Speaking collectively, in many re-spects great similarity exists in all the estitutions we visited: yet each has its peculiar characteristics and an in ccommodate in each not more than fifty inmates and the necessary officers for the same. These buildings to con lividuality of its own. In many of the sist of schoolroom, open dormitory for single beds, officers' sitting and bed schools there is a system of rewards or good conduct, and the reverse for bad conduct. This is accomplished by rooms, with necessary bath rooms closets, water, heating, sewage, and what is termed "merit" and "demerit" marks, and according to the number of merit marks earned, depends the time of the toy's dicharge f on the naturation. In o har insultations we ventilating facilities; these buildings to be single or double as may be determined by the Trustees and as occasion may require, and made nstitution. In o har institutions we cound this system had been discon-tinued, the general and coutinued good deportment as reported by the officers to the Board, being the standard by which a boy is judged, and discharged from the institution. This plan, it was itaimed, worked better than the sys-im of merit marks, for many a boy would be very careful to technically inform to the rules and thas earn all found this system had been discon-tinued, the general and continued good freproof, or as much so as possible. em of merit marks, for many a boy would be very careful to technically more to the rules and thus earn all ample capacity, and in the beginning more than sufficient for the number that will be in the school. the credit marks possible, with the sole view of an early discoarge, but morally he would not be changed a

We suggest that a competent architect be engaged to draft plans in conformity with the foregoing, and that one or more of this committee be appointed to confer with said architect in regard to the matter of baths and bathing facilities, closets, urinals, water and steam arrangements for heating and cooking, the general plan, of the buildings, etc., also when the location of the school growinds is finally determined, that a survey and plat of the same be made, showing streets, roads, "tc., in its immediate vicinity, in order that the location of the buildings can be better determined and considered in connection with the probable growth and needs of the institution in the future for the other buildings. There are a number of other minor but important matters necessar, to the "al operation and management of a keform School, but as they apply mostly to detail, and of such a nature that if written up would make this re-port too voluminous and cumbersome, we omit, but as occasion demands they can readily be referred to. In closing our report we desire to refer to and acknowledge the uni-formly, kind and generous freatment we were accorded at every institution we visited; every facility and oppor-tunity was given us to examine into whit has best wisnes of the officers for the success of our contemplated school. The committee are under many obligations to the several su-perintendents and their side for courparticle, and his evil tendencies would e as strong as ever; he would, according to the "merit" standard, be eformed, a good cltizen and entitled to discharge. Such characters return to their old bad ways and are soon back at the old institution or are heard of at some other similar place. On the other hand a boy is not usually dis-charged until he is morally, mentally and physically fit to go out into the world and earn an honest livelihood. We find an earn an honest livelihood. We find a unasimous opinion igainst the old style of buildings; buildings where the boys-everal bundred in number-ian mix promiscuously, irres pective of age or morals. We found son e liversity of opinion upon this ques-tion, some insisting that age should be the guida, claiming that an older boy whew and committed more wickedness than a younger one; others claim that
