SEEKING A PARDON.

Two Convicts in Utah Penitentiary Petition the Governor.

THE ONE IN VAN VOLKENBURGH.

A Mother Intercedes on Behalf of Her Son.—The Prisoners Promise to Reform.—A Deep Sigh for Liberty.

R. R. Van Volkenburgh, who in February last was sentenced in the Third District Court to one year's imprisonment in the penitentiary for forging the name of P. H. Lannan to a bank check, has sent a letter to Governor Thomas petitioning for a pardon. It is dated from the penitentiary October 8th.

The convict says that having already served about eight months, he thinks he has been sufficiently punished for his crime. "My idea of the law is," he writes, "it is to confine a man to cure him of committing more crimes, or to keep him from the public where he will not impose upon law-abiding citizens. I will say for myself that I am certain I have had enough of prison life to satisfy me. I have been a practical printer by trade and have been all my life, and was working upon the Salt Lake Tribune when I was arrested, having warned there several months. I make this prayer for release now for the reason that the crime was committed while intoxicated, and I think I have been cured of that habit; that I am not an habitual criminal; that my health has suffered during my confinement and is very poor, and that I would like to have time to leave the city, and secure work before winter sets in so my term expires December 27th, in the middle of the winter." The convict goes on to state that he has neither money nor friends in the west, or he would present a petition with the usual form. He trusts the governor can "conscientiously" act upon his case favorably at an early date.

WANTS TO BREATHE "GOD'S FREE AIR" AGAIN.

Governor Thomas has also received an application for pardon from Joseph May. The convict was sentenced in the First District Court on September 26th, 1892, to five and a half years in the penitentiary, for robbery committed on the D. G. W. R. R. on August 6th, of that year. After serving part of the time, he succeeded in securing a pardon from Mr. Vanderbilt, the then acting warden, made from a "trusty," he was then being sent to drive a team. While employed with three other "trusties" hauling hay and dirt from the prison yard the three other men escaped. "I was blamed for their escape," writes May, "and was only pardoned for wearing a ball and chain for over two months, but all my good time earned by the strictest compliance with all rules was taken. At that time I had served over five months good time." He states that since then he has never broken a rule, and that his intention is and has been to secure his release as soon as the law will allow, that he might "be enabled to once again breathe God's free air and by his help become an honorable member of society." He prays that the governor will notice in his case that he has been sorrowing.

A pathetic letter from the convict's mother to the governor accompanies the petition. It is written from Chicago, Ills., August 29th, and says she is "almost distracted" and needs only the pardon of her son Joseph. She has five children dependent upon her for support.

Seventh Quorum of Elders.

At the regular semi-monthly meeting of the Seventh quorum of Elders, held in the Twenty-second ward meeting house, Salt Lake city, last (Friday) night, Brother Isaac Brother Ashton Winter was unanimously sustained as second counselor to President Joseph H. Mallows, and was set apart to act in the capacity under the hands of President Aaron M. Clawson, assisted by Counselor Joseph E. Taylor.

The appointment of Brother Winter was occasioned by the removal of Brother Samuel R. Bowen, formerly second counselor, from the city.

MERCHANTS' TICKETS.

Revision of Ordinances by the City Council.—Is it Compulsory.—Concealed Weapons.

Two hours and a half were spent by the city fathers last night in continuing the work of revising ordinances. President Lorenzo Snow occupied the chair. There were in attendance the following councilmen: Bentley, Harry, Hales, Horn, Kelly, Simondi and Lawson.

MERCHANDISING.

The chapter relating to merchandising was again taken up. That portion which prohibited the giving away or selling of merchandise by any means of chance or lottery scheme caused considerable discussion.

Messrs. Bentley and Simondi inquired how the section affected those merchants and business men who were giving tickets with goods sold, by which the purchaser is entitled to a chance at securing a prize.

President Leatham replied that merchants who engaged in the sale of business run chances on being presented. This part of the section was allowed to stand and merchants will do well to govern themselves accordingly.

AS TO SLAUGHTERS.

Horn moved to strike out the section making it a violation of law to take the name of the Lord in vain within the municipal boundaries. He was in favor of the spirit of the ordinance, but it was a dead letter, and he didn't believe in cumbering the statute books with it.

After some little debate, his motion was voted down.

"BLUE LAWS."

The laws relating to and prohibiting selling, printing, hawking, keeping open shops, saloons, and other places business, or attending or participating in public amusements on Sabbath was taken out of the ordinance. The idea seemed to be that these fellows revived the wraith of the "Blue Laws."

CONCEALED WEAPONS.

The carrying of concealed weapons without the consent of the mayor was made punishable by a fine of $50 for each offense.

ALLOWED TO STAND.

The chapters relating to nuisances, yellow dog pell mell, were allowed to remain unchanged.

In all thirty-eight chapters have been revised by the Council. Eighteen more demand their attention.

THE GREAT BLIZZARD

More Severe in Western Wyoming than Anywhere Else.

Tale is the blizzard revised in the Rocky Mountain region.

Owing to its more exalted altitude western Wyoming generally gets a "foretwinder" first and hardest, but as in Utah always get an installment and sometimes a heavy one of whatever the meteorological humors have in dispense in the weather line.

The flurries we had here early in the week were more pronounced across the line, whereof seems the people had a pretty severe time.

The Lorraine Pioneering announces that one of the worst blizzards that we ever experienced there at this season of the year began Tuesday night and raged all next day. It was not cold, but the wind and snow made it almost impossible for people to leave the house. There was scarcely a sidewalk in town free from drifts of regular depth. Business has been stagnated and many who could not use telephones for the transaction of business and ordering home-hold supplies have allowed matters to stand or gone without the needed articles. There were not even paths about the city. Deadhead tracks were seen up and down the middle of the streets and winding around snow banks, but every man was the architect of his own course.

No school was held at either university or the public schools.

The greatest difficulty, however, was experienced among the railroad. The snow, being wet, did not drift badly, but it broke the wires down. They fell early this morning at Granite Canon and were down from there to Hillsdale on the Nebraska division. This checked the mail entirely, although some trains were handled by the officers and crews from around Cheyenne Northern Pacific by way of Minnesota and Helena, while others were required around over the Denver and Rio Grande. There was no serious wreck, but in some places a mile at a stretch, no effort was made to move any trains except passenger. Trains were held at Cheyenne, at Laramie and at Rawlins. The telegraph line to the west worked all right, but trains were not moved. Business has therefore been at a perfect standstill.

The storm has been quite general, but has been severe along the Union Pacific only from Wyoming. Sixty miles west of there, and about fifty miles east of Cheyenne, Laramie seems to be about the center of the storm area. West of Wyoming the snow is melting about as fast as it falls, while on the east side of the hill the snow is not so heavy for the wind so said. The severity of the storm is centered into an area of 75 miles square, although it has been storming throughout the entire state.

No. 1 and the fast mail were both over a hour late on the days named. Engine 1435, which brought the mail over from Cheyenne, stuck in the snow in the yards at Laramie last morning and had to be shoveled out, several others were also off the track during the day.

It was expected that thirty-three carloads of cattle would be loaded here that day, but the storm made it impossible to do so. Stock Herds and the shipping point for 250 head of cattle on the plains just west of the city the night before, holding them in load the next morning, which a hundred head of sheep belonging to the Swift outfit were in other not on the plains, expecting to get in and load. They had a terrible experience with the cattle during the night, and the animals could not be prevented from drifting and scattering. They will probably not be able to load for several days.

A crew was started out from Cheyenne Wednesday morning to put up the telegraph line.

The oldest residents cannot remember a worse storm at this season of the year, although there were been many hard ones during the colder weather. The railroad company has not been obliged to use snow plows. The cuts and gradeson the road have been given such careful attention during recent years that it would take an unusually heavy drifting snow to block the road.

School children and several ladies were down in the snow about the city during the day and in one or two instances it is said they would have perished had help not been near. Off the main thoroughfares the snow was white deep in many places. The drifts could not be seen on account of the storm until one plunged into them.
