One hundred volumes have just been received. This is the work in the compitation of which Dr. James E. Talmage was engaged as one of the 200 editors. Porter of Silver Club Gambling House Runs Off With Cash,

He Took All the House Had, 8682, and Left for Parts Unknown-The Club is Ruined.

The Silver club gambling house is no more. Its existence suddenly terminated yesterday when George Cameron, a faro dealer, skipped off with all the cash, amounting to $682 in all. The amount is very small for a gambling house but it was all the proprietors had. The club was owned by G. S. Weich and Joe Powers. For about five months Cameron has been employed at the club as dealer and porter. Every day it devolved upon him to carry the house's funds from the "Lone Star" gambling house where the money was kept for safe keeping. Yesterday he got the money about 12 o'clock and left for parts unknown. No trace of Cameron parts unknown. No trace of Cameron can be found. He has a wife and child

SMITHY BENBROOK AN AGED MAN'S HAS LEFT TOWN

Cape Nome Gold Fields.

NO ALIMONY FOR HIS WIFE. WAS IN A FATAL RUNAWAY

Was to Have Appeared in Court Tomorrow on an Order to Show Cause-Status of Case.

Smithy Benbrook, the gambler, who was this week cited to appear before Judge Hilles remorrow morning to show cause why he should not pay his wife $100 a month alimony, pending the determination of the divorce suit, has taken his departure for Cape Nome. Smithy, it is claimed, is not in contempt of court, for when the citation order is returned to Judge Hiles tomorrow he will be represented by his attorneys, Powers, Straup & Lippman. The order of the court required that he should not dispose of his property, but Smithy, by his attorneys, will endeavor to prove that all his belongings were shipped to Seattle several days before the citation order was served upon him.

NO SUMMONS ISSUED.

Benbrook filed the divorce complaint against his wife, who was then in San Francisco, several weeks ago, but no summons was ever served upon the defendant. He based his suit on the ground of desertion and his attorneys say he had a good case. During the couplie's separation Benbrook is said to have allowed his wife $75 a month, and, it is claimed, he would have increased this amount had the divorce been granted.

LOVED ANOTHER WOMAN.

Some time ago Benbrook became enamored of Mrs. Minnie Nugent, dashing auburn-haired widow, a wanted to marry her. But there was a stumbling block in the road—the wife in California. Smithy was informed that to marry again before the first marriage contract was annulied, meant a term in the State prison, and in order that his Cape Nome-honey-meon trip should not be interfered with, he commenced divorce proceed-

WAS ON TO HIS GAME. Mrs. Benbrook, though not served with a summons as required by law, heard of Smithy's action, through the Salt Lake papers, and the result was a correspondence was begun. The let-ters were not couched, in what some people call, "endearing terms." Mrs. Benbrook was full of business. She saw that divorce and Cape Nome would put a stop to her monthly allowance. Benbrook assured his former Benbrook assured his former love that she need have no misgivings; that while he going far away, on the ocean to sail, she would receive $100, by every month's mail. This read very nice, of course, but did not seem to satisfy her; she had heard that the malls between here and Cape Nome were very ir-regular; she knew from practical ex-perience that the call of the landlord, the baker and the butcher was as regular and certain as anything could possibly be. So she informed Smithy that if he would pay her $2,000 down, she would give him a receipt in full. By way of explaining the benefit of this arrangement, Mrs. Benbrook reminded Smithy that the country where he was going to, was known to be very cold; he might get his hands frozen and be unable to write, or he might forget, etc. Benbrook demurred to the $2,000 proposition, when Mrs. Benbrook packed up her traps and came on to Salt Lake,

ANSWER AND CROSS-COMPLAINT. Upon arrival she hunted up Benbrook and, finding him, gave him to understand that he could not budge one peg until he had made some kind of a settlement with her. Smithy refused on the ground that he had not the wherewith to plank down. The wife then sought Attorney Sam H. Lewis, who with to plank down. drew up for her an answer, cross-com-plaint and affidavit to the divorce suit. These were filed on Tuesday, and the order to show cause was served on Benbrook by Deputy Sheriff Al Dyer Wed-nesday. Three hours later Smithy took nesday. Three hours later Smithy took train for Seattle and by this time is on the ocean wave, feeding the fish, prob-

MAY MEET AGAIN.

Mrs. Nugent, it is said, intends going to Cape Nome, not to marry Benbrook, so she says, but to take care of her young brother, Jack Worley. "He is so young, you know," she is reported to have said when questioned about the matter. "He is the baby of the family, and I den't think he could take care of ilmself without me,' will take place in the morning, so the attorneys say, as though Benbrook was here; but as Smithy is now out of the jurisdiction of the court, it can only have one result, and that is Mrs. f she is ever divorced it will not be antil she herself institutes proceedings.

Mr. Eaby lived at 173 P street, and yesterday morning he hitched his horse to a single wagon, announcing his in-tention of going to East Mill Creek for a load of hay, and incidentally to visit with some of his old friends, that place having been his home for a number of years. He waved a cheery good-bye to his little grand, daughter telling her to his little grand-daughter, telling her to look for him about 6 o'clock in the evening, and so he started on his last ourney, with apparently no foreboding of his impending fate.

He paid his visits, secured the hay at Amos Neff's, and started home. After traveling nearly a mile, having reached Fourteenth South street, his binding pole became loose and he got down to the him. down to tighten it. As he was getting back on the load he dropped the reins and the horse started down the hill, with the old man absolutely helpless so far as controlling the animal was concerned, and on turning abruptly the aged man was thrown violently to the ground, striking on the side of his head, and breaking his neck.
