EVENING NEWS.

A REIGN OF TERROR IN HARMONY.

NINE FIRES IN SEVEN DAYS.

The following article is the clipping referred to by our correspondent "Enoch," writing from the State of Maine, Oct. 2d. It is from the Pittsfield, Me., Advertiser, of Sept. 30th.

About 5 o'clock Monday afternoon, the 20th, the barn of Ira Hurd was found be on fire, and the wind blowing hard at the time from the northwest carried the flames on to a smaller barn, shed and the house, which were soon in flames; but not till many of the household goods had been saved. The house was one of, if not the best in town and had been built but a few years, at the cost of between $3,000 and $4,000. In the barns were some 75 tons of hay, 500 bushels of grain and 200 bushels of beans, beside some farming tools and three hogs. Loss, $8,000 or $9,000; insured for $3,000. There were many theories in regard to the origin of the fire, but nearly every one agreed that it must have been incendiary.

Tuesday, between 1 and 2 o'clock, Abel Frost, who lives about one-and-a miles from Mr. Hurd, being some distance back of his house in the pasture after sheep, saw a man run from the back of his barn to the woods, which was but a short distance on one side, and when he got to his buildings found his barn on fire. An alarm was raised, but nearly every man within a radius of two miles being gone to a raising on the other side of the town, it was some time before much help arrived. They succeeded in saving the greater part of the household goods, except in the kitchen. The buildings were owned by D. H. Bartlett, of Athens, and were not insured. Loss estimated at $1,000.

People began to get a little uneasy, and when on Wednesday, at about 3 o'clock, the alarm of "fire!" was given, each man looked first to his own home; but it was soon found to be the frame-buildings of John Foss, half way between Harmony village and Mainstream, and half a mile from the road. Mr. Foss was cutting corn but a few rods from the buildings, and going to the house for a drink of water, picked up a few nubs of corn and stepped into the barn to give them to his horse. He noticed nothing unusual, went to the house, got his water, returned to his work and had bound up but one shock of corn when his daughter cried "fire!" and smoke was issuing from every crevice of the barn. He ran to the door and opened it, hoping to save his horse and three excellent calves, but the flames drove him back and they all perished. He then turned to the house and succeeded in saving but a very few articles, the wind being quite strong and just in the direction to take the house, and by the time help arrived it was too late to enter it. The sight so overcame Mrs. Foss, that for the time she was quite insane and it required all the man's strength to keep her from going into the flames. The family of five were left with not a thread of clothing but what they had on, and only a few articles of furniture. Mr. Bartlett also owned this place, and we hear the report that, being made uneasy by the burning of those occupied by Mr. Frost the day before, had applied at once to have them insured, which had been done about two hours when they were consumed. The loss is estimated at $2,000, and the insurance is reported at $1,500.

People now became convinced that some person or persons were setting these fires, but for what purpose and when or how was a mystery. There seemed to be no clue on which they might work, and though each one, almost, had a different theory, they could only wait and hope that was the last one. Thursday passed very quietly, with no sign of fire except a smoke in the direction of Hartland, and men began to take new courage and say they thought it was over at last.

But no! Friday, about 4 p. m., the stable of Ernest Willis was discovered in flames. The woodshed and house being joined to this, and the wind blowing hard, there was no hope of saving them, and they, too, were soon but a heap of ruins. Not a thing was saved from the stable, shed, kitchen, or chamber, but most of the goods were in the other part of the house. The house was almost new and very convenient, while Mr. Willis, together with his father-in-law, Amos Brown, had lived there but about four months. The larger barn, which contained the most of their hay and all their grain, and also an old house which was used as a workshop, were saved. About the time the fire broke out a stranger was seen passing along toward Mainstream, and when met by someone going to the fire and asked to go with them, replied, "I'm lame and can't run. Go along!" He appeared so peculiar that he was followed and overtaken on the St. Albans Road. He gave his name, residence and destination, but the "town fathers" thought it best to detain him over night at least, which they did, but finding nothing against him to warrant his being retained longer, he was released.

Saturday was a day of terror throughout the town. Men carried arms and kept watch over their barns. In the forenoon a town meeting was held to take some measures to repress this terrible work of destruction. While some one was making some remarks, or suggestions, another outcry was heard and every man rushed to the open air to see where the fire-fiend had fallen now. It proved to be the barn of Alvin Booker, on the Athens road, 1½ miles west of the village. A neighbor, Mrs. Melvin Brown, said she saw a man go into the back side of the barn, and gave the alarm as soon as possible, but he had escaped toward the woods, and although quite a number started in pursuit, none of them got sight of him. When the alarm was given there was but a small spot of fire on the scaffold in the straw, but it spread so rapidly that nothing could be done. The house set a little distance from the barn and did not burn. I have not learned the loss or whether it is insured. Many of those who went to be of assistance here had not reached their homes when another smoke was seen towards the north, and proved to be the farm buildings of John Dore, in Wellington, although the first farm in that town. The house was a new one, built two years ago, and a large and very good one. That also took fire in the barn and was all in flames when discovered. While neighbors and friends were at work here clearing the house, another cry of "Fire! Fire!" was heard, and the buildings of Ethan Smith, their nearest neighbor, were soon a heap of ashes. This house had been built but a few years, and though smaller than Mr. Dore's, was very neat and comfortable. I have not ascertained the loss, but it must exceed $3,000 on both. Have not learned as to insurance. It seemed as if the vengeance of the fire fiend could never be glutted, for, while these were blazing, a tiny wreath of blue smoke was seen issuing from the northwest corner of Chas. Laughton's barn, on the road from Mainstream to Ripley, and about three-quarters of a mile from the former. The alarm was quickly given and the smoke being so small some hopes were entertained that it might be quenched, but they soon proved vain. The buildings were all connected—a very unfortunate circumstance, for had it been otherwise, the wind, which was very favorable, would have blown the flames back and the house might have been saved. As it was, many willing hands worked swiftly and cleared the house even to the cellar. Loss, $1,500; insured for $800. Mr. Laughton has been looking for just such a calamity, and had kept watch around his barn all day and the night before, but left it to eat his dinner, when he thinks it must have been set from the outside. His shed was found to be on fire on the roof the morning that Mr. Frost's, their nearest neighbor, was burned; but it was easily extinguished and was then thought to have caught from the chimney, but many have since changed their minds and believe it was set from the inside. On the same afternoon, just as Mr. Frost's was down, and before many people had gone away, another alarm was given that Robert Tripp's shed was afire on the roof, which proved all too true, and had it not been for the number who were present and their prompt action, another set of excellent buildings would have been in ashes. At the time, this was also thought to have caught from the chimney, which is still not impossible; but considering everything it looks doubtful.

Sunday it rained a little in the morning and many felt more safe, but it soon gave signs of clearing away, and between 10 and 11 another smoke was seen on the Ripley road and was found to be the barn of Eoner Nutter. People from all parts of the town hurried in that direction, but many of them were too late to be of service. The wind being in the right direction to take the flames on to the house, it was thought that would have to go, and it was quickly cleared; but fortune favored them and it was saved, although somewhat damaged by windows being broken, etc. Mr. Nutter, was away, and a hog and four months' old colt were burned in the barn. No one dares to leave their homes unless they have a watch over it, so we cannot give full particulars in regard to the latest conflagrations, but one thing is certain, their homes are gone, and from unknown causes. Nearly every one is convinced that the fires are all set in broad daylight, but by whom and for what purpose remains a mystery.

With two exceptions the fires have been confined to the southeast corner of the town, but those in other parts of the town feel scarcely more safe, for no one can have any idea where the next blow may fall. Mrs. Charles Brown was buried on Saturday p. m., and it was almost impossible to get men enough of any age for bearers. The trouble, excitement and anxiety brought on a heart trouble from which she has suffered before, and Mr. Brown was carried home from the funeral in a senseless condition, but at last accounts was better. Mr. Gilbert Rhodes, a man upwards of 80 years, took a gun and traveled around and watched their buildings while his son George went to assist at the funeral. Truly, this is a time that tries men's souls.

Many men from adjoining towns were in town yesterday, and all was excitement. In every house goods are packed and men are on guard.

IKE.

The same paper has the following:

"I was called to Harmony last Saturday, to attend the funeral of my brother's wife, Mrs. Chas. Brown. Arrived at the place at noon and learned that they were having a very exciting time with regard to fires. That during the week five sets of buildings had been fired in a mysterious way. One had been burned that morning. While speaking of these things the cry of fire reached us. Thinking it to be near we took our horses and rushed in that direction, but soon learned that it was some miles away, being the homes of John Dore and Gardner Smith, both of which were consumed. We turned about, but before we could retrace the short distance we had come the cry of fire again reached us, and the home of Charles Laughton was in flames. Again we rushed on to render what assistance we could. But no power could stay the element until all his buildings were laid in ashes. At the home of my afflicted brother great excitement prevailed. It seemed to the afflicted ones that they could bear no more, but soon one of the family, Elmer Brown, returned from the fire with a deep and painful wound in his leg, cut by his knife as he hastily cut a bed-cord, sticking the knife to the bone. After the wound had been cared for and he sent to his own home we repaired to the Church where a few very impressive remarks were made by Rev. Elder Turner. With hearts weighed down with grief and excitement we consigned the dead to her last resting place Sunday morning. Before we left the place the dreaded cry of fire again reached us and again we rushed to the scene to see the barn of Eben Nutter laid in ashes, the house being saved through the great exertions of the crowd that gathered. This made nine sets of buildings fired in seven days and only two houses saved. The fire invariably catches in the barn (and the farther end of the barn at that) and the flames spread so rapidly that no power can save the buildings. The houses are mostly cleared of their goods. Every one stands in fear that his buildings will be the next to go. It is a sad sight to enter their houses and see their goods all packed and ready for a hasty removal and witness their anxiety as they look upon their houses, the hard earnings of years of toil, and expect every hour that the next will see them swept from them. They dare not rest by day or by night, yet know that their most vigilant care can avail but little. The greatest excitement prevails throughout the town, while those from surrounding towns pour in by the score to help and sympathize with them. We can but hope the cause will soon be discovered and justice be meeted out with unsparing hands. I hope that Ike will pardon if I have trespassed upon his limits.

TAKE SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

For all Diseases of the

Liver, Kidneys, Stomach and Spleen

This purely vegetable preparation, now so celebrated as a Family Medicine, originated in the South in 1828. It acts gently on the Bowels and Kidneys and never acts the action of the Liver, and is, therefore, the best preparatory medicine, whatever the sickness may prove to be. In all common diseases it will, unassisted by any other medicine, effect a speedy cure.

The Regulator is safe to administer in any condition of the system, and under no circumstances can it do harm. It will invigorate like a glass of wine, but is no intoxicating beverage to lead to intemperance; will promote digestion, is a pain headache, and generally tone up the system. The dose is small, not unpleasant, and its virtues undoubted.

No loss of time, no interruption or stoppage of business while taking the Regulator.

Children complaining of Colic, Headache, or Sick Stomach, a teaspoonful or more will give relief.

If taken occasionally by patients exposed to MALARIA, will expel the poison and protect them from attack.

A PHYSICIAN'S OPINION.

I have been practicing medicine for twenty years, and have never been able to put up a vegetable compound that would, like Simmons Liver Regulator, prompt and effectually move the Liver to action, and at the same time aid (instead of weakening) the digestive and assimilative powers of the system. CHICAGO, ROCK ISLAND & PACIFIC R'Y

By reason of its central position, close relation to principal lines East of Chicago and continuous lines at terminal points West, Northwest and Southwest, is the only true middle-link in that transcontinental system which invites and facilitates travel and traffic in either direction between the Atlantic and Pacific.

The Rock Island main line and branches include Chicago, Joliet, Ottawa, La Salle, Peoria, Wenona, Moline and Rock Island, in Illinois; Davenport, Muscatine, Washington, Fairfield, Ottumwa, Oskaloosa, West Liberty, Iowa City, Des Moines, Indianola, Winterset, Atlantic, Knoxville, Audubon, Harlan, Guthrie Centre and Council Bluffs, in Iowa; Gallatin, Trenton, St. Joseph, Cameron and Kansas City, in Missouri; Leavenworth and Atchison, in Kansas; Albert Lea, Minneapolis and St. Paul, in Minnesota; Watertown in Dakota, and hundreds of intermediate cities, towns and villages.

THE GREAT ROCK ISLAND ROUTE

Guarantees Speed, Comfort and Safety to those who travel over it. Its roadbed is thoroughly ballasted, its tracks of heavy steel. Its bridges are solid structures of stone and iron. Its rolling stock is perfect as human skill can make it. It has all the safety appliances that mechanical genius has invented and experience proved valuable. Its practical operation is conservative and methodical—its discipline strict and exacting. The luxury of its passenger accommodations is unexcelled in the West—unsurpassed in the world.

All trains between Chicago and the Missouri River consist of comfortable DAY COACHES, magnificent PULLMAN PALACE PARLOR and SLEEPING CARS, elegant DINING CARS providing excellent meals, and between Chicago, St. Joseph, Atchison and Kansas City—restful RECLINING CHAIR CARS.

THE FAMOUS ALBERT LEA ROUTE

Is the direct, favorite line between Chicago and Minneapolis and St. Paul. Over this route solid Vestibuled Trains run daily to the summer resorts, picturesque localities and hunting and fishing grounds of Iowa and Minnesota. The rich wheat fields and grazing lands of interior Dakota are reached via Watertown.

A short desirable route, via Seneca and Kankakee, offers superior inducements to travelers between Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Lafayette and Council Bluffs, St. Joseph, Atchison, Leavenworth, Kansas City, Minneapolis, St. Paul and intermediate points.

All classes of patrons, especially families, ladies and children, receive from officials and employees of Rock Island trains protection, respectful courtesy and kindly attention.
