

DESERET EVENING NEWS
THE SEMI-WEEKLY NEWS

THE GREAT COUNTRY PAPER OF THE WEST

Is Issued Mondays and Thursdays and contains all the cream of the Daily and Saturday News.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

Gov. Cutler is in Logan today, where he will deliver an address to the graduates of the Agricultural college.

The annual piano recital by the pupils of Howard Hall will be given this evening in the First Congregational church.

The annual commencement exercises of Westminster college will be held this evening at 8 o'clock in the college chapel, corner of Eleventh East and Eleventh South streets.

The amount realized by the Infants Home and Day Nursery from the last Superbazaar readings was considerably less than the receipts expected, and the management is correspondingly pleased.

Gov. Cutler and staff have received an invitation from Weber Lodge No. 6, F. A. & M., to attend the laying of the corner stone of the new Masonic temple at Ogden on next Sunday. The invitation will probably be accepted.

J. E. Black, the well known honey man, has just shipped 1,000 pounds of strained Utah honey to the Portland fair for exhibition. Mr. Black expects to carry off the grand prize, and show California growers how to make honey.

The promotion of Fred Price to be state statistician is looked for when Dr. DeMolay retires to become registrar of the University at Vernal, and L. P. Palmer of the county engineer's office is expected to succeed Mr. Price as deputy state statistician.

Jacob Coleman, county clerk of Juab county, is in Salt Lake today on official business connected with his office. Mr. Coleman intends to introduce the local system of bookkeeping used in his office to the state auditor, and the management is corresponding pleased.

Moses Newton of Holyoke, Mass., one of the best known paper manufacturers of the Old Bay state, is at the Kenyon, after a trip to the coast. Mr. Newton remarked this morning that Uncle Sam had a great farm out west, and this is about as promising a land as he ever saw.

The state board of health has sent out plans providing for the return of vital statistics covering the formal notification to the registrars of the various counties, acceptance of legal registering, official oath of registrar, acceptance of deputy registrar and the latter's official oath.

The citizens of Logan have filed an application with the adjutant general for permission to organize a company of the national guard at that place. The citizens of Bountiful are also taking a more active interest in military matters, and E company is being recruited up to its full strength.

Thomas H. Benton, former state treasurer of Nebraska, and brother of Col. J. A. Benton of this city, arrived here yesterday from Lincoln, Neb., en route to Los Angeles. He gave the Salt Lake Register the following sketches of the Glen-College school at Los Angeles, where his daughter is to graduate.

Captain J. T. Axton of the Eighteenth infantry, is in town from Fort Leavenworth, to arrange for removing his family from this city to his new post of duty. The captain's many friends are glad to see him back, and hope that he will be able to find his way home several times during the year. His rheumatism has almost disappeared.

The Elks are laying themselves out for a grand celebration on Purple day, July 27, that shall overshadow the famous McGinty club of El Paso, Texas, in the heyday of its glory. The day's races at the Agricultural fair grounds will be part of the show, and afterwards comes a trip to the lake, with special features there. Ten new Elks will be taken into the corral next Wednesday night.

Sunday afternoon a large rattlesnake was found on the back porch of the residence of Alma Harper at 67 Seventh street. Needless to say the reptile was dispatched to the nether regions at once, as Mr. Harper had no immediate use for it in a rat's shape. Where it came from is not known, but it very likely it is more than likely that it left its happy home in the canyon for a resting place closer in.

Manager Harps of the Commercial club called attention to the fact that every member of the Commercial club is a member, ex-officio of the reception committee in connection with the New Mexico visitation. By next Monday morning, however, he had received word from the committee for an immediate sent to members by mail. Special reception committees, a Bingham committee, a LaGrone committee and Lucin cut-off committee will be appointed tomorrow.

The annual field day of Rowland Hall was held yesterday afternoon, and drills were given by the girls from the veranda, which was built out into a stage. The spectators included a drill by the school girls, including a fancy nook, a wail drill by the freshman class and dumbbell exhibition. This was followed by a hoop drill and Mexican polka, and then a Highland fling and ensemble singing. Afterwards there was basket ball and tennis. Miss Margaret Pizer and Miss Isabelle Osborn took the prizes.

President Kingsbury and W. W. Price have returned home from a visit to Cedar City in attendance on the graduating exercises of the Branch Normal school down there. They were much impressed with the excellent work done there for so small a town, and the high standard which the institution is held. Mr. Bitter made special reference to the number of bright young people who are studying at the school, and the able papers presented by the graduates. Many people are making strong efforts to send their children to the Normal school and give them a good education.

Zion's Savings Bank and Trust Co. has on deposit over three and one half million dollars. If you have not an account, open one of any amount, $1 or more. Jos. F. Smith, President; George M. Cannon, Cashier.

C. S. Martin Coal Co. Rock Springs, Cumberland, Castle Gates and Clear Creek lump, nut and slack.

FREED HER SON AND MET DEATH.

Pathetic Story of the Killing of Mrs. Mary Christiansen by Her Demented Boy.

LATTER COMMITTED SUICIDE.

President Robinson Sends Particulars Of Sad Affair and Events Leading Up to It.

Some time ago word was received in this city from San Francisco that Mrs. Mary Christiansen, formerly a resident of this section, had been killed by her son Chris, while in a fit of temporary insanity. Mrs. Christiansen has many friends here who were decidedly anxious to get particulars in the case, and accordingly a letter of inquiry was directed by the First Presidency to President Joseph E. Robinson of the California mission, who in due season mailed the following reply:

President F. Smith and Counselor, Salt Lake City, Utah.
 Dear Brethren—Your letter of inquiry has come to my desk, and I have been unable to reply to it, as far as concerns the facts of the case, as far as I can learn, as the records of the California mission do not contain any record of the killing of Mrs. Christiansen.

It is a fact that poor old Sister Mary Christiansen was killed by her son Chris, the details of which I can only repeat for the sake of your knowledge. From Boston she went up the Fall River to New York and spent a pleasant 10 days there, returning with the ship to Boston. She then came to San Francisco, where she addressed several times. Mrs. Chris enjoyed herself exceedingly and returns in good health, well pleased with her stay. She was accompanied on her travels by her daughter May, who also rendered valuable service as a missionary. Together they traveled 20,000 miles during their absence.

Chris, the son of poor old Sister Mary Christiansen, was born at Liverpool on May 12, arriving in Boston eight days later. The voyage was quite a pleasant one and about the ship was a good deal of fun. After leaving the ship he was sent to the Royal Hospital for the Infants in London, where he remained for seven months, having been admitted in charge of headquarters at that place. During her stay there Mrs. Alder's work was principally among the better class, and she did much good, especially in her English, most of them being quite conversant with this language. She then took a tour through Germany, Austria, Switzerland, Italy, France, and Spain, all the principal cities and having a delightful sail down the Rhine. Then she returned to Berlin, where she remained for some time, having been engaged in a school for boys, and later went to London, accompanied by Mrs. C. V. Anderson and her daughter Judith. While in London Mrs. Alder visited the Foreign missions, and preached on the Flushing town hall. She then went to Greece, Turkey, Syria and Palestine, and finally returned to America. On this tour one of the remarkable things noted was the number of Arabian children that are able to converse intelligently in English. This is due, I am told, to missionary effort. The Holy Land was a revelation to the visitors, although modern tendencies have brought about many changes. This is a copy of the Mount of Olives, which is now built up and presents quite a modern appearance.

Mrs. Alder left Liverpool for home on the steamer Arabic May 12, arriving in Boston eight days later. The voyage was quite a pleasant one and about the ship was a good deal of fun. After leaving the ship he was sent to the Royal Hospital for the Infants in London, where he remained for seven months, having been admitted in charge of headquarters at that place. During her stay there Mrs. Alder's work was principally among the better class, and she did much good, especially in her English, most of them being quite conversant with this language. She then took a tour through Germany, Austria, Switzerland, Italy, France, and Spain, all the principal cities and having a delightful sail down the Rhine. Then she returned to Berlin, where she remained for some time, having been engaged in a school for boys, and later went to London, accompanied by Mrs. C. V. Anderson and her daughter Judith. While in London Mrs. Alder visited the Foreign missions, and preached on the Flushing town hall. She then went to Greece, Turkey, Syria and Palestine, and finally returned to America. On this tour one of the remarkable things noted was the number of Arabian children that are able to converse intelligently in English. This is due, I am told, to missionary effort. The Holy Land was a revelation to the visitors, although modern tendencies have brought about many changes. This is a copy of the Mount of Olives, which is now built up and presents quite a modern appearance.

Mrs. Alder left Liverpool for home on the steamer Arabic May 12, arriving in Boston eight days later. The voyage was quite a pleasant one and about the ship was a good deal of fun. After leaving the ship he was sent to the Royal Hospital for the Infants in London, where he remained for seven months, having been admitted in charge of headquarters at that place. During her stay there Mrs. Alder's work was principally among the better class, and she did much good, especially in her English, most of them being quite conversant with this language. She then took a tour through Germany, Austria, Switzerland, Italy, France, and Spain, all the principal cities and having a delightful sail down the Rhine. Then she returned to Berlin, where she remained for some time, having been engaged in a school for boys, and later went to London, accompanied by Mrs. C. V. Anderson and her daughter Judith. While in London Mrs. Alder visited the Foreign missions, and preached on the Flushing town hall. She then went to Greece, Turkey, Syria and Palestine, and finally returned to America. On this tour one of the remarkable things noted was the number of Arabian children that are able to converse intelligently in English. This is due, I am told, to missionary effort. The Holy Land was a revelation to the visitors, although modern tendencies have brought about many changes. This is a copy of the Mount of Olives, which is now built up and presents quite a modern appearance.

Mrs. Alder left Liverpool for home on the steamer Arabic May 12, arriving in Boston eight days later. The voyage was quite a pleasant one and about the ship was a good deal of fun. After leaving the ship he was sent to the Royal Hospital for the Infants in London, where he remained for seven months, having been admitted in charge of headquarters at that place. During her stay there Mrs. Alder's work was principally among the better class, and she did much good, especially in her English, most of them being quite conversant with this language. She then took a tour through Germany, Austria, Switzerland, Italy, France, and Spain, all the principal cities and having a delightful sail down the Rhine. Then she returned to Berlin, where she remained for some time, having been engaged in a school for boys, and later went to London, accompanied by Mrs. C. V. Anderson and her daughter Judith. While in London Mrs. Alder visited the Foreign missions, and preached on the Flushing town hall. She then went to Greece, Turkey, Syria and Palestine, and finally returned to America. On this tour one of the remarkable things noted was the number of Arabian children that are able to converse intelligently in English. This is due, I am told, to missionary effort. The Holy Land was a revelation to the visitors, although modern tendencies have brought about many changes. This is a copy of the Mount of Olives, which is now built up and presents quite a modern appearance.

Mrs. Alder left Liverpool for home on the steamer Arabic May 12, arriving in Boston eight days later. The voyage was quite a pleasant one and about the ship was a good deal of fun. After leaving the ship he was sent to the Royal Hospital for the Infants in London, where he remained for seven months, having been admitted in charge of headquarters at that place. During her stay there Mrs. Alder's work was principally among the better class, and she did much good, especially in her English, most of them being quite conversant with this language. She then took a tour through Germany, Austria, Switzerland, Italy, France, and Spain, all the principal cities and having a delightful sail down the Rhine. Then she returned to Berlin, where she remained for some time, having been engaged in a school for boys, and later went to London, accompanied by Mrs. C. V. Anderson and her daughter Judith. While in London Mrs. Alder visited the Foreign missions, and preached on the Flushing town hall. She then went to Greece, Turkey, Syria and Palestine, and finally returned to America. On this tour one of the remarkable things noted was the number of Arabian children that are able to converse intelligently in English. This is due, I am told, to missionary effort. The Holy Land was a revelation to the visitors, although modern tendencies have brought about many changes. This is a copy of the Mount of Olives, which is now built up and presents quite a modern appearance.

Mrs. Alder left Liverpool for home on the steamer Arabic May 12, arriving in Boston eight days later. The voyage was quite a pleasant one and about the ship was a good deal of fun. After leaving the ship he was sent to the Royal Hospital for the Infants in London, where he remained for seven months, having been admitted in charge of headquarters at that place. During her stay there Mrs. Alder's work was principally among the better class, and she did much good, especially in her English, most of them being quite conversant with this language. She then took a tour through Germany, Austria, Switzerland, Italy, France, and Spain, all the principal cities and having a delightful sail down the Rhine. Then she returned to Berlin, where she remained for some time, having been engaged in a school for boys, and later went to London, accompanied by Mrs. C. V. Anderson and her daughter Judith. While in London Mrs. Alder visited the Foreign missions, and preached on the Flushing town hall. She then went to Greece, Turkey, Syria and Palestine, and finally returned to America. On this tour one of the remarkable things noted was the number of Arabian children that are able to converse intelligently in English. This is due, I am told, to missionary effort. The Holy Land was a revelation to the visitors, although modern tendencies have brought about many changes. This is a copy of the Mount of Olives, which is now built up and presents quite a modern appearance.

Mrs. Alder left Liverpool for home on the steamer Arabic May 12, arriving in Boston eight days later. The voyage was quite a pleasant one and about the ship was a good deal of fun. After leaving the ship he was sent to the Royal Hospital for the Infants in London, where he remained for seven months, having been admitted in charge of headquarters at that place. During her stay there Mrs. Alder's work was principally among the better class, and she did much good, especially in her English, most of them being quite conversant with this language. She then took a tour through Germany, Austria, Switzerland, Italy, France, and Spain, all the principal cities and having a delightful sail down the Rhine. Then she returned to Berlin, where she remained for some time, having been engaged in a school for boys, and later went to London, accompanied by Mrs. C. V. Anderson and her daughter Judith. While in London Mrs. Alder visited the Foreign missions, and preached on the Flushing town hall. She then went to Greece, Turkey, Syria and Palestine, and finally returned to America. On this tour one of the remarkable things noted was the number of Arabian children that are able to converse intelligently in English. This is due, I am told, to missionary effort. The Holy Land was a revelation to the visitors, although modern tendencies have brought about many changes. This is a copy of the Mount of Olives, which is now built up and presents quite a modern appearance.

Mrs. Alder left Liverpool for home on the steamer Arabic May 12, arriving in Boston eight days later. The voyage was quite a pleasant one and about the ship was a good deal of fun. After leaving the ship he was sent to the Royal Hospital for the Infants in London, where he remained for seven months, having been admitted in charge of headquarters at that place. During her stay there Mrs. Alder's work was principally among the better class, and she did much good, especially in her English, most of them being quite conversant with this language. She then took a tour through Germany, Austria, Switzerland, Italy, France, and Spain, all the principal cities and having a delightful sail down the Rhine. Then she returned to Berlin, where she remained for some time, having been engaged in a school for boys, and later went to London, accompanied by Mrs. C. V. Anderson and her daughter Judith. While in London Mrs. Alder visited the Foreign missions, and preached on the Flushing town hall. She then went to Greece, Turkey, Syria and Palestine, and finally returned to America. On this tour one of the remarkable things noted was the number of Arabian children that are able to converse intelligently in English. This is due, I am told, to missionary effort. The Holy Land was a revelation to the visitors, although modern tendencies have brought about many changes. This is a copy of the Mount of Olives, which is now built up and presents quite a modern appearance.

Mrs. Alder left Liverpool for home on the steamer Arabic May 12, arriving in Boston eight days later. The voyage was quite a pleasant one and about the ship was a good deal of fun. After leaving the ship he was sent to the Royal Hospital for the Infants in London, where he remained for seven months, having been admitted in charge of headquarters at that place. During her stay there Mrs. Alder's work was principally among the better class, and she did much good, especially in her English, most of them being quite conversant with this language. She then took a tour through Germany, Austria, Switzerland, Italy, France, and Spain, all the principal cities and having a delightful sail down the Rhine. Then she returned to Berlin, where she remained for some time, having been engaged in a school for boys, and later went to London, accompanied by Mrs. C. V. Anderson and her daughter Judith. While in London Mrs. Alder visited the Foreign missions, and preached on the Flushing town hall. She then went to Greece, Turkey, Syria and Palestine, and finally returned to America. On this tour one of the remarkable things noted was the number of Arabian children that are able to converse intelligently in English. This is due, I am told, to missionary effort. The Holy Land was a revelation to the visitors, although modern tendencies have brought about many changes. This is a copy of the Mount of Olives, which is now built up and presents quite a modern appearance.

Mrs. Alder left Liverpool for home on the steamer Arabic May 12, arriving in Boston eight days later. The voyage was quite a pleasant one and about the ship was a good deal of fun. After leaving the ship he was sent to the Royal Hospital for the Infants in London, where he remained for seven months, having been admitted in charge of headquarters at that place. During her stay there Mrs. Alder's work was principally among the better class, and she did much good, especially in her English, most of them being quite conversant with this language. She then took a tour through Germany, Austria, Switzerland, Italy, France, and Spain, all the principal cities and having a delightful sail down the Rhine. Then she returned to Berlin, where she remained for some time, having been engaged in a school for boys, and later went to London, accompanied by Mrs. C. V. Anderson and her daughter Judith. While in London Mrs. Alder visited the Foreign missions, and preached on the Flushing town hall. She then went to Greece, Turkey, Syria and Palestine, and finally returned to America. On this tour one of the remarkable things noted was the number of Arabian children that are able to converse intelligently in English. This is due, I am told, to missionary effort. The Holy Land was a revelation to the visitors, although modern tendencies have brought about many changes. This is a copy of the Mount of Olives, which is now built up and presents quite a modern appearance.

Mrs. Alder left Liverpool for home on the steamer Arabic May 12, arriving in Boston eight days later. The voyage was quite a pleasant one and about the ship was a good deal of fun. After leaving the ship he was sent to the Royal Hospital for the Infants in London, where he remained for seven months, having been admitted in charge of headquarters at that place. During her stay there Mrs. Alder's work was principally among the better class, and she did much good, especially in her English, most of them being quite conversant with this language. She then took a tour through Germany, Austria, Switzerland, Italy, France, and Spain, all the principal cities and having a delightful sail down the Rhine. Then she returned to Berlin, where she remained for some time, having been engaged in a school for boys, and later went to London, accompanied by Mrs. C. V. Anderson and her daughter Judith. While in London Mrs. Alder visited the Foreign missions, and preached on the Flushing town hall. She then went to Greece, Turkey, Syria and Palestine, and finally returned to America. On this tour one of the remarkable things noted was the number of Arabian children that are able to converse intelligently in English. This is due, I am told, to missionary effort. The Holy Land was a revelation to the visitors, although modern tendencies have brought about many changes. This is a copy of the Mount of Olives, which is now built up and presents quite a modern appearance.

Mrs. Alder left Liverpool for home on the steamer Arabic May 12, arriving in Boston eight days later. The voyage was quite a pleasant one and about the ship was a good deal of fun. After leaving the ship he was sent to the Royal Hospital for the Infants in London, where he remained for seven months, having been admitted in charge of headquarters at that place. During her stay there Mrs. Alder's work was principally among the better class, and she did much good, especially in her English, most of them being quite conversant with this language. She then took a tour through Germany, Austria, Switzerland, Italy, France, and Spain, all the principal cities and having a delightful sail down the Rhine. Then she returned to Berlin, where she remained for some time, having been engaged in a school for boys, and later went to London, accompanied by Mrs. C. V. Anderson and her daughter Judith. While in London Mrs. Alder visited the Foreign missions, and preached on the Flushing town hall. She then went to Greece, Turkey, Syria and Palestine, and finally returned to America. On this tour one of the remarkable things noted was the number of Arabian children that are able to converse intelligently in English. This is due, I am told, to missionary effort. The Holy Land was a revelation to the visitors, although modern tendencies have brought about many changes. This is a copy of the Mount of Olives, which is now built up and presents quite a modern appearance.

Mrs. Alder left Liverpool for home on the steamer Arabic May 12, arriving in Boston eight days later. The voyage was quite a pleasant one and about the ship was a good deal of fun. After leaving the ship he was sent to the Royal Hospital for the Infants in London, where he remained for seven months, having been admitted in charge of headquarters at that place. During her stay there Mrs. Alder's work was principally among the better class, and she did much good, especially in her English, most of them being quite conversant with this language. She then took a tour through Germany, Austria, Switzerland, Italy, France, and Spain, all the principal cities and having a delightful sail down the Rhine. Then she returned to Berlin, where she remained for some time, having been engaged in a school for boys, and later went to London, accompanied by Mrs. C. V. Anderson and her daughter Judith. While in London Mrs. Alder visited the Foreign missions, and preached on the Flushing town hall. She then went to Greece, Turkey, Syria and Palestine, and finally returned to America. On this tour one of the remarkable things noted was the number of Arabian children that are able to converse intelligently in English. This is due, I am told, to missionary effort. The Holy Land was a revelation to the visitors, although modern tendencies have brought about many changes. This is a copy of the Mount of Olives, which is now built up and presents quite a modern appearance.

Mrs. Alder left Liverpool for home on the steamer Arabic May 12, arriving in Boston eight days later. The voyage was quite a pleasant one and about the ship was a good deal of fun. After leaving the ship he was sent to the Royal Hospital for the Infants in London, where he remained for seven months, having been admitted in charge of headquarters at that place. During her stay there Mrs. Alder's work was principally among the better class, and she did much good, especially in her English, most of them being quite conversant with this language. She then took a tour through Germany, Austria, Switzerland, Italy, France, and Spain, all the principal cities and having a delightful sail down the Rhine. Then she returned to Berlin, where she remained for some time, having been engaged in a school for boys, and later went to London, accompanied by Mrs. C. V. Anderson and her daughter Judith. While in London Mrs. Alder visited the Foreign missions, and preached on the Flushing town hall. She then went to Greece, Turkey, Syria and Palestine, and finally returned to America. On this tour one of the remarkable things noted was the number of Arabian children that are able to converse intelligently in English. This is due, I am told, to missionary effort. The Holy Land was a revelation to the visitors, although modern tendencies have brought about many changes. This is a copy of the Mount of Olives, which is now built up and presents quite a modern appearance.

Mrs. Alder left Liverpool for home on the steamer Arabic May 12, arriving in Boston eight days later. The voyage was quite a pleasant one and about the ship was a good deal of fun. After leaving the ship he was sent to the Royal Hospital for the Infants in London, where he remained for seven months, having been admitted in charge of headquarters at that place. During her stay there Mrs. Alder's work was principally among the better class, and she did much good, especially in her English, most of them being quite conversant with this language. She then took a tour through Germany, Austria, Switzerland, Italy, France, and Spain, all the principal cities and having a delightful sail down the Rhine. Then she returned to Berlin, where she remained for some time, having been engaged in a school for boys, and later went to London, accompanied by Mrs. C. V. Anderson and her daughter Judith. While in London Mrs. Alder visited the Foreign missions, and preached on the Flushing town hall. She then went to Greece, Turkey, Syria and Palestine, and finally returned to America. On this tour one