etc., Etc.

The next event in local cycle circles will be the state championship meet at the cycle track on Labor Day, Monday, September 2nd, to which the majority of local clerks will appear, tonight there will be a monster wheel parade, when the Hot Springs railway management intend offering cheap rates for the most novel and artistically decorated wheels. As some of the boys have been working night and day for the last few days, several novel effects are promised. The procession will form and start from the Knight street at 8 p.m. and is to follow the usual first and terminal in the accompanying scheme to leave Monday's issue. Several new men will participate in the days sport, prominent among the strangers being the M. S. Ten-mile bicycle which arrived in town on Wednesday last and have been actively training on the track ever since. Salt and Paul especially will doubtly be heard from on the day of the race. The following is the official program:

[illegible]

Already in the East there is a great rivalry amongst the devotees of "the noble game" and several college football teams have got down to the pebbledashes are starting into their annual course of rigorous training. Within the next few days there will be a similar spectacle amongst local trackers, by the time the fall term is well under way, the athletic institution of Salt Lake City, combined with the Fort, will be contending strenuously and while trade up once and for all the "humpy" supremacy Carolinas" of Slade, Allen and Taylor, Wesley Pedroy, Mattigrew and Taylor on the shelf for repairs for some.

It is rumored that the Y. M. C. A. will not put such a strong team into the field this year as last. From the fact that some of the boys who were up to Butte for the memorable day when they took the ball. Five times when they took the ball. Five times when they took the game home, after due deliberation, concluded that football was not their line—they were intended for [illegible].

Football, for the benefit of the uninitiated, is a game, contrary to the idea of great many individuals that it is a cross between a threshing machine and a national caucus. To quote the High School Magazine, "it is played by the manly, muscular and tall, and by young men and boys with their eye and contiguous on the Sunset coasts," who are drawn by to tackle away and dive. The idea is to kick the whistle, and for the space of a few brief moments all is [illegible] interest the quarter back for [illegible] from the Scrum together with a quadratic equation, whereupon he leaves the ball in the pit of the stomach of the opposing centre-rush on the crown of his head; more chaos, from which emerges a nimble ball boy, who evidently has an apparition of the opponent's goal post and intends taking the ball with him beyond the defensive substitutes on the part of his opponents "on tally-ho," but he sends at their overtime playfully, tango Sarah on his back, continues in his mad career till he finally assisted into a mud puddle while the victorious eleven proceed to pick out various bruises on his anatomy upon which to restitute to the accompaniment of dulcimers, to brine and the elevation of the mortal. With varying fortune and circumstance calls, the game proceeds until the umpire is observed to leave the campus burned via the fence followed by a mounted on a mountain of [illegible] and bric-a-brac. The game is declared off. The resultants make home extremely, with wet feet and bruise thrusts to talk knowingly of swerving circles, flying wedges and tangle triangles.

Unmistakably the interest in football is growing in Utah and this season the football crank will be able to write home to his mother that the distinctive details of the rival Chicago gridiron, where a man carries his life in his hand who played the game those gritty Indian-battled individuals for Spaniards, or West Point, a battalion of cadets against the elements, dare to fly off at a tangent and leave the water pump to exemplify cool [illegible] against the concentration [illegible] on the east side of the ground. However, not noting gave up the good grounds which have been filled up to accommodate the tangle wrangles. The University Athletic association have come to a great deal of trouble and expense in endeavoring certain the University campus with a high fence, erecting bleachers and leasing the ground on which are to be held other sports besides football. The U. A. A. intended, at present are a [illegible] a house ship of sunflowers along the grounds. Then again the Beck's Cycle Track Co. failed to pay all matches, and have been sued at the springs. However, Cadets Park management say they have as good a campus as anywhere and intend to put in a bid for the club [illegible].

A monthly magazine devotes several pages to an article on "What to Avoid in Cycling." Most of us occasionally want to avoid the special cop, the deadly trolley, Eve in a buggy, citizens' bear traffic, and the man who persists in making a run for it across the street when he sees a wheelman coming.

Up To Date Hall, the crack class of [illegible], has succeeded in securing, this season, 19 firsts, 8 seconds and twenty-three prizes averaging $2,712.

A delegation of K. of P. Bicycle Club will leave for Denver on Wednesday evening, 4 p.m. The start will be from [illegible] on Richards street, [illegible] Knights will [illegible] by [illegible].

Several of the leading Elks of Salt Lake are talking that the physique running for [illegible] [illegible] of a wheelman who is [illegible] made by Ingalls & Shoaff, Denver City, that Dale is more gay [illegible] [illegible] Hay etc. He says that [illegible] read via the [illegible].

[illegible] will not participate in Monday's race, from the fact that he is still in Yellowstone Park in company with the other bicycle enthusiasts, Caldwell and Judd. From late accounts the above trio are having great time and lapping in an occasional slice of fish and some stories for future reminiscences.

Despite the big entourage that the Booth recital on Friday, the patrons of the Saturday afternoon swimming [illegible] and around the city keeps up. It goes as though all the enthusiasts prefer the tepid fresh water in which to skylark around, to the alkaline waters of the Lake which once permitted a little dingy [illegible] [illegible] Despite the finer and larger natatorium that have been built, Hawk Mavers seems to have a pull on the bathing habits of the regular patrons. There is a certain charm about Mavers that every week who fail the above of an hour to go diverge into an equable and grumpable act, rarely seen outside of a circus in the secondhand in the unfamiliar.

[illegible]

How it is in a town of this size and with the natural facilities we have that there is no swimming club or cycle club, is a mystery. It only needs someone to start the ball rolling and within a week there would be a club 100 strong, who could get a good rate by meeting one of the three baths their headquarters. A properly conducted aquatic meet is an interesting event, and after it had been once introduced, would appeal to the sporting public. With a rollicking game of water polo played in barrels, tilting swimming or maybe setting the greasy pole as a house boat for the children, a little money could be raised for charity if nothing else. Without doubt swimming is the most healthy of pastimes and for the benefit of the cycle crank, swimming calls into play simultaneously the same muscles as cycling does, leaves no utility of it from their point of view.

The following are culled from the Detroiter Sportsman.

The league craze has already entered the realm of song, and several authors and composers have been recently coaxing too much in the melodious hum of the wheel. The songs already published are: "Will You Love Me?" "Mamie, My Bicycle Girl," "I Love You, Bicycle, Bicycle and All," and a march entitled "On the Wheel."

An international cycling meeting was held at Gratup, Denmark, August 8. Among the competitors was A. J. Watson, the English mile and five mile champion, who took part in the five mile race. This resulted as follows: Edward Scarrodar, Copenhagen, first; Christian Ingemann Petersen, Copenhagen, second; Wilhelm Henry, Germania, third; A. J. Watson, England, fourth.

Never were comparisons more "odious" than in comparing the French and American twenty-four hour records. There is a great difference between 453 and 523 miles, but the Americans who are beginning to take an interest in such sport are making a very creditable showing. Previous to the feat of Rivierre, the record was held by Rowe, 437 miles. A fine consideration shows that the American record was taken by more than 50 miles. At this rate and considering the up to a very few years the Americans were the long distance riders, some our amateurs are so sanguine to believe that our men will be able to take charge of America's end and carry it through successfully. With such men as Gimm, Hansen, Rowe and the others now riding now of that work it is not impossible that deep encroachments on the French record's cancer time will be made.

Some of the racing men were seated in the hotel piazza, when Morgan was asked how he came to take a wager. "Well, my chief reason had some three shoestrings, high wooden wheels, and I could stand on the saddle without [illegible]." he replied. "I planned to get my father who was willing to purchase one of the [illegible] [illegible] for Mike Mouser for a triple Cup race. On the way to the coast the [illegible] family was taken south with [illegible], and my father proposed that if I would leave the money in [illegible] and we would buy me a wheel. He kept his promise, and purchased a safety, being unwilling to see [illegible] a high wheel, much to my sorrow. I won my first race on a Kenton, pacing behind Mouser, beating a "gold" medal worth probably $5, but which is now one of my most prized trophies. After I got to riding the rest of the family caught the cycling fever and now my younger brother and two sisters are enthusiasts. My younger sister has already won a number of races."

AN OPINION GIVEN.

Recently Mr. J. D. Thomas, of North Dakota, visited the Shenandoah Valley, Virginia, and after carefully examining the country located in Winchester, he writes to Mr. V. Hinkle, Land and Immigration Agent, Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, Baltimore, Maryland, as follows: "I have been in nearly every state and territory of the United States, and am frank to say opinion that the valley surpasses all other sections in the Union. The lands are low in price, and produce profitable crops. I thank you for directing me here, and advise those seeking pleasant and profitable homes to locate in this country."
