FRAGMENTS.

HOME MISSIONARY meeting tonight.

C. L. BLAZER has been bound over at Ogden, by a week the action of the grand jury, in the sum of $3,000, on a charge of alleged swindling.

Transfer messages of the Western Union office for Mrs. Mary Atho, Wilmer & Walford, A. C. Gifford, Sam Cunningham and W. W. Thomas.

The friends of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh L. Dixon deeply sympathize with them in the death of their infant child. Funeral services were held at the family residence, 229 Second West, at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

At Garfield Beach, a few weeks ago, a gentleman named Walker lost a valuable diamond stud. It has been found by Engineer Gerald Shearer, who rides one of the trains between here and Garfield. Mr. Shearer received the stud as the event, who presented him with a $5 check.

JOHN J. SULLIVAN was badly injured at Ogden last June, by falling through an elevator shaft in the Grand Opera House block. He has now brought suit against Joseph Clark, Morgan Clark, Thomas H. Dodge, owners, and Samuel T. Whitaker, manager of the building to recover $15,000 damages.

CLERK BOLTON

Of Utah County Wants Prosecuting Attorney Camp's Commission Revoked.

Governor Thomas has received the following:

COUNTY CLERK'S OFFICE,
ASHLEY, UINTAH CO., UTAH,
July 20, 1892.

Hon. Arthur L. Thomas, Governor of Utah Territory.

SIR.—I am directed by the county court of this county to request you to revoke the commission of Richard C. Camp, the present prosecuting attorney for Utah county. H. C. Camp has refused to attend to the duties of his office, he has failed to attend the meetings of the county court, and this deep dissatisfaction with the conduct of the county attorney's legal advice on matters pertaining to county business, in fact, he has worked against the interests of this county on all occasions. The county court, acting upon a position of some of the best citizens of this county, has requested Mr. Camp's resignation, but he refuses to resign and says he is going to hold his office until the next general election. Mr. R. C. Camp was appointed to his office on September 8, 1891, vice William Austin, resigned.

Very respectfully,
BYRON O. BOLTON, County Clerk.

THE SECRET OUT.

The City Crematory Site Selected.—It is Located on Sixth North, Near the Warm Springs.

As the City Council adjourned last night Councilman Lawson asked the president to call the meeting to order again long enough for him to ask a question. His request was granted. He wanted to know if the rumor were true that the special committee recently appointed had selected a site for the building of a city crematory and if it was located near the Warm Springs. There had been a good deal of secrecy about the matter. Reasonable precautions were all right, but if the site referred to had been selected he thought work should be stopped and at once. The Warm Springs were one of the great attractions of the city. An hotel would soon be erected there and the building of a large hospital was already under way. It should require but little argument to convince any reasonable person that the establishment of a crematory at the point was impolitic.

Beardsley—At a meeting of the council not long ago, the sanitary committee, health committee or some mayor we appointed, with power to act, in reference to the selection of a site on which to build a crematory. We decided on a location north of the Warm Springs and south of the old Pacific smelter in a little nook at the foot of the mountain. It is above the county road, and I believe, all things considered, the proper place.

Ewing—It is on the city's own ground and a road can be built to it at a small expense.

Moses—I would like to know whether building has commenced yet?

Beardsley—No; but two carloads of material are now on the way, and it is the intention of the company to begin work at once.

Morgan—I move that the committee be not permitted to go on with this work until the Council says so.

Beardsley—That motion cannot carry until the power which has been vested upon the committee has been revoked.

Harris—I consider the location a good one and think that the work should be allowed to proceed.

Hardy—I am strongly opposed to the proposition to build a crematory near the Warm Spring. Here is our city sanitarium. It is a resort to which large numbers of invalids will go in search of the health-giving waters and wounded will be carried to the hospital being built there. They need fresh air. In case the plant should prove inadequate to the demands of the city, the atmosphere in that locality will be poisoned with the fumes arising from dead and decaying animals. I realize that the task in selecting a site is a difficult one. Objections will be raised wherever it is put, but I do not think it should be located near the Warm Springs.

Lawson—The majority of our citizens reside immediately south of the site named and as a natural result the great bulk of our garbage, dead animals and so forth, will have to be hauled through the main streets of our city—Centre street or some other thoroughfare near it. I have talked with the health officers, the city engineer, and a large number of prominent citizens and they all agree that the site is not a proper one.

There was more discussion of a similar kind but nothing definite was arrived at, and the probabilities are that the site chosen will be retained unless the city is solicited.

THE UTAH COMMISSION

Appoint Deputy Registrars for Several Counties.

MOST OF THEM ARE "LIBERAL" REPUBLICANS.

General McClernand Files a Vigorous Protest Against Such a Procedure.

The Utah Commission held its first formal meeting yesterday afternoon. The following members were in attendance: General McClernand, (Dem.) and Messrs. Godfrey, Saunders and Robertson (Rep.) A clash occurred between the members as to the political status of the deputy registrars to be appointed, whereupon Gen. McClernand introduced the following preamble and resolution bearing upon the appointment of such officers:

Whereas, The Constitution of the United States provides that no religious test shall ever be required as a qualification to any office or public trust under the United States; and

And whereas, Congress has in unison with the fundamental principle thus proclaimed declared that the question of religious belief should not be a factor in the formation of Utah Territory and in the conferring of any office or emolument of any kind, whether civil or political party;

And whereas, Congress has, in obedience to the premises, affirmed and enjoined from disqualifying any person to vote or hold office in said Territory simply on account of his membership in any church or political party;

And whereas, the law still further, in order to insure secret fairness and impartiality in respect to the elections in said Territory, enjoined that the judges of elections in said Territory shall be chosen from different political parties therein, yet has also provided for a board of five persons (the Utah Commission) of different political parties, and required the same to appoint proper persons for the purpose of registering the voters and conducting the elections in said Territory and of canvassing the returns of such elections and of issuing certificates or other evidence of election to the proper person appearing to be elected;

And whereas, consequently, the exclusion of any person so disqualified to vote or hold office on the ground of his mere opinions, or on the ground of his membership in any church or any political party, would be a gross usurpation of authority, subversive of the constitution and the law, of a sheltered right of the citizen therefrom;

Resolved, That the Utah Commission, in appointing proper persons to examine the lists of voters, and to act as judges of elections in said Territory, shall appoint such persons, as near as may be, in fair accordance with numbers, from the different recognized political parties in the Territory, and relatively to the comparative numerical strength of each party.

Commissioner Robertson offered as a substitute:

Resolved, That in the selection of registration officers this commission will use proper means to secure only men of good character and proper and suitable persons for the duty to be performed, without inquiring as to the religious or sectarian views of such persons, but only as to their qualifications and present political affiliations.

This was adopted by the following vote:

Ayes—Godfrey, Saunders, Robertson.

Nay—McClernand.

Commissioner McClernand moved to amend the substitute as follows:

Provided, That the political affiliation of any person shall not be in itself a cause for excluding him from appointment as a registrar or election officer.

And provided further, That the commission will, in making such appointments, act fairly and equitably in respect to the different political parties in the territory.

Rejected by the following vote: Ayes, McClernand; nays, Godfrey, Saunders and Robertson.

BLAZER HELD

In $2,000 Bonds to Await the Action of the Grand Jury.

The Blazer conspiracy case was called yesterday afternoon in the Fourth District court before Judge Miner.

J. H. Stallings, the released codefendant with Blazer, was first placed upon the stand by his cross-examination. Witness stated that his acquaintance with Blazer, in a business way, began in May, 1892, when he purchased two cars of timber from him. Stallings received the first certificates of deposit from Blazer at the time the Farmers & Mechanics' bank threw open its doors. He first met Moulton in Blazer's office about June 1st. At one time negotiations were pending for the incorporation of a lumber and mining company to operate several saw and shingle mills in Oregon and Washington, of which Blazer, Hoffner, the witness and several others were to be the chief incorporators. When asked why the scheme was allowed to fall through, Stallings stated that he made the discovery that the numerous shingle mills which Blazer talked of putting into the company existed on paper only. In regard to the mortgaged property in question, the witness did not know whether the land now carries a mortgage of $200 or $400. Considerable time was consumed by the defense going into details of the various transactions between Blazer and Stallings. But few additional facts were elicited.

Deputy Marshal St. John was for the second time recalled and identified two thousand dollar notes drawn by the Wasatch Lumber company to C. L. Blazer and one five thousand dollar one made by George E. Davis, president of the Farmers' and Mechanics' bank, which by him stuffed away in a back pigeon hole at the defunct bank's vault.

At this juncture the prosecution rested and Mr. Hoyt moved that all testimony given in the case be stricken out as not in its own support, on the ground that no evidence of conspiracy had been shown. In support of this motion Mr. Hoyt argued that the only thing that he had shown was that Blazer had made strenuous efforts to pay the money his friends when in reality he was anything but entitled to one. No testimony had been elicited, he said, which tended to show that the Farmers' & Mechanics' bank had been robbed by Blazer and his associates and was guilty of defrauding the public.

Mr. Allison followed with a telling argument in which he outlined the theory of the defense. He called the attention of the court to the "conspiracy" and reviewed the testimony introduced in the case.

The motion to strike out the evidence was then argued by counsel.

It was nearly 5 o'clock before the case was submitted to the court. The judge reviewed the testimony and ordered a motion holding the defendant to await the action of the grand jury on the charge of conspiracy and attempts to defraud.

After a lengthy discussion the bonds were fixed at $2,000.

Inasmuch as Blazer's bondsmen in the former case, where he was held to await the action of the grand jury on a charge of forging notes to the name of Hanson & Company, of San Francisco, had given him no. Mr. Allison moved that he be given into the custody of the United States marshal. This followed some lively arguments, Mr. Hoyt contending that the defendant, when charged with a misdemeanor, pending the sitting of the grand jury, should be placed in the care of the sheriff. The objection was overruled and Blazer will languish in the penitentiary unless he furnishes bonds.

THE HARVEY DIVORCE SUIT.

Further Evidence As to The Wife's Penchant For Liquor.

DEFENDANT ON THE WITNESS STAND.

She Says That Her Husband Placed Temptation in Her Way.

The peculiar divorce suit of Harvey vs. Harvey, which began in Judge Anderson's court yesterday, was resumed this morning. It is the petition of the husband, a local saloon-keeper, on the ground of his wife's habitual drunkenness.

Among the witnesses called for the plaintiff today was Alexander Grant, who was formerly in Mr. Harvey's employ. He had seen defendant drunk on various occasions, and had heard her reproached for her husband when under the influence of liquor. She had also chased him around the premises, and on one occasion witness attracted her attention to something she while Harvey slipped out and got away. She used to drink whisky, gin and beer. The beer was kept in the cellar, covered over with racks, the spirits in bottles, but these "did not last very long." Witness was accustomed to take the liquor to the house for Mrs. Harvey (against her husband's orders), because he was afraid that unless he did so she might get him out of his job.

Bailiff George Walton testified to having assisted the unfortunate house when he had come across her in the street under the influence of drink. Wm. Davis, a bartender at the "Yellow Front" saloon, on West First South street, stated that he had seen Mrs. Harvey drinking there; and William Miller testified to her having on occasion sent to the saloon at which he tends bar, and drank whisky. The petitioner was recalled and stated, in reply to the value of the property which he held and as to certain mining stock. Then the plaintiff's side rested.

Mrs. Harvey, the defendant, went on the witness-stand. She knew Mr. Harvey for several years before the death of her first husband (W. J. Davis), who married her early in business and furnished all the money for their partnership. Up to date day Harvey owed her for his board bill at the Delmonico, which she paid. At Mr. Davis' death she came into possession of some $9,000, and "that is why this man Harvey seized me so," said she. Witness was born in Bedfordshire, England. Her mother died when she was four years of age, but she had learned from her father and eldest sister that prior to her birth her mother had a great craving for drink, and could not obtain it. Witness did not begin to use liquor until she was sixteen years of age, and then took it for a sickness, which she described. Since reaching womanhood she had had an intense longing for drink periodically, and could not resist it do what she would. Sometimes one glass had made her drunk. All the members of her family were of a nervous temperament. One of her brothers had a longing for liquor and drank to excess until he reached the age of forty-eight, and then the craving ceased. Prior to their marriage Mr. Harvey knew that she drank heavily at times. On the night of their marriage they drank to much champagne, and the drunkard said "stick" her money. He drank more than she did, and had sent home gallons of liquor at a time. It was kept in the house with his knowledge, and he drank with her. About three months after the marriage, when he had been drinking, he wanted to blow her brains out and said he would then go and blow out his own. He had placed a pistol in her way. He compelled her to drink with him about once a week, when he had been previously indulging in drink himself.

The witness was still under examination when the Court adjourned at noon.

COURT NOTES.

The charge of criminal libel against C. C. Goodwin and Wm. Nelson, editors of the Salt Lake Tribune, was to have been investigated before Commissioner Norrell this afternoon, but to meet the convenience of the parties the case was continued until Friday next.

The legal arguments in the Amy property case were concluded before Probate Judge Shurtliff yesterday afternoon, and he took the matter under advisement.

An attorney's fee for legal services rendered in the case of Mrs. J. W. Snell vs. Salt Lake City was filed this morning by the plaintiff, by Moses, Rolapp and Talbot.

An extension of time has been granted to the case of Wm. Anderson vs. the Sabbat railway company.

GRANITE WARD CONFERENCE.

Dedication of the New Bowling House by the Solon Presidency.

On Sunday, July 24, the Presidency of the Salt Lake Stake visited the Granite Ward and held conference meeting. The visiting authorities were sustained by unanimous vote except the Presidency of the Relief Society, which was reorganized in consequence of the resignation of the former president consequent through sickness.

The new bowling house just completed was dedicated and formally opened for public worship. President A. M. Cannon officiating in dedicatory prayer.

This house is located midway between Granite and Sugar precincts and is designed to accommodate the people residing in both precincts which constitute what is known as the Granite ward. The cost of the building so between two and three thousand dollars and its seating capacity will furnish ample accommodation for all present needs.

The instructions given were varied and suited to the conditions of the people, as stated A. M. Cannon dwelt at some length upon the practicability of grape culture, especially the hardy kinds, showing how the land in the neighborhood was particularly adapted for this purpose and that grapes could be successfully cultivated without water, in proof of which he cited instances of excellent vines that had been made in different localities. He made special reference to a Sabbath patriarch two years of age that had been cultivated without water, and he further cited the prediction that "Vineyards thousand of Granite wards in the future shall be produced to this locality."

The United Brethren under the leadership of Centurion Phines of Union ward was a visitor. Music by the conference choir, every selection being exceedingly well rendered, prominent among which was the Temple Dedicatory Hymn by Mr. W. Nesbitt.

The building was filled to its utmost capacity, and the occasion was one that will be long remembered by the saints in Granite ward.
