OGDEN.

Suit on Promissory Note.—Cut with a Hatchet.—Runaway.—The Bear River Canal Case.

Correspondence of the NEWS.

OGDEN, June 7th.—Joseph M. Jensen has brought a suit in the Fourth district court against Hans Jensen and others, to recover $500 with interest on a certain promissory note, secured by a mortgage on some lands in Box Elder county. The parties are said to be all residents of Brigham City.

At the police court yesterday H. M. Jacobs (colored) was charged with having brutally assaulted his wife. Mrs. Jacobs failed to appear in court at the hour appointed for the hearing of the case. The police, however, were equal to the occasion and swore out a complaint of "drunk and disorderly." Mr. Jacobs was required to forfeit $5.

Sandy Bell, a colored man, was placed under $150 bonds to keep the peace. He threatened to kill Clifford Browning the other day. Mr. Browning had him arrested.

The Reed hotel, it is understood, will open its doors to the public tomorrow.

Allen Wardle of Stateville met with a serious accident yesterday. He was working with another man fixing a tenon, his companion was chopping a piece of wood with a hatchet when the blade flew off, striking Wardle in the neck, inflicting a painful wound. Wardle was removed to his residence and a surgeon summoned.

A good many people are going from Ogden to Salt Lake on Thursday.

A dog fight came off this morning about 8 o'clock in the western portion of the city.

Another runaway was recorded yesterday. A team belonging to James M. Brown took fright near the depot and ran at a lively rate until they got to Washington avenue between Twenty-fifth and Twenty-sixth streets when they were intercepted by a telephone pole in the middle of the street, and brought to a sudden halt. As usual, the wonder is no one got hurt.

Nat M. Brigham, the new U. S. marshal, came up to Ogden yesterday and is still here. United States Marshal Benton came up with him.

On Saturday Judge Miner is to listen to the arguments in the Bear River canal case on the application for a restraining order preventing George L. Walker, purchaser of the system, from in any manner disposing of or encumbering the property. The amended complaint in the main case was filed in the Fourth district court yesterday afternoon. It alleges that the recent sale of the property was fraudulent and illegal and the result of a conspiracy on the part of the Jarvis-Conklin Mortgage Trust company, who hoped by this means to obtain possession of the property for their own use. George L. Walker, the complaint alleges, is a clerk in the employ of the Jarvis-Conklin people at their office in Topeka, Kansas, and is only in title to pay the price names in the sale, or any price, for the canal system. It is claimed that he was simply used as a dummy head and that in reality the purchase was made by the trustee and the party which made the sale under the foreclosure of the $100,000 deed of trust of the Jarvis-Conklin Mortgage Trust company. The history of the case in its entirety is reviewed and the allegation is again made that in the construction of the Ogden water works system the company used part of the money raised by the sale of the original issue of bonds, and that this is the reason there is not enough money to pay off all the indebtedness of the canal. The plaintiff asks that there be a marshaling of liens and that he be declared to have equitable lien upon the waterworks system, and that a receiver be appointed to take charge of the entire property including the lands deeded by the company to Jarvis and Conklin, all property held by the canal company and the Ogden waterworks. General fraud is charged as the ground for this application.

Michael Cunningham, a transient hotel porter, who has been employed for a month past at the Hotel Roberts, took his departure yesterday morning. Shortly after it was discovered at the hotel that the trunk of R. P. Ardell, an Ogden traveling man, had been broken open and four shirts stolen. Mr. Holbrook, lessee of the hotel, suspected that Cunningham was the guilty party. He went to the depot and found Michael, and he had no sooner sight of the gentleman's shirts. "Where did you get that shirt?" asked Holbrook. Michael gave no answer but started to run. He was pursued and overtaken by Holbrook and placed in the custody of an officer. He was tried before Justice Wedgwood on the charge of petit larceny, found guilty, and fined $10 and costs of prosecution. Not having the cash, he went to jail.

The Fourth of July of Norway.

The seventeenth day of May is the Norwegian Fourth of July, and the historical significance of the day may be told as follows:

As an ally of the first Napoleon, the Danish king, Fredrik VI, in 1813, was engaged in war with Russia, Sweden, England and Prussia. Napoleon's defeat at Leipsic, however, forced his Danish ally to sue for peace, and at the peace of Kiel, January 14, 1814, King Fredrik, to save himself and Denmark, gave up Norway as a boon of war to Sweden.

But this act was immediately denounced and repudiated by the Norwegians. They had become tired of their provincial relations to Denmark, but they wanted to be a separate nation, and brought to a sudden halt. As usual, the wonder is no one got hurt.

Nat M. Brigham, the new U. S. marshal, came up to Ogden yesterday and is still here. United States Marshal Benton came up with him.
