THE DELEGATE ELECTION.

Returns are Still Coming Very Slow from the Outside Counties.

RECAPITULATION BY COUNTIES.

Smiths' Plurality will Not be Known Until the Final Count is Made.

Returns from the Delegate election are still coming in very slowly from outside counties. What Hawlins' plurality will be it will be difficult to state definitely until the final count is made, which will not be for several days yet. The Democrats still claim that Hawlins will have a plurality of 4000. The Republicans, however, state that this declaration is a wild one.

Following are the returns from the nearest counties. Those from the remoter counties will be found in the recapitulation below, so far as received:

THE HELENA "JOURNAL."

Affidavits Filed Against That Paper.

According to a dispatch from Helena, Mont., affidavits aggregating [illegible] were filed against Bennett B. Harrison's newspaper, the Helena Journal, yesterday by the following banks: The Montana National, $[illegible]; the Merchants' National, $[illegible]; the First National, $[illegible]. The company that printed the journal also contracted a large stationery store. The sheriff is in possession of the plant. It is claimed by the local manager that the paper will be issued again and only three days' issue.

THIRD DISTRICT COURT.

Short Orders by Judge Zane Today—Against Real Estate Men.

This was an altogether uneventful morning in Judge Zane's court. The first half hour was given up to the transaction of informal business, and after that time the trial of a real estate dispute ran on till the noon hour was reached. The task of selecting a jury was a tedious one, and occupied fully three-quarters of an hour. When an adjournment was taken soon after 12 o'clock, until 2 p. m., the plaintiff's side of the case was still in progress.

In the case of Mason and Co. vs. the T. J. Angell Co., leave was granted to amend the answer.

Frank Merrill vs. Mattie Merrill. In this suit for divorce a motion for leave to file an amended answer and cross-complaint was allowed.

Pierpont Manufacturing Co. vs. L. R. Orton. In this case the defendant was allowed twenty days in which to file an answer.

H. J. Miers vs. Thomas Vennard. By agreement of the parties the matter was referred, on demurrer, to Judge Anderson, as referee, to decide.

In the suit of Gertrude Van Ande vs. Fred Tilt et al., a decree of foreclosure was granted to the plaintiff.

A. G. Rust vs. A. J. Burt et al. A compromise of this case was allowed at the defendant's costs.

The People vs. R. E. Moulton. The defendant is charged with obtaining money by false pretenses, and his bail was now fixed at $[illegible].

A REAL ESTATE DISPUTE.

The first case called on for trial was that of Annie Robbins vs. B. J. Hayboult et al., in which the amount of the claim was $2000. The plaintiff was represented by Attorney E. R. Creditor; Attorneys W. H. Dickson and Waldemar Van Cott appeared for the defendants. The action was brought to recover damages in the sum named, on the ground of alleged negligence. The plaintiff's case was that she entrusted the defendants, as real estate agents, with a certain amount of money for the purpose of making a loan on her account, but that they loaned it upon insufficient security, whereby she sustained a considerable loss.

NEARING THE END.

The grand jury has another session today. Assistant District Attorney Stephens thinks that by the end of the present week they will have got through their work and be ready to present their final report.

IN POLICE CIRCLES.

Cases Disposed of by Justice Gee Today.

John Brown, the young thief who tapped the money till of a Commercial street restaurant a few nights ago, was sentenced to twenty-five days' imprisonment in the city hall, by Justice Gee, this forenoon.

The inebriate and peace disturbing case against John Murphy was continued until this afternoon.

Charles Carpenter left $10 for his appearance in answer to the double charge of getting drunk and disturbing the peace.

Nine inebriates were disposed of by paying the usual $5 fine.

Double Bereavement.

Sympathy is extended by the numerous friends of Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. James, of the Eighteenth ward, in the double bereavement caused by the death of two of their children from that dreaded disease diphtheria. Yesterday they were called up to perform the sad task of burying, in the city cemetery, Frederick Joseph, their oldest son, a bright and promising boy of eight years, who died on Tuesday.

One week ago today they laid away the mortal remains of Lawrence Spencer, a lovable child of two years, whose spirit passed into the great beyond on the day previous. Brief but appropriate services were held at the grave on each occasion. The grief of the parents is understood and their terrible affliction has made them almost irremediable. Their loss is a severe one but the NEWS trusts that they will be able to obtain consolation from that source from which alone a perfect feeling of calm and resignation to the decree of Providence in such cases can come.

A DREAM OF WEALTH.

An Extraordinary Incident in the History of Two Brothers.

A special correspondent of the San Francisco Chronicle writing from Phoenix, Arizona, under date November 6th, says: One of the most peculiar freaks of psychological phenomena ever brought to light has just culminated in this county, and it will not only be of interest to the scientists who study the relations of the mind but to the curious as well. In 1859 two brothers, A. B. and Luther Elliott, lived in Nemaha county, Kas. Luther chose the part of the wanderer and came west, presumably to Colorado, and nothing more was heard of him except vague rumors that he had been killed by Indians. Then the war came and A. B. Elliott served four years in the Union army, coming out in fair completely broken in health. He returned to Kansas and settled down on his farm, near Republic, where he remained about twenty years. He accepted a position as traveling salesman for a large house in Chicago, and on getting any letters from his brother, regarded him as dead. In 1889 he was visited by the breaking out of an old wound and was confined to his room for many weeks. During that time he dreamed that his brother was alive and in Prescott, A. T. It seemed real that they were together in the mountains, and in passing down a canyon they discovered a fabulously rich gold mine a few miles from an old abandoned adobe once owned by Luther. The dream made little impression on him, but the next night it was repeated and when the trees and outlines of the mountains were perfectly impressed on his mind. He did not know the possibility of the mines being there, for the state of age had severed out of his memory, and he did not know quartz from rock, but he thought he would write some inquiry about his brother, which he did.

A letter directed to the postmaster at Prescott brought the information that his brother was an old resident, but was then out in the mines. A correspondence began between the two brothers, and during its course the part of the dream relating to the mine was divulged. Being in that vicinity one day Luther Elliott looked for the mine, but found nothing. The matter passed along until a month ago, when the Kansas brother concluded to visit his relative in Arizona, and at the same time to look at the country. He still had an inclination to look for the mine, but was ashamed to own it. His brother met him in Prescott, and after staying a few days there they came to the mountains and visited the old abandoned mine. When they approached it the Kansas man recognized the country as the one he had seen in his dreams, and told even how the shaft was situated with regard to the mountains and canyons with such accuracy that his brother was filled with astonishment, but he was an old prospector and a belief in dreams was not one of his superstitions. When they arrived at the spot Mr. Elliott said it seemed to him that he had often been there before, and after looking over the ground they took a pick and walked westward toward the point indicated by the dream. In crossing the canyon the prospector stumbled on a very rich ledge and exclaimed exclaimed that they had found the mine. The brother answered that it might be this, but the mine they were in search of was richer. Climbing up the other side of the gulch they came to the spot where the dreams had located the lode, but there was nothing in sight but half-decomposed granite. The perfect resemblance of the land marks had so excited their hope that they were much disappointed, and they stood for some time talking the matter over. While so standing the one with the pick began picking on the shelving rock, and in a small piece of it fell down, exposing a blind ledge of white quartz resplendent with free gold. They worked into the mass, finding it to be about thirty inches in width and widening as it went down at an angle of forty-five degrees. The prospector is still there, afraid to leave the mine for fear of claim-jumpers, but his brother brought a rack of the samples to Phoenix and the assays go $200 in $19 to the ounce gold. Samples have also been sent to the mint in San Francisco for testing. When Mr. Elliott was seen by the Chronicle reporter he did not seem disposed to talk about the mine, saying that they wished to keep its existence quiet, and had done so for two weeks, but finding that missing men from that region had already told it he narrated the story as given above. Mr. Elliott is a respectable farmer in his home state, and before September had never seen an ounce of gold ore, so he counts himself as one of the creatures on whom Fortune has smiled. The story of the dream was published in 1889 by the Globe Democrat and several scientific journals in the East as illustrating the fact that former knowledge and information had nothing to do with the substance of dreams.

PROBATE COURT.

Matters Which Came Under Judge Barrick's Notice this Morning.

Estate of Nils Peterson, deceased. Hearing in contest on final account. Account allowed except item of charge against Andrew P. Peterson for $5, which was ordered stricken out.

Utah's New Delegate.

The newly elected Delegate to Congress, Mr. J. E. Rawlins, made his appearance in the Third District Court room this morning for the first time since the actual commencement of the political campaign. He was very warmly received by his brethren at the bar, several of whom, including W. H. Dickson, arose and grasped him by the hand in a congratulatory sort of way. Mr. Rawlins himself looked the very picture of happiness and contentment.

The "Columbia."

Articles of incorporation of the Columbia Mining and Milling company were filed this morning with County Clerk Allen, the incorporators and the number of shares taken by each being: F. Journey of Utah's Early Settlers Passes to the Great Beyond.

Two little girls had evening set fire to a haystack on the property of Cousins Stephens, near the corner of Adams avenue and Thirteenth street. Mr. T. E. Browning and his father initiately happened to be passing, and after considerable difficulty managed to extinguish the embryo conflagration, thereby saving a very valuable barn and shed which stand near the stack of hay.

We have the painful duty to record the death of a noble and worthy man, who was one of the early settlers of Utah, Nels Thomsen. He was a man whose virtues will long survive him in the memory of a wide circle of friends and acquaintances. He was baptized into the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in 1851, at Copenhagen, Denmark. He emigrated in 1852, sailing in the ship Westmoreland, for America. He crossed the plains in a handcart company, to Nauvoo, where he was compelled to stay on account of sickness. He was called to preside over a branch of the Church in Omaha, where he labored faithfully for three years. He then removed to Genoa, where he built a home for his family, but soon after the Indians became troublesome and he and his family were driven back to Omaha, where they spent the winter. The following spring he came to Utah and settled in Plain City, Weber county, where he resided about three years. In company with his family he then moved to Gunnison, Sevier county, where he lived up to the great misfortune of losing his wife, who was killed by the roof of the cellar falling on her. He removed from Gunnison to Round valley and from there to Richfield, in the course of time he chose another helpmate, who proved a faithful wife to him during the remainder of his days. He spent about two years in assisting in the building of the St
